TWO SENTENCED FOR THEFT

George Clarke Goes to Reformatory and Thomas Clarkin Gets Ten Months in Jail—Charles Bergman Brought Before Criminal Court on Bench Warrant—Is Charged With Burglary and Held for Trial.

George Clarke, 35, New London, and Thomas Clarkin, 25, New London, found guilty of theft by a jury in the criminal superior court last week, were on Wednesday afternoon sentenced by Judge Donald T. Warner.

Clarke was sentenced to the reformatory, and Clarkin, who is just over the age admitting him to the reformatory, was given a sentence of 10 months in jail. The reformatory authorities see fit Clarke may later be paroled.

Clarke has been employed as a brakeman in and around New London. His parents reside in New London and his father has been a railroad freight conductor for some years past.

Clarke came to this country from Ireland about five years ago. Both his parents are dead. At one time he was employed as a street car conductor in New York and had worked in other capacities in that city. He had been in New London only a short time prior to his arrest.

Leon Rounds, who was arrested with Clarke and Clarkin in connection with the theft of a broken safe, also sentenced, as the case against him was nolle.

On Wednesday Charles Bergman of Hartford was presented before the court on a bench warrant charging him with burglary in Colchester. He was held for trial under bonds, which he secured.

The complaint charges him with taking 100 pairs of shoes valued at $50 and 20 suits of underwear valued at $50 from a store in Colchester run by Jennie Lazinski.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE FOR LEROY ROBINSON.

New London Negro Found Guilty of Attempted Theft from Person.

On Wednesday in the criminal superior court a jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case of the state vs. Leroy Robinson, colored, charged with attempted theft from person. He was sentenced by Judge Donald T. Warner to not less than one year nor more than four years in state prison.

The trial in Robinson's case started on Tuesday afternoon. Robinson was charged with attempting to rob Frank Krupinsky in New London Sept. 23d.

Robinson had been sentenced a jury was selected for the trial of Albert R. Wells, charged with assault with intent to rob Benjamin Lavine of this city. It is alleged that Wells, who is colored and 29 years of age, entered the store of Benjamin Lavine on Nov. 21st and at the point of a revolver tried to hold up Mr. Lavine. He was frightened off before he could secure any money. Late the same night he was found by the local police in a Mt. Pleasant street house where he roomed and was arrested.

Witnesses heard in the case were Benjamin Lavine, Clifford A. Rowe, Fred Marshall, J. C. Bland, Benjamin Schmitt and Sally Worley. Police Sergeant Albert C. McEvers also testified, telling of Wells' arrest and of the finding of a revolver and cartridges hidden in Wells' bed.

When put on the stand Wells denied the charges against him. He admitted owning a loaded revolver at the time, but said he had it because he feared violence at the hands of Marshall and McEvers. He said he had the gun in the bed because he didn't want to carry it around with him. You didn't think Marshall was going to shoot me, did you? asked State's Attorney Bull.

Wells was unable to explain how it was that there were only 13 cartridges left out of the 15 he purchased. He could not account for the disappearance of the other two.

At this point in the testimony court adjourned until 9:30 o'clock this (Thursday) morning.

WORK OF J. R. SKEESUCK PRAISED IN PHILADELPHIA

Young Artist of Mohegan Tribe Pleases Critics With Wood Carvings.

The Philadelphia Record of recent date writing up a studio exhibition, pictures some of the wood carvings by Jerome Roscoe Skeesuck, of Norwich, a student at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts, who went to the Quaker City from the Norwich Art School, having had his scholarship transferred from Boston through the efforts of Mrs. Charlotte Eastman, director of the Norwich Art School.

The paper says: There is interest in the wood carvings shown by Jerome R. Skeesuck, a Mohegan Indian from Connecticut, who is studying art at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. Carved bowls and ladles of wood, as well as plaques and trays and some end pieces and tinted carvings showed his versatility in this medium.

The Indian is possibly a permanent addition to the artist colony and his work is wonderfully attractive, displaying as great a skill as that which makes the explorer take the carvings of the aborigine.
