SENATOR BRANDEGEE AROUSED

arrangements. In 1914, after this record, he was re-elected on the ground that he had succeeded in keeping us out of the war...

In my address to the convention of 1914 and again in 1916, I referred to the course of the administration in its handling of the Mexican problem as one not deserving the designation of a "policy" as it had been called...

The uses of the department are filled with evidence of crimes and outrages of every kind and variety perpetrated by Mexicans against the persons and property of Americans...

I have called attention to the inefficiency of the various departments of the government. It is almost unnecessary to enter into the details of what the people already know from their daily reading of the news...

Shortly before the November election of 1918, the president appealed to the country to elect a congress democratic in both branches. He stated that no republican should be elected because while that party had been loyal and patriotic during the war...

The basis of the covenant is force. The president in his recent letter to Senator Hitchcock stated that it erects a tribunal to which all must submit and in that decision are to be secured by the moral and physical force of all the members of the league.

Wilson Uarps Power The people having declined to commission Mr. Wilson as their unem-barrased spokesman abroad, the President, nevertheless, decided to go abroad himself as the head of his own commission to negotiate the treaty of peace. He appeared before a joint session of congress and informed that body that he regarded it as his imperative duty to go abroad in person upon this commission. He stated that he would keep us advised of all that he did. He denounced secret diplomacy and pledged himself to open covenants of peace openly arrived at. His sayings and doings while abroad at the peace conference, to such extent as he has had become public have taken place recently to warrant a rehearsal in detail. The public knows in a vague way, that the president made what was called a "process verbal," meaning an official record of what was said and done at this conference with the rulers of Europe...

European Powers Warned

The Congressional Record containing this warning was no doubt sent to the diplomatic representative of every European power to his home government in his official dispatch mail pouch and there can be no question that every government participating in the peace conference was fully advised of the subject. The president did not represent the views of the treaty making power of the United States. It must be borne in mind, however, that these foreign governments were told at the close of this exhausting war, upon the United States for financial aid, for raw material, and for food, coal, clothing and every kind of necessity. They knew also, that the president had appointed himself as the head of the peace commission and departments of the government until would remain at the head of all the the expiration of the treaty on March 3, 1919. When, therefore, in spite of this warning the president informed them that he would not participate in the treaty...

Washington Gave Warning

The father of our country warned us to keep out of entangling alliances with Europe and stated that they had a set of special interests with which we had no concern and ought not to become involved. President Wilson, the exponent of the new internationalism, insists upon thrusting us into these foreign entanglements. Do the people of this country desire that the senate should abandon the policy of George Washington and adopt that of President Wilson?

Europe Seething With Difficulties

Europe has been a battlefield for a thousand years. It is divided into nations and business should, as far as possible, be allowed to take its natural course without governmental interference. Cooperation between capital and labor should be encouraged. Tribunes for the adjustment of differences between workmen and employers should be erected to the end that

"Grippe" Leaves Kidneys Weak

The epidemic of colds and grippe that has been sweeping the country has seemingly left even a greater number of people than ever in a weakened, rundown condition from which there is not a single escape. Much of this after weakness affects the kidneys and bladder, making it difficult for them to perform their normal functions. Sufferers have to get in and out of bed half a dozen times a night, their backs ache and they have sick headaches and dizziness are common symptoms. No serious trouble may exist, but the time to check such symptoms is at once before matters grow worse. No complicated treatment may be needed if a few doses of a good safe kidney regulator like Solvax is taken right away. Solvax straightens out an ordinary case of weakened kidneys in about twenty-four hours in many instances, lifts out and neutralizes poisonous uric acid and drives the clogged up poisons away from the body so that you can begin to feel better right away. Solvax is harmless, contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, and Lee & Osgood Co. and other leading druggists agree to refund its full purchase price in case it fails to give entire satisfaction.

With a full knowledge of what the European members of the league have done since the armistice was effected, do the people of America desire this country to bind itself to this league of force in the hope that some day the great military powers of Europe may by unanimous vote of the council, agree to substitute for this covenant, another covenant based upon justice and equality? If these powers can now wring from the United States the solemn pledge contained in Article 10 of the covenant to protect, as against external aggression, the political independence and territorial integrity of their respective governments and their vast domains in five continents is anybody credulous enough to suppose that when their subject nations rise against them and seek to obtain their own independence, that these powers will release the United States from this obligation and will refer the questions in dispute to an international tribunal to decide these questions in accordance with an established code of international law based upon justice and eternal right? With full knowledge of the history of these powers in the past and with a consciousness of the failings and defects of human nature, do the people of the United States want to take this chance? It is said that we might enter this league and then at the expiration of two years if we did not like it, we might retire, provided meantime we had performed all our obligations under the covenant and all our international obligations. The next two years, however, will be the critical time in the whole league. If national obligations of all kinds will be the period in which the interdependence assumed by the members of the League. Nobody can say what these obligations will be.

Great Task Front of Us

The great task now in front of the country is to aid in the return to the paths of peace. Every effort should be made to stimulate our processes of production and commerce. We have an immense debt to pay. The most rigid economy in expenditures should be exercised. The republican party should be restored to power in the executive as well as in the legislative branch. The men who have rendered inefficient the present operation of the departments should be replaced by private life. New blood should be infused in every department as the directing agency. It is impossible for those who have proved inefficient to conduct the necessary reforms. Appropriation of the vast sums of money needed for the public expenses should be made with a stricter regard for the sources of revenue. Modern business methods should be introduced into the departments. Co-ordination between the departments with reference to appropriations should be inaugurated. Raids upon the federal treasury which have been conducted in the past in order to place upon the general government the burdens which should be borne by the several states should be brought to an end. An independent habit of conduct should be encouraged so that the growing tendency of people to demand care by the government instead of caring for themselves could be checked. All unnecessary impediments upon legitimate business which have been inaugurated by the government should be released. The adjustment of differences between workmen and employers should be erected to the end that

Parties Responsible

It is impossible to enumerate the vast array of pigheaded and baseless legislative enactments which may be necessary during the process of restoring our government to the people. This is a government of parties and parties must be held responsible for carrying out their platform pledges and providing for the welfare of the people as emergencies arise and as the needs of the hour may dictate. The republican party appeals to its record in peace and in war since the preservation of the Union as a guarantee that if with power it can be relied upon to promote the prosperity and preserve the independence of the whole people of the land.

strict and impartial justice may be done to all parties and interests, including the public. Class legislation should be discouraged. It is impossible and it is un-American for a legislative body to pass just laws if they concern themselves about particular classes of people as against the whole body of the people. The public interest should be the supreme law. The great arteries of commerce should be maintained free from all obstruction. The whole people must be made secure in their right to have commerce and transportation proceed without interruption. The great mass of the people will never consent to be free and to starve while employers and employees abandon their duty to the public to engage in combat to settle their differences by force instead of having them settled by application of rules of justice and equity. Law the people of this country must be and order must be maintained. All thoroughly Americanized. Education must be encouraged in this end.

Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Touring Car, $795.00, f. o. b. Flint, Mich.

You have heard of the Chevrolet. And you have seen plenty of them.

You have seen more of them this last year than ever before. And you will see more this year.

Wherever automobiles are to be seen—and that is everywhere—the Chevrolet is a familiar sight.

This should mean something to you. The public does not buy a car in ever increasing numbers unless it meets with popular approval.

The Chevrolet has popular approval. We would like you to know why it has.

It would be easy for us to tell you the reasons for Chevrolet popularity. But before you come to us, learn them from other sources.

Watch for the Chevrolet. Judge its appearance. See the number of passengers it will seat and carry comfortably.

Watch for it on the roads. See how it throttles down and picks up in traffic. Above all watch the next Chevrolet you see take a hill. That is proof of the pudding.

And as soon as you get a chance ask the driver of a Chevrolet what he thinks of it. Get him to show you its equipment. Ask him how many miles he gets on a gallon of gasoline—on tires.

And while your own eyes and ears are finding out about Chevrolet performance keep in mind the prices. There won't be much left for us to tell you. But we'll take you for a ride in one whenever you like.

WE ARE IN A POSITION TO MAKE IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.
