SERGEANT R. O. FLETCHER DIES OF WOUNDS

SERGEANT ROBERT O. FLETCHER

Today for the second time this week the flag on the city hall and the flag on Chelsea parade will fly at half mast and another gold star will be added to the service flag of the town, the tribute to Sergeant Robert O. Fletcher of this city, regimental supply sergeant of the 56th Artillery Regiment.

Last Sunday the flags went to half mast upon the official report of the death in action of Private William N. Durr, 4th U. S. Infantry, and the loss at sea of Seaman James J. Nevins of the crew of the U. S. S. Seneca two Norwich boys. Late Friday afternoon notice from the war department came here of the death of Sergeant Fletcher on August 15, of wounds received in action in France. The message was sent to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fletcher at their home at 54 Lincoln avenue.

Ever since September 2nd when a letter from Leslie Manchester to his parents here mentioned that Sergeant Fletcher had been killed, and subsequent letters from other members of the regiment had mentioned it, his family and host of friends feared the worst, but clung to the hope that in the absence of the official notification there might have been some mistake. Corporal Manchester's letter was written on the 17th of August.

Soldier comrades from his own regiment have written as follows:

Sergeant Toomey, Quentin Roosevelt is buried a little way from the road from where I am now. I suppose you have heard that we are up at the front. A good many of the boys that came over with us are no more. Bob Fletcher is amongst them. He got picked off last week. He was hit by a big shell and lived only a few minutes. He is buried in the nearest town to us and I cannot give you the name now. Even his folks will not know until after the war.

Corp. Dewey H. Woodworth, Battery March, the first boy in my outfit got it. That was Bob Fletcher. He was killed outright by a shrapnel. It was a great shock to us boys. He was so well liked by everybody. But believe me, mother, some of them are going to pay for it. The boys nearly all went crazy over it and just wanted to go right after them.

Private Corey—Among the first killed was Bob Fletcher. Our battery is scheduled to get the battery that got him, and we are going to do it.

Corp. Harold Robinson—Bob was in a crater in the Third Company, and got hit by a large shell. Sergeant Kirker was standing by. Bob was taken to the hospital. All the boys felt blue as all liked him.

Sergeant Greson—The boys have visited Bob Fletcher's grave and we covered it with roses.

Sergeant Fletcher was a native of this city and was 25 on the 8th of last March. He attended the Public School and graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1912. He was prominent in athletics in school, playing football and captaining the baseball team in his graduating year.

Immediately after graduation he entered the office at the Hopkins and Allen Arms Company and from there came to The Bulletin to fill the position of sporting editor, which he did with marked ability for several years and it was while in this position that he heard the call of his country and entered in the Third Company, 56th Artillery, Captain W. R. Denison, in the early spring of 1917. He became company clerk and went to Fort Wright, at Fishers Island when the war broke out. He was there for training in July, 1917.

When the 56th Artillery regiment was formed from Connecticut Coast Artillery men, he became regimental supply sergeant with the company for overseas duty on March 20. They had been stationed somewhere in France ever since.

Sergeant Fletcher was one of the thousands of splendid stalwart six foot Americans who have swung along the French highways, hailed as saviors of their native country by aged French men and women, with their brimming with tears of thankfulness while little children showered flowers in paths of the khaki clad soldiers. His friends and business associates recall with pride his earnest desire to do his whole part, the interest he took in perfecting himself in soldierly efficiency from the moment of his enlistment and the eagerness with which he turned toward the time when he could serve at the front.

He was a friend and a favorite of all with whom he was associated in business or social relations and his loss is one that will be long felt.

He is survived by his parents, a sister, Hazel, and a brother, Leslie who is in a tank corps in training at Tobyhanna, Pa.

He was a member of Park Congregational church, Norwich Lodge No. 450, B. P. O. E., and of Union Lodge, No. 21, F. and A. M. of New London. In which he was raised shortly before leaving Fishers Island for overseas.

UNCLE SAM'S YOUNGEST SOLDIERS REWARDED

Thirty-five Boy Scouts, Uncle Sam's youngest soldiers, as H. A. Tirrell, chairman of the court of honor called them when he made the presentations, were given the rewards of their citizenship for their work in war campaigns at the public rally in Union square on Friday night that opened the eighth Fourth Liberty loan campaign in Norwich.

The program came at the end of the evening's program and the awards were made in three classes: a Scout emblem representing work in one campaign, a medal for two campaigns and a pendant bar in three.

The following were the Scouts who received awards:

Tubbs' full and with John M. Swales directing, opened the evening's program at 8 o'clock with a concert that showed the band at its best and every number was vigorously applauded.

After several selections by the band, William H. Allen, general chairman of the Liberty Loan campaign, announced that the Tom Brown Musical Society, now playing at the Danby theatre, had volunteered to appear on the program, and introduced the eight members of the troupe who gave two pleasing numbers in which a spirited patriotic solo by Miss Marion Claire and a cornet solo by Miss Frances Bea were features.

Mayor J. J. Desmond made a brief but stirring patriotic speech, saying that the program of the evening was the way we meet the coming Liberty loan to furnish the sinews of war which shall make our soldiers invincible and they have always been.

After another selection by the band Mr. Tirrell spoke and the awards were passed out to the Scouts by Arthur L. Pease, president of the local Scout council. The program closed about 8.30 with The Star Spangled Banner.

PRIVATE THOMAS JOHNSON KILLED IN ACTION

The name of Private Thomas Perry Johnson, colored, appears in the casualty lists for today as being killed in action. A telegram was received here on Monday from Mrs. Frances Gaines of 105 High street, but as Miss Gaines did not reside at 105 but at 103 High street she did not receive the telegram until later in the week.

Private Johnson was 23 years of age, having been born in Charlestown, R. I., but for the past few years had made his home here. He resided on Quarry street. For a long time he was employed by the Edward Chappell Co. as a driver. He left Norwich on the 30th of April for Camp Devens with colored contingent. From Camp Devens he was transferred to Camp Upton where he was killed in action, arriving there the latter part of June. The manner in which he was killed is not known as no details as to his death have reached this city.

Registrants Must Get Sick Certificates.

Owing to the influenza epidemic the local draft board has been flooded with calls to inquire about the questionnaires of the sick men, and also many who have been called for examination are also sick. The draft board announces that in order for a registrant not to be classified as a delinquent he must secure certificate from his physician stating that he is unable to make out his questionnaire or to report for examination. This certificate must be in the hands of the draft board at the earliest possible moment and an extension of time will be allowed the patient.

ARE FOUND GUILTY

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—The five members of the staff of the Philadelphia Tageblatt, on trial in the federal court here, were found guilty late today of conspiracy to violate the espionage act. A motion for a new trial was made and bail was continued.

Don't Expect the Impossible.

If Secretary McAdoo and Chairman Kitchin will continue to appear publicly now and again arm-in-arm—and carry the same spirit of friendly-cooperation behind the doors of the conference room—the country will stand a much better chance than otherwise of getting a war revenue act at once fair, adequate and workable.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

If They Stop That Soon.

To an alert and intelligent observer, up a tree anywhere along the western front at the present time, it must seem an assumption within reason that the rear guard of the Allied armies will be managing their clothes to dry on the whole Von Hindenburg line within the next week or so.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Reason.

It isn't so much a regard for the Hohenzollern vanity as solicitude for the Hohenzollern neck which stands in the way of Wilhelm's frank confession of defeat.—San Francisco Chronicle.

According to Precedent.

Georgia reports that its peach crop brought more than $10,000,000. This was to be expected, since the crop was reported ruined by frost last spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
