

Aviator Up 36,020 Feet, Fell Five Miles

Dayton, O., Feb. 27.—An airplane carrying Major F. W. Schroeder, chief test pilot at McCook field, today fell five miles after reaching an altitude of 36,020 feet, said to be 5,020 feet higher than the world's record.

Tonight the major is in a hospital suffering from shock and temporary partial blindness. Instruments on the machine indicate that it fell more than five miles in two minutes. While still 2,000 feet above the ground, the airplane righted itself and glided to a graceful landing.

The exhaust gas from the airplane, passing in the frigid temperature, caused a cloudlike formation resembling the tail of an airplane, turning in the clouds. Inasmuch as the air was not visible, speculation was as to what it was.

Schroeder lost consciousness when his machine had reached a height recorded by instruments as 36,020 or 5,020 feet higher than the world's record established by Roland Holff last summer.

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets. To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must keep your body free from poisonous wastes.

Mechanics and officers at McCook field lifted Major Schroeder from the plane and he was given first aid treatment and later he was removed to the hospital where it was said his recovery will be only temporary. It will be several days before he will be able to use his eyes, according to Dr. Howard V. Dutton, an eye specialist, called into consultation.

The instruments on his machine recorded the best story of the experience of the aviator in his flight to beat the record of Roland Holff and bring first honors to the air forces of the United States army. The thermometer registered a temperature of 53 degrees below centigrade or 67 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Altitude figures from the barograph reading indicated a height of 37,000 feet, and when calibrated by Captain Harrison W. Flickinger showed an official record of 36,020 feet.

The mark set by Major Schroeder again gives him the record which Roland Holff won from him July 29, 1911, with an official altitude of 30,200 feet and later increased in a second flight to 31,000 feet. It also breaks the record of Adjutant Cassle, a French pilot, who was credited with an official record of 32,197 feet.

Major Schroeder's first altitude record was made at Dayton, O., Sept. 18, 1912, when he flew a Bristol fighting machine to an altitude of 23,900 feet. Leaving the field at 10:45 o'clock this morning, Major Schroeder battled for forty hours and five minutes against a cold atmosphere until he reached an altitude of 36,020 feet.

Officers of the field say his machine must have fallen into a tail spin, as whereas his plane would have collapsed when he regained consciousness it righted itself after the descent of the plane. The sudden change in air pressure from less than three pounds at 23,900 feet to 14.7 per cent at sea level crashed the Liberty motor delivered 400 horsepower, even though at high altitude.

Major Schroeder was dressed heavily in his polar outfit who ever set forth. He literally was wrapped in flexible electric heaters. His flying suit was lined with the fur of Chinese muskungee dogs and between the fur and outer lining flexible electric heat units connected by silk covered wires to the dynamo of the engine, heated the entire suit.

COAST ARTILLERY CO. IS PLANNED FOR NORWICH

The 162d Infantry, the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, 103rd Field Artillery and 101st Ambulance section, units of the 26th division in which Connecticut troops served with such conspicuous valor, will have their place in the new 26th division which is to be formed from the New England National Guard troops now being raised. This was the announcement Friday at Hartford by Adjutant General Cole in telling of the war department's announced plan of national guard organization.

The formation of these national national guard units in Connecticut, as well as 16 companies of coast artillery and a squadron of cavalry call for a national guard of 5,000 men. Under the provisions of the national defense act of 1916, the state now is authorized to raise one battalion of infantry, two troops of cavalry, a battery of field artillery and an ambulance company, an enlisted strength totaling 1,400. The state is to increase the strength of this guard by 700 men each year until the maximum of 5,000 is reached.

Of the four companies of infantry which are to be raised, two are being raised in Hartford and two in New Haven. The number of infantry companies will be increased year by year and out of this development will come the new 102d Infantry.

It is probable that a separate battalion of infantry will also be authorized some time in the near future. This command is to be changed into the new 101st machine gun battalion as soon as the details for machine gun battalions in the new army organization scheme are definitely settled. A cavalry troop in Hartford has nearly reached its full enlisted strength and one in New Haven has been almost as successful. Progress has been made in the forming of coast artillery companies in New London, Norwich and Norwalk. Branford has raised a gratifying number of men or a field artillery company in Danbury is soon to complete organization of an ambulance company.

When the full strength of 5,000 men is reached Connecticut first step will be to national guard troops: One regiment of infantry, one squadron of cavalry, one battalion of field artillery, sixteen companies of coast artillery, four machine gun companies, four ambulance companies and possibly some headquarters troops.

Will Get Lights in School. The Laurel Hill Parent-Teachers' association has been very successful in their efforts to have lights in the Laurel Hill school this spring, something that the association has petitioned for several months ago. The school board at first responded that they could not put lights in because of the expense which it was believed might be over $200, but officers of the association got an estimate of about $65 from a Norwich firm and since then the association has been told that the lights would be put in.

Madrasah Chapter Will Produce Play. Norwich chapter of Madrasah is producing a play here. Honey-moon plays, which will feature two clever amateur actors who starred in a play given a year ago. It is a comedy in two acts for which a large cast of local amateur talent will be enlisted. The feature roles are Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, janitor of the flats and Betty Peters of New York has brought suit in the superior court against Louis K. Keisker, of New London for $1,500 on the common count.

Some- one to the ther without transgressing the Volstead prohibition act. Collector Walsh, had previously made inquiry of Commissioner Roper. Portland Cement in 1919. Preliminary estimates compiled by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, indicate that the production and shipments of Portland cement in 1919 increased 13 and 21 per cent, respectively, over those in 1918 and that the stocks decreased 52 per cent, so that at the end of 1919 less than 5,000,000 barrels of Portland cement was in stock at the mills. The Portland cement industry was set back considerably in 1918, when war restrictions reduced the shipments from the 30,000,471 barrels shipped in 1917 to 7,915,598 barrels, but it is now regaining its lost ground. Early in 1919 the business was even poorer than in 1918, and practically all the increase reported was made during the latter part of 1919, so that 1920 started with favorable prospects for the cement industry. During 1919 the shipments from the mills were limited by the lack of freight cars. The increase in the value of the cement shipped in 1919 over the shipped in 1918 was about 28 per cent. The shipments of Portland cement in 1919 amounted to 85,485,000 barrels, valued at $144,461,000; the production amounted to 88,587,000 barrels; and the stocks of the mills at the end of the year amounted to 4,976,000 barrels.
