Feature Photoplays at the Davis Theatre.
Motion Pictures at Reed Theatre.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
Battery D, 56 Regt. Is to hold a reunion at Ocean Beach, Sunday, Aug. 17.

Davis Theatre.
To lovers of the great out-of-doors sports of the strenuous life the start screen version of Larry Evans' popular novel, "Once to Every Man," which is booked to play at the Davis theatre Wednesday and Thursday will have a popular and strong appeal.

Jack Sherrill, the athletic juvenile of the screen, and Mable Withee, the youthful star of two years' twin, are now playing the title role in the New York production of "Miss Simplicity," are starred in this photo production.

The story embraces all the delineations of small town characters and then the entrancing yet unusual life of the picture.

Other attractions on this programme are Eddie Polo in ninth episode of "The Lure of the Circus."
The story star of two years' twin, "News Weekly," with the latest current events, Pathe Colored Revue, Vodavil Movies, and "The Wagoner," a funny Evans-Moran comedy. Don't miss this big show.

Breed Theatre.
In "His Brother's Place," which opens at the Breed theatre today and Thursday, is a clever story with a dual romance in which Hale Hamilton is seen at his versatile best.

The story of two brothers, twins, who though of the same age, have not reached the same stage of success. J. Harrington Drake has attained the high-life of a powerful financier while Nelson, the other brother, is a clergyman of a small town where he has not even succeeded to the extent of entering the ministry.

He is about to resign from the ministry when Harrington comes to his aid and conceals the fact so extreme that it will revolutionize all the precedents of the church and parish. Being plain and unassuming, he is exactly alike in appearance and it is on the remarkable likeness that the scheme revolves. Albert Ray and Minor Fair will also be seen in "Words and Music Etc." This is a new William Fox production introducing two new stars in a series of "the sweetest stories ever told."

Premiums at New London County Fair
As the twig is bent, so the tree inclines," and it is following out this ancient axiom that the New London County Agricultural Society offers the following premiums to encourage the boys and girls of New London County to do their best in producing food stuffs. Any boy or girl residing in the county, unless otherwise stated, may compete without any entry fee and all exhibits will be held in a separate grounds free. All entries close on Monday, September 1st at 12 noon and should be made to the Superintendent, 150 North Main street, New London, Conn.

For the best exhibit by a club, which may include bread or muffins, stories, reports or pictures. First banner, second cook book for library, third framed certificate.

Home Economics Demonstration team contest: first trip to Berlin State Fair, second club uniforms, third club uniforms.

Richard Davidson, of New London, who did considerable work along the Pawcatuck river front last winter and is known in Westerly, has the contract for the construction of the marine railway for the Marine Engineers and Dry Dock company, in Providence.

Four divers were ready for work on Monday, but owing to the necessity of adjusting elevations for the proposed structure, the divers were not able to start work until Tuesday afternoon. The divers will be first engaged in sawing off, under water, the large piles which have been driven to make a foundation for the railway. There are 300 of them, each a foot in diameter. The divers will also place the submarine ground cribbing consisting of heavy beams and planking in the proposed probably within six months, the railway will be 750 feet long, with a cradle 68 feet wide, capable of hauling out a 500-ton vessel.

The piles have to be cut by hand saws, which is not much more difficult than sawing on land, though the divers tire quicker on account of the heavy pressure and cumbersome diving outfit.

"Diver" Dick Davidson in a newspaper interview, said the divers work eight hours a day for $10, $12 and $15 and remain under water continuously from 7:30 to 12:30. The air supply is automatically regulated and supplied by a steam engine equipped with safety valves. The sole duty of the engineer who attends the air supply is to keep up steam. Mr. Davidson goes overboard with the divers and directs the work while under water. By bumping helmets together he is able to communicate and give orders.

Mr. Davidson says twenty-five feet of water is the best depth to work in because the air pressure at that depth just takes up the load the men carry. The divers are equipped with lead sinkers weighing seventy pounds, a head and neck piece weighing thirty-five pounds, and two six-pound iron slippers. In addition to the regular diving suit, the men wear two pairs of trousers, and a couple of shirts. The reason for the extra underwear is to prevent the air pressure wrinkling the clothing, and causes severe pinching.

Howard Bott and Robert Gleason were the names given when the two men were arrested near Watch Hill on the charge of sleeping with the clothes, and causing severe pinching.

Gleason had in his possession two subscription papers, with jackets which had been circulated for assistance, and others in blank form, presumably to be used in different places. One of the papers bearing signatures bore the names of residents of Norwich, Willimantic and Plainfield. The headings showed fine penmanship and read as follows:

"Half the cruelty of the world is the direct result of stupid incapacity to put one's self in another's place."
"Dear Friend: Being afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis, I am pleading this appeal with the hope that I may get sufficient funds which will enable me to leave a few household articles that I can peddle from door to door, thereby helping me get my fare so I can reach a higher and dryer climate, and a few household articles, your name and amount as it will help me and it will be highly appreciated. Yours respectfully, Robert E. Gleason."

One of Westerly's visiting nurses, was in an automobile accident, by reason of loss of control for a moment and the car striking a telephone pole. The driver, who was riding with the nurse, received severe cuts in the lips and several teeth were knocked out. The nurse escaped with a few household articles, which were damaged. The automobile was considerably damaged.

POETRY

THE LAND OF TEARS.

Went back 'thome' last week to see if things were the same as they used to be. Got sort of tired of city life—Gave up to crowding and ceaseless strife—

Learned to look at the old gray town out at its elbows and grating down. Thought it would seem good 'cross the gaps in the ranks of the boys I knew. Girls mostly widows; only a few that seemed to have lived and made their life.

Nobody high who cared to play. Werent even glad to have me come—Grief and care had grown between them and me since Time was green. Where I had looked for a rosy hue; My mind teemed with memories bright. Past full of gloom, no future at all. But now sitting down to write the call From the Angel of Death who'd pulled me next door.

Sighing and sighing of "Nevermore." Came straight back to the crowd and noise. The sea and city and its joys. Where life stays young despite its age. Leaving forever the Land of Tears.—Don C. Sells, in the New York Times.

HIS LITTLE AD.
There was a man in our town, And he was wondrous wise; He swore it was his policy He would not advertise. But one day he did advertise, With a request from St. Joseph's Cathedral. William J. Collins was the celebrant. Peter F. Radican sang Lead, Kindly Light and O. J. Collins sang the offertory. The bearers were Michael Cook, Peter Mullen, John Sheehan, Patrick Egan, John Riley and Arthur Hadden. Burial was in Mt. St. Benedict cemetery.

HUMORS OF THE DAY
"Jack, when you kissed me, didn't you know that I was something?" "Gwan I'm no lip reader!"—Penn State Froth.

"Lips that touch liquor will never touch mine," declared the old maid. "Get it securely secured have you?" responded the old soak. Judge. "How do you like the new dresses?" "Huh, they remind me of a popular theater." "What do you mean?" "S. R. O."—Cornell Widow.

The Boss—Yes, we need a man to show our hats. "What are your qualifications?" Percy Pettipate—Me? I'm a perfect six and a quarter.—Milwaukee Journal.

Doctor—It is a little difficult to diagnose your case. Perhaps you have been eating too much. Patient—Impossible. This hotel is run on the European plan.—Hotel Gazette.

He—You know I love you—will you marry me? She—But, my dear boy, I refused you only a week ago. He—Oh! Was that you—London Opinion.

"I'm worried about Willie Skiffena." "He's so studious that he ought to get along." "Yes, but he is trying to learn aviation from a correspondence school!"—London Idea.

The Phrenologist—Yes, sir, by feeling the bumps on your head I can tell exactly what sort of man you are. Mr. Doolan—Oh believe it will give me more of an idea wot sort of a woman my wife is.—Jack Cawley.

"What became of that flighty son of yours?" "Got him into a suitable business at last." "Eh." "He's manufacturing weathercocks!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Vestryman (at meeting)—We must now take up the problem of getting our boys to church. New Minister—That problem will solve itself if we get our pretty daughters to go to church. Lawyer—And now that I have saved you from that bootlegging charge, what do you consider my services worth? "No one Client—I ain't got no money, boss, but I'll give you two gallons of whisky."—Stanford Chaparral.
