The play, which is by Frank Montgomery, is based upon the unique idea of the central figure of the story confining his speech to nothing but the truth. AUDITORIUM.

Girls, Fun, Laughter, Feature Photo-plays—Clean, Progressive Amusement for the Whole Family.

The Broadway Revue Musical Comedy company now playing the Auditorium put over one of the biggest bits of their engagement, entitled Dumont's Theatre Agency. Gingers and snappers is the watchword with this company, and they surely deliver the goods. The musical numbers are well put on and the chorus has a number of old-fashioned which is an added feature. Bill Jennings as Dumont, the agent, is clever and pleasing. Sidney Rogers as the "tough" Hermands, is a character who works with the beat on that line of entertainment. Peggy Carroll's musical number, "The Girl Who Said No," is a riot with the audience last night and seven encores were demanded and given by this popular little comedienne.
