"Y" ACTIVE DURING PAST TWELVE MONTHS

That the citizens of Norwich may know, in a brief way, what has been accomplished by the local Young Men's Christian Association during the past twelve months, the officers of the "Y" have compiled an annual statement of the activities of the organization for the year ending April 30, 1919. The statement shows that during the year:

Home-cooked breakfasts were served by the "Y" ladies on 52 Sunday mornings with a total attendance of 3,467. To a total of 3,600 have enjoyed the 47 "Get Togethers" on Sunday afternoons. The programme consisted of orchestra music, singing and a vocal solo. The members of the various churches co-operated by serving lunch each Sunday. Sixteen thousand lodgings were furnished to men in uniform at a reasonable price. Hundreds have thus been accommodated free of charge. A special night secretary was employed.

It is estimated that at least 2,000 showers have been enjoyed by the sailors and soldiers. Fully 5,000 letters were written on paper furnished free. Special social occasions were attended by James Thurman, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Co-operation by the church ladies made these occasions possible. Eight thousand, one hundred coats and blankets were checked free of charge. The game tables in the lobby have been much used by Uncle Sam's men. The local "Y" building has been, in a large way, the headquarters for the fine fellows of the army and navy.

SELECTING JURY FOR HOLMES TRIAL

The second trial of Royal G. Holmes of this city, the well known insurance and real estate agent, on the charge of assault with intent to kill and murder Captain James Lennon of 49 Boswell avenue, on the night of December 6 at the captain's home was begun on Wednesday morning in the criminal court at New London before Judge William S. Case, of Hartford, and a jury.

Ten of the twelve men needed for the jury had been selected in a two hour session of the court, starting at 10:30 Wednesday morning. When the panel was exhausted, although 40 extra takers had been summoned in selection of the jury made a flying start when Robert J. Henderson, of Ledyard, the first man drawn, was the first man selected, but thereafter it went slower and Judge Case once indicated a feeling of impatience when he remarked that some of the excuses offered seemed made to order.

The following were the ten men secured in order: Robert J. Henderson, farmer, Ledyard; Reginald M. Rowland, insurance and real estate agent, New London; Courtland C. Potter, bridge tender, of Mystic; John S. Hall, merchant, Lyme; Fred W. Harvey, farmer, East Lyme; Byron J. Peckham, carpenter, Stonington; Richard J. Beach, retired, Niantic; Elissa J. Ashley, jobber, Blackhall; Dan D. Home, town clerk and judge of probate, Montville; James Bond, farmer, East Lyme; Mayor J. J. Desmond, of this city, and Attorney Arthur M. Brown again appeared as counsel for Mr. Holmes, as they had in the first trial in this city last January and for this trial had associated with them Attorney John C. Geary, of New London. State's Attorney Hadlai A. Hall, who represented the state had Attorney Warren N. Burrows assisting him as he did in the previous trial.

Mr. Holmes sat in court with his attorneys and his two brother-in-laws, John R. Tarrant, and Richard L. Tarrant. Witnesses for the state who were at the court house included Captain Lennon, Police Captain D. J. Towney, Sergeant Allen C. Matthews, Sergeant John A. Kane, Officer Michael Carroll, James Bond, Mrs. James Bond, Miss Dora Crumb, Leonard P. Church, John Donovan and Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher, all of Norwich.

By contrast to the court rule in the former trial when the general public was excluded from the court room on the ground of danger from the Spanish influenza, which was the prevalent, there was no barring of the public from the court room this time. When court opened at 10:35, Attorney Brown addressed the jury, requesting permission to poll the jury, that is, to put each man on the stand and examine him as to his qualifications to serve. He said he understood in civil cases, but only by permission of the court in criminal cases.

Judge Case granted the permission and directed the jury to retire to have all the takers removed from the court room. They were all assembled outside in the hall from which they were called in, one at a time, and examined on the stand, first by State's Attorney Hall and then by Attorney Brown, as the selection progressed.

On the entire panel there were 53 names, of whom thirteen had been excused. By the time the list had been gone over, counsel for the defense had used up all the names, and the state's attorney had used only five challenges. The selection of the jury proceeded as follows, with Major Hall explaining to each man what the case to be tried was and asking him if he were related to either Captain Lennon or Mr. Holmes, whether he had had any business dealings with either party in the case or had formed an opinion which would prevent him from fairly trying the case on the evidence presented.

Robert J. Henderson, Ledyard, a farmer, formerly a New York newspaper man, accepted as juror No. 1. Lawrence S. Cook, New London, a clerk, had followed the case, and had strong opinions on case, excused by Judge Case. George I. Baldwin, Stonington, carpenter, had read the papers, some time ago in reports of the case, somewhat excited, excused by Judge Case. Louis G. Pollard, New London, shipping clerk, had read the paper and had formed strong opinion, excused by the judge.

Eugene Riley, Waterford, chipper and caulker, had fixed opinion from reading papers, excused by judge. Reginald M. Rowland, New London, insurance and real estate, had read papers but formed no opinion that would prevent him from weighing the evidence. Accepted as juror No. 2. Merritt F. Ryan, New London, machinist, formerly locomotive engineer, challenged by the state. Albert E. Hewitt, Groton, coal and grate dealer, accepted by the state. To Attorney Brown Mr. Hewitt said that he was selectman of the town and had been judge of the town court when Attorney Burrows was connected with the court. The juror was challenged by the defense.

Herbert D. Utley, New London, stated he was on the jury list of two years ago, New London and Waterford. He now lives in Waterford and had been drawn from New London. Excused by the judge. Courtland C. Potter, Mystic, bridge tender, had read the papers but took no particular interest in the case, accepted by the state. To Attorney Brown the prospective juror said he had probably seen Captain Lennon three times in his life. Accepted as juror No. 3.

John S. Hall, Lyme, merchant, accepted as juror No. 4. Lincoln Q. Smith, East Lyme, carpenter, had fixed opinion from reading reports of case, excused by judge. Fred W. Harvey, East Lyme, farmer, accepted as juror No. 5. George O. Miner, Groton, farmer, had formed something of an opinion and discussed the case some with others, and felt he had bias in the case. Excused by the judge. Frank G. Denison, Mystic, retired, had read of the case at the time and formed some opinion, but he had expressed it, excused by the court.

Alonso Main, Ledyard, farmer, had read the papers, but he said he had formed his counsel in legal matters. Challenged by the state. Byron J. Peckham, Stonington, carpenter, accepted as juror No. 6.
