DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Herbert C. Keech was at Alexander's lake Monday afternoon, making preparations to cut a thousand tons of ice that will be stored and held as a reserve supply for Danielson. The ice at Alexander's lake where the cutting is to be done during the present week is 15 inches in thickness. Mr. Keech has 900 tons of ice piled in the house at Quinebaug lake, from which the main supply for Danielson comes, but will cut an additional 1,000 tons to hold as a reserve. There'll be no ice shortage here next season, if Mr. Keech's efforts can prevent one. He stated Monday that ice is now being sold in the borough at from 40 to 60 cents per hundred pounds, but that the season's schedule of prices has not been fixed as yet.

Release was permitted Monday of the fact that the Peco Manufacturing company, a newly organized Massachusetts corporation is to locate its business within the limits of the borough of Danielson, and that a mill for the housing of the industry will be erected here, made ready for occupancy and the machinery installed so that operations may begin by the first of May.

The mill to be built will be one story of brick, 300 feet long and 75 feet in width. The machinery has been ordered and will be ready for installation as soon as the mill is completed. The company will manufacture cotton machinery, and it is understood has an abundance of orders placed.

Wednesday evening at the office of Town Clerk Fred W. Preston in the town hall building there is to be a meeting of Danielson men who have become interested in the plan to locate this new industry. Danielson invitations to this meeting are being sent out today (Tuesday).

In addition to the fact that the new company will give employment to about 75 operatives at the beginning of operations it was stated Monday that the company, which has decided to locate here and has plans for expansion. Complete announcements relative to the new company and other facts pertaining to the plan the Danielson men have taken in bringing it here will be made at Wednesday evening's meeting.

The story of bravery of two boys who were themselves facing death at the hands of Victor Lipponen, Brooklyn's notorious murderer, featured the opening of Corcoran G. Hall's inquest relative to the affair that shocked the country.

Testimony given by Charles E. Ray, 11, son of a woman that has battled so long with the law, at the Kimball hospital for the past ten days, and by Stephen J. Jitter, 12, son of Christian G. Ritter, who was savagely killed with an axe by Lipponen, showed that these boys have the stout hearts of brave men and did their best to protect their parents from the awful fate meted out to them by Lipponen.

Stephen Ritter and his sister, Cecelia, 14, told the coroner how they witnessed the atrocious killing of their father by Lipponen and how the murderer chased Cecelia, but could not catch the fleet-footed little girl.

Stephen Ritter, the coroner, learned that the boy, seeing his father brutally murdered, rushed into the Ritter home and seized his father's gun, but by the time he had returned to the yard Lipponen had ceased his fruitless chase after Cecelia and had jumped onto his hobbled and driven out of the yard.

Question for the determined boy to try to keep peace, through the deep snow in which Lipponen was driving away.

Little Charlie Ray, too, did his best to save his mother and sister, who died of her wounds, from the wild attack of Lipponen. Charlie's effort to get his father's rifle from a room near the kitchen, where the women were attacked, nearly cost him his own life, for he told the coroner Lipponen made a terrific swing at him with the axe and barely missed him.

Determined as the boy was to protect his mother and sister, he was driven off by the madman before he could get the rifle with which he had hoped to bring the murderer to a quick end. When Charlie did escape from the house he made his way to the Salsler home, a short distance away.

An showing how fearless Lipponen was at the time he was engaged in killing, the inquest which is not yet completed, developed the fact that he tried to hit the dog at the Ritter place and did bring blood from the animal's side with a swing from the axe that barely grazed his hide.

Manager John F. Lewis of the Orpheum theatre, which is one of the theatres in the Lewis-Brown circuit, stated Monday that he has added another house to the number he is already operating—the Strand, one of

It is the citizens do not indulge in making excessive demands in handling the town business, but increase in property valuations made by the assessors will not materially increase the amount of taxes to be paid by the town. Just how much the grand list has been increased is not known yet, but several hundred thousand dollars' announcements of increases sent out by the assessors cover only advances in the valuation of real estate and do not include automobiles, boats or personal property of other nature.
