GERMAN SUB OFFICER PROTECTS 'CUPID' BLACK

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 22.—Guy Bancroft, a former Harvard oarsman, in a letter published today by the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, gives a new version of the meeting at sea of Ensign "Cupid" Black, former Yale football champion, with a German submarine officer.

Mr. Bancroft writes that he was told of the meeting by Captain Leslie Clyde, a Harvard graduate.

"Captain Clyde," he said, "was returning to America last spring on the President Lincoln when it was torpedoed by a German submarine. Captain Black was on the ship, and it seems that the Ensign Black and Captain Clyde were in the same lifeboat and that the German submarine came to the surface and maneuvered around among the lifeboats.

"An officer of the submarine, who declared he was a former Yale man, but of an earlier class than Black, recognized the football leader and spoke with him. It seems that Captain Clyde accidentally struck a German sailor with an oar while trying to keep the lifeboat off from the submarine. This sailor turned quickly on Clyde, drew his gun and threatened to shoot. The German officer yelled at the sailor that if there was to be any shooting he would do it after the war.

According to previous reports of the incident the German submarine officer was a former Harvard football player. It was reported he took Black aboard the U-boat, fastened down the hatches and straightway made off for Germany.

SPORTSMEN WANTED FOR MOTOR TRANSPORT CORPS "By Trapshoot."

The man who is a true sportsman at heart, ready to accept things as they come, and willing to take a chance, even with the odds against him, is the man who makes a good soldier and is the only kind who does.

However, it is to be noted in the foregoing connection that neither bravado or foolhardiness is a quantity desired by the army.

In the M. P. Co. there are drawn together men from every walk of life—bankers whose names are respected in Wall street, automobile engineers whose skill and knowledge have given the motor car its present form.

Several well known inventors are members of the reserve board, and a prominent New York banker, and Russell C. Leffingwell, assistant secretary of the treasury, also are reckoned among the possibilities.

President Wilson is not required to choose the new director-general of railroads from among the cabinet members, and it is possible that the place may go to someone associated with Mr. McAdoo in the railroad administration.

There was a probability that the directorship might have gone to Mr. Baker at the time the president decided to give it to Mr. McAdoo.

Nothing more contemptible in an official way has occurred in this war than the protest of Germany against the use of shotguns by Americans in France.

It is only when the devil has become sick that he is anxious to play the role of monk. It passes all human comprehension that a government should clearly mark the use of shotguns, ravaged the inhabitants and burned their cities which has, however, been done in the case of the Rhineland.

There is nothing in international law which prevents the use of shotguns, and the Germans well know it. It cannot be that their psychology is so perverted that the government expected the outside world to pay any attention to the lies promulgated. It must be for some consumption that the statement is made just as were lies of the French regarding the use of gas.

It is not easy for Americans to understand the listening to such statements, and if the German officials be so mad they are so afraid of their own people that they believe they can keep content only by being fed on lies.

MARKET FLUCTUATED.

New York, Nov. 22.—In its chief essentials today's stock market was largely a duplicate of the preceding trading day, with an early manifestation of comparative strength.

Trading was very broader, but the occasional intervals of activity were invariably at the expense of values. Profiteers governed the day's operations, public or investment interest being altogether negligible.

The monetary situation occasioned further restraint, local financial institutions maintaining their attitude of conservatism.

Post-war conditions again were apparent in the heaviness of motors, copper and other shares whose status is likely to undergo radical readjustment in the transition to peace basis.

The caution with which various corporations are proceeding in this connection was further illustrated by the suspension of dividends by a former Standard Oil subsidiary and the decision of the General Chemical directors to discontinue extra stock dividends.

Metals, secondary motors, utilities and fertilizers bore the brunt of the liquidation at extreme recessions of two to four points. Recessions of one to two points in telephone and telegraph shares were ascribed to federal control.

Shippings and rails were the sole factors in the recovery of these issues reacted later with rails and U. S. Steel, the latter declining 1-2 points, and making feeble recovery. Sales were 560,000 shares.

Recessions were active but featureless showing only fractional changes. Total sales, par value, aggregated $12,500,000.

Old registered shares declined 1 per cent. on sales.
