ANNOUNCEMENTS

Another Sale at Uncasville.
John A. Moran, real estate broker, has sold to the University of Connecticut, New Haven, by Frederick Baker of New Haven, consisting of an eight-room house and about an acre of land located at Uncasville. Mr. Collins purchases the property as an investment and will make improvements.

Troop of Girl Riders Sings While Circus Horses Dance.
"Um pah! Um pah!" goes the big show band. "Ta ra, ta ra," goes the circus band. The great red, white and blue curtains of the performers' entrance to the big top fly open and out at the gallop come sets of four high spirited blooded horses, with white bridles and harnesses, and upon them in graceful case sit beautiful young women, gowned in evening dress— "honest-to-goodness" ballroom gowns and around the hippodrome track and into the rings and upon the stages they center. The while the band plays waltzes, fox trots and "walkin' the dog" stuff, the horses dance, keeping perfect step with the music and with each other.

This is just part of the greatest high school act in all the history of the great acts of this kind that have featured the Sells-Filow Circus in the past. It will be seen here when the Sells-Filow Circus comes to New London, Tuesday, June 24th.

The last part of this display is the prettiest novelty that has been developed in a circus tent. As the horses in concert assume pose after pose and perform evolution after evolution, the riders sing in chorus—and they are singing. From at the great arena the chorus swells—songs that all of us love. Then, with a rush, the squadron forms in the hippodrome track and American flags appear on white poles and such riders as are in the circle, the track at a run and disappear through the curtained entrance.

DAVIS THEATRE.

Nazimova conceded to be the most fascinating and talented actress on the screen, will be seen in a thrilling seven-part production, Eye for Eye, at the Davis Theatre and Thursday.

The picture is drawn from the famous play "L'Occident" written by the noted Belgian dramatist, Henry Kistmaecker.

The story is that of an Arabian girl, her tribe in a city of tents on the edge of the desert. Duty takes a young French naval officer to their encampment and here he is made prisoner. Nazimova, in love with him and releases him—later aiding in his escape. When the loss of the prisoner is discovered she confesses her help in his escape and for this act is condemned to death. The Arabs abandoning her to the desert to perish from thirst and starvation.

The beautiful girl is rescued, but faces a fate that death itself is sold to a traveling circus as a dancing girl and finds herself in the hands of a brutal master.

The story is vital and absorbing—following the fate of this passionate and untamed girl of the desert. Later she becomes a member of the family of the man whose life she saved and becomes involved in the intrigue which rife in his family. All the passions of human nature are displayed in this stirring drama of Oriental and Occidental life—love, hate, jealousy, deceit, treachery, and revenge—all have their turn in this gripping and amazing play. Nazimova rises to the heights of her superb emotional art in this glowing drama of the far East.

Pathe Revue, a Lyons and Moran comedy, the latest News Issue are also on the program, with Eddie Polo in the first episode of The Lure of the Circus, the greatest and most interesting serial photo ever produced.

Another complete change of program Friday.

The Girl Problem.

Fannie Ward, whose girlish spirit and appearance gives such an enduring charm of "Common Clay," is proud of a collection of 5,000 letters which she received from admirers in all parts of the United States and in parts of Canada. The natural supposition is that this correspondence comprises the fervid sentiment of admiring males; but Miss Ward prizes it most highly because it is not the letters were written by girls of ages ranging from fifteen to twenty. No other woman on the stage or screen has ever depicted girlhood with such fidelity and charm. In the "Common Clay," A. H. Woods' screen rendition of the Harvard prize play by Cleves Kincaid, Miss Ward achieves a characterization that adds enormously to her artistic reputation.

Ellen Neal, the working girl heroine in the initial production of the stage play gave Jane Cowell one of the big opportunities in her career. To Miss Ward, acting for the moment, it offered an opportunity greater still; for while the stage story has its technical limitations, the screen offers a breadth of treatment of action and detail which gives a fuller reality to the story. The play has been shown in every city of 10,000 and upward and the photodrama will have even better popularity, because of its vivid amplification and because the story itself is one of vital realism concerning the Girl Problem, and the terrible stress of life in a great city. It will be shown at the Majestic Roof Theatre for the last time tonight.

BREED THEATRE.

"The Lion's Den," the latest Metro play in which Bert Lytell is starred, will be the feature at the Breed theatre today and Thursday. This is the second story from the pen of Frederick Orin Bartlett, the noted author, in which Bert Lytell has appeared—the first being "The Spender," a production which caused country-wide acknowledgments for its unusual charm. "The Lion's Den," tells of a young clergyman who desires to save the boys of his flock from the evils of the street by offering them, instead, a well-equipped club. How his project seems doomed to failure through the lack of funds and his ultimate decision to enter the "lion's den of commerce," and earn the money himself are incidents which make a play of unusual strength and human appeal. Mr. Lytell is surrounded by a cast of noteworthy players.

Other pictures on the bill include "PEGGY HYLAND" in the "Rebellious Bride," a fire part comedy drama filled with fun and bubbling with thrilling incidents, and a Harold Lloyd comedy entitled "Back to the Woods."
