

IN ROAGES OF THE MIDDLE WEST BEING TAUGHT TO WOMEN

Was the Order at the Closing Session of the Conference of Republican Women From 14 States of the Middle West—How to Persuade Individuals to Abide By Primary Results, How to Collect Campaign Funds and Canvas Precincts—Unanimous That Pre-Convention Talk Should Center on the "Sins of the Democratic Administration."

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Questions and answers were the order at the closing session today of the conference of republican women from fourteen states of the middle west. Delegates left for their homes tonight primed, according to leaders with information on how to make a democratic editor print republican propaganda, how to persuade individuals dissatisfied with primary results to work for straight ticket voting, how to hire high calibre and accommodate visiting speakers, collect campaign funds and canvas precincts.

These and many related problems of the professional politician were explained to the women by party experts from the national committee and from the women's division of the organization. Talks were given on the topics at the morning session and in the afternoon the reports occupied the corners and the question boxes for the delegates.

AMERICANISM IS THE KEYNOTE OF REPUBLICANS

New York, Jan. 6.—"Americanism" was the keynote of two speeches delivered here tonight by two republican candidates for the presidency who addressed a large gathering of men and women prominent in the public and business affairs of the nation at the annual banquet of the Ohio Society of New York. The two candidates for the nation's highest office were Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. The same patriotic note was struck by a third candidate, Major General Leonard Wood, in a letter in which he expressed regret that military duty kept him from being present.

DELEGATES TO AIR VIEWS AT JACKSON DAY BANQUET

Prospective Candidates For the Democratic Nomination For President Will Meet Each Other and Publicly Declare Their Convictions on Public Questions—Interest Now Centers on the Probable Contents of the Letter Promised By President Wilson—The Banquet Will Be Held in Two Sections, With More Than 700 Guests at Each.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Prospective candidates for the democratic nomination for president will meet each other and publicly declare their views on public questions at the Jackson Day banquet which is to conclude the meeting of the democratic national committee here Thursday.

The list of speakers will on the program, made public today, and it includes most of those who have been prominently mentioned as presidential possibilities. Besides they will be read a message from President Wilson, possibly touching on a third term, and on the peace treaty, and a letter from William G. Allen, secretary of the treasury, discussing some of the issues likely to enter into the campaign.

The list of speakers follows: William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of the Navy, Danforth Coit, former ambassador to Germany; Champ Clark of Missouri, former speaker of the house; Gov. Cornellius V. Rye of New York; Hiram Bingham of Nebraska; Pinner, Ohio; Underwood, Alabama; and Owen of Oklahoma; and Mrs. Peter Olson, assistant member of the national committee from Minnesota.

Interest in the banquet, particularly with regard to the positions to be taken by President Wilson, has been greatly overshadowed among the assembling delegates tonight by the fact that the program will be held in two sections, each with more than 700 guests at each. All of those on the program will speak at both places, however, the committee officials expect the oratory to continue far into the night. A limit of 10 minutes will be placed on the speeches, but Chairman Cummings said today that there would be no attempt to put restraint on the speakers, but that the program would be a keynote character, he said, but each speaker would say what he chose without binding anyone but himself.

The only new development today in the treaty controversy was the indication of discussion between a few democrats and "mild reservationist" republicans of modifying reservations which had been prepared by Senator Underwood of Alabama. Senator Swanson of Virginia, or other democratic leaders.

The "mild reservationist" leaders, it was said, were told that the Kendrick suggestions might, with modifications, form the basis of virtually solid democratic support. The Kendrick reservations were reported to involve verbal changes and elimination of the preamble of the Lodge reservations and considerable changes in the Lodge reservations affecting Article X and the voting power of the league of nations.

Democratic leaders said they were not informed of Mr. Kendrick's reported suggestions and resolute denials were made by the Kendrick spokesman. Mr. Kendrick's suggestions offered no more tangible proposals for a compromise than the many suggestions which have been presented back and forth in private discussions.
