Michael H. Grimshaw, 54, died on Monday evening at his home in Attawaugan. He had been ill eight days with pneumonia. Mr. Grimshaw was born in Putnam but had lived forty-five years in Attawaugan and had become one of Killingly's best known citizens. For sixteen years he was a deputy sheriff of Windham county and for 21 years a constable of Killingly to which office he was reelected Monday. He was a fearless officer and never hesitated to face danger even against heavy odds.

For sixteen years he was boss farmer for the Attawaugan company and for several years past has had charge of the company boarding house there. He leaves his wife and three sons, Michael J., chief of police at Danielson, and William and John of Attawaugan. Mrs. James McGuire of Danielson is a sister.

PUTNAM

Health Officer Peter Gardner said Monday afternoon that there was not much change in the health situation in the city. There are many cases of influenza, but the most of them are not considered as a dangerous nature.

Supt. William L. McDonald of Putnam's schools said Monday afternoon that he did not know just when the Israel Putnam and Smith street schools would be re-opened, this depending on health conditions in the city.

There were 38 absentees when the roll was called at the high school building Monday morning. Twenty-eight of these were from the high school, others from the eighth grade, which is located in the building. One of those absent has been ill for a week with a well defined case of influenza, Mr. McDonald said. Some consideration was being given Monday to closing the high school, but it was eventually decided not to take this action at present. Most of the high school students who are away from their studies are not ill with influenza, but are suffering from grip, colds and other such ailments. The condition of this group is not considered serious.

The board of instruction for this exemption district is preparing to send out cards pointing out that the watchword for the United States army is efficiency and that it is the duty of every man who may be called to the colors to make himself by drill, study and instruction proficient enough to enter the service with at least a fair idea of what is expected of him. The board of instruction will take steps to arrange for instruction of men who are to be called. The board is made up of Daniel J. Byrne, chairman, Capt. Robert A. Gardner, 256, Kay, Rev. W. A. Routhier, all of this city, and Captain A. Putnam Woodworth of Danielson.

Today brings the opening of the fall hunting season, and Monday the early morning was named by a number of sportsmen as the time they would go into the brush. The experienced hunters are not anticipating finding game in plenty this fall. Last winter was one of the most terrible in many years, and there has been much evidence that many protected game birds were killed by the extreme cold. That there are some partridge, quail and pheasants remaining is well known by the hunters, however, for they have been out on observation trips the past two weeks.

Putnam's delegation to the senatorial convention to nominate a republican candidate for the Twenty-ninth district is made up of Attorney John P. Carpenter, John A. Dady, Charles L. Torrey and A. A. Broder. It is understood that the republican ticket for Senator Archibald Macdonald. The convention will be held in this city next Saturday afternoon.

The first instance of a declarator for citizenship writing into his questionnaire that he desired to withdraw his intention to become a citizen of the United States was encountered. It is understood, on Monday by the local newspaper, that the declarator is a resident in the town of Danielson, a subject of a northern neutral, the government of which has had strong pro-German leanings, and he took out his first papers here only two years ago. There are those who would not object at all to the deportation of this man from the country.

Monday, the funeral of Andrew Charles Wicks, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wicks, was held from their home in Attawaugan, with services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville. Rev. Ignatius Koet officiated. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

The September record of the town court shows that there were 84 cases before the tribunal during that period. By all who believe in law and order, this is regarded as altogether too many for a town the size of Killingly. Many of the cases, the majority of them, in fact, were due to the excessive use of liquor or to misdemeanors directly chargeable to its use. October may produce an equal or a better record, but that should be an end to such record making. With no-licensing in force at least a reduction in the number of drunk cases may be anticipated.

Physicians throughout Killingly say that while a number of cases of serious illness exist, there is absolutely no excuse for people to become panicky. Proper precautions for the protection of health have been published time and again during the past two weeks, and if these are observed the person will be very well protected. Cases of illness will occur here and there, but very few of them may be expected to develop into anything as serious as influenza or pneumonia.

Mrs. Ernest Kennedy, who was Miss Margaret Matthews, died Monday at her home here. Mrs. Kennedy, 23 years of age, was born in Ireland and before her marriage lived with her aunt, Mrs. Robert McFarland, Moosup. She had been ill for about two weeks and succumbed to pneumonia. She is survived by her husband, who is associated with his brother, L. E. Kennedy, in business.

Thomas Grady, who up to recently was employed at Woodward's store, but who has been working at Norwich recently, came to Danielson on Monday en route to his home in Providence, where his sister died during the day.

In Monday's town election the republican selected their candidates for each office. There was less interest in this year's voting than at any town election in years. Up to Monday, few had paid any attention to the coming election.

The details of the vote follows: Republican—Assessor, Charles B. Hutchins 464; board of relief, William J. Young, 474; selectmen, John A. Gilbert, 471; Charles A. Downs 472; agent of town deposit fund, Frank T. Preston, 487; auditor, Elmer C. Wood, 460; grand jurors, Frank W. Bennett, 473, Sidney B. Stone, 473, Clarence H. Soule 463; collector of taxes, George A. Williams, 479; registrars, Michael J. Grimshaw 474; Harry Conklin, 468; Louis S. Parson, 464; registrars of voters, First district, D. Fred Kenworthy 452,

DANIELSON

Killingly's heavy vote for no-licensing on Monday occasions no surprise for anyone who is familiar with campaigning practices in the town, and the big majority piled up by the "dry" forces was forecasted almost to a vote Sunday, when it was conceded the town would go into the no-licensing column by at least 175 majority. The figure after the count was 172.

The yes vote was 58, the no vote 235, the smallest total in many years in Killingly.

No effort whatever was made by the license forces to win a victory this year. In fact some of the liquor dealers frankly stated they would not apply for a license if Killingly voted wet. No effort at all was made to get out a license vote. Those who did vote license did so without being urged and because they always have voted license or do not believe in the no-licensing policy.

On the other hand, the no-licensing forces were active and made the very good showing that was predicted for them. They got on their feet and won by a wide margin. The end of the present month will bring an end to a several years' period of licensed selling of intoxicants in Killingly, and the town without a doubt will remain dry until the liquor business, if it is allowed legally to live at all, is reduced to something like pre-war conditions. The dealers here are panicky in saying that there is little profit in the business under present conditions and they realize that the worst is yet to come. They surrender on Monday was unconditional.

It is doubtful if a determined effort to win out Monday would have brought a victory to the license forces. There is very good ground for knowing that the heavy majority of Killingly's young men who are in the service and who are voters are license men. Their absence cut heavily into the strength of the license forces and without their support winning out seemed an impossibility.

The passing of the saloons from Killingly having been accounted for months, it will not seem such a loss to those who have approved having them about.

Killingly was the only town in this part of the county that voted on the license question, this being practically all of Windham county, outside of Windham which is dry during the coming twelve months.

Four deaths at Goodyear were reported Monday. Influenza is taking a heavy toll of life in that village, and the beginning of the epidemic there seems to be traceable to the coming to that village of a young man who had been employed at Camp Devens and who came home and died with the disease.

The deaths reported from Goodyear on Monday were those of Mrs. Emma Hebert, 71, who leaves her husband, Adelard, and three children; Mrs. Sarah Greene, 32, who leaves her husband and a child; John Wicjick, 18 years, and Rene Lemieux, 21 years of age.

There are many cases of illness in the village, it was stated Monday afternoon, but few of them are of a serious nature at the present time. Danielson continues to be fortunate as regards the number of cases of critical illness, as compared to many communities in the state. There are very few severe cases here, though one death was reported on Monday.

COLCHESTER

The Liberty cars did not arrive here Saturday until nearly 10 o'clock, about 45 minutes late. At 1:30 the Old Guard marched to Grange hall, where the State Guard company was lined up, and escorted them to Main street in front of Bacon academy. The line of march was followed by G. A. R. veterans, Old Guard band, Tenth Separate company, C. S. G., Lieut. Van Cleve commanding, three young ladies dressed as Goodwives of Liberty, mothers carrying service flags, school children, citizens on foot and in automobiles. There was nearly 600 in line. The march was then resumed to the railway station. During the wait for the arrival of the train the band played and the Liberty chorus sang a number of patriotic pieces. The State guard was posted along the side track on which the train was to exhibit. The train consisted of three box cars, one flat car and a coach. In coming into the station several bombs were fired from the train. The cars were run on the siding and the public were admitted at the rear car and passed through to the front. While the people were passing through the cars several speakers addressed the crowd on the fourth Liberty loan. The speakers were Rabbi Goldberg of this place, a lieutenant of the Canadian army, a lieutenant of the French army and one of our boys who was in the battle of Chateau Thierry, and the Hon. E. S. Day. As the different speakers finished a plea was made by the manager of the exhibition for buyers of bonds; solicitors went through the crowd and about $3,000 was subscribed. The crowd was large and very eagerly. At about 11:15 the word was given to get ready to leave the station and as the train was starting several more bombs were fired and amid heavy cheering the train left. The band and State guard returned to the station and the crowd dispersed. The exhibition was fine including a large number of trophies captured on the battlefield. On the flat cars were 3 1/2 tons French gun, a 77 mm German gun, a German howitzer and several machine guns. There were also a number of aerial bombs and depth bombs. A large British mine, French mortars and bomb throwers

The public schools at Hope Valley, Rockville and Ashaway are closed on account of the epidemic and that at Tompaug seems likely to close if present conditions continue.

The board of assessors met for the last time this year Friday afternoon at the town hall and signed the tax lists of 1918 and filed the copy required by law in the office of the town clerk. The list shows the taxable valuation of real estate and tangible personal estate to be $1,812,500 and of intangible personal estate $52,600. The tax to be collected this year is $37,485.80, an increase over last year of $321.15. The poll taxes this year amount to $249.25 against $300 last year, the shrinkage being due to the absence of young men in war service.

Services were omitted in the First Hopkinton Baptist church Sunday on account of weather conditions.
