

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

PLAN FALL PASTURES.

Many farmers who own sheep would find it profitable to sow some crop to supplement the fall pasture for the winter. When frosts come the summer grazing land provides very little food for sheep. Breeding ewes require little extra feed to fatten them just before the breeding season to insure a good strong lamb crop the following season.

Rape is one of the most satisfactory fall pasture crops for sheep. Sheep relish this crop very much and will fatten readily on it. The Dwarf Essex variety has proved to be the best. For best results sow in drills 30 inches apart, between June 25th and July 15th. Many farmers sow broadcast and get very good results. For later fall feeding, rape may be sown between the rows in the corn fields at the time of the last cultivation. After the corn crop is removed the rape will come along readily and will be available later in the fall.

White or fall turnips are also used extensively for late fall and early winter pastures. Where cabbage is grown for market the cull heads are refused as an excellent sheep feed. Fall sown early in the autumn, will supply some pastures late in the fall and also may be utilized early in the spring before the native grasses supply pasturage.

SAVE THE PLUMS.

Spray now to control the Brown Rot of plums, cherries and peaches. Self-boiled lime sulphur mixture is probably the best material to use.

For fifty gallons of spray material shake eight pounds of stone lime with boiling water, then while the lime is still boiling add eight pounds of fine sulphur, adding more boiling water to make a thin paste. Constantly stir this material for five or six minutes, then add cold water to prevent further action. If the lime is very slow more lime will have to be allowed.

Granulated lime is the best to use. Mix the dry lime and sulphur in a tub or barrel and then add the boiling water, constantly stirring. After cooling with cold water, strain into the spray barrel, washing all of the material into the barrel as possible. This spray should be used about as fast as made.

as it does not work as well after the material has once settled. Arsenate of lead, one pound of the powdered form may be added to this mixture for curative.

Plums should be sprayed every two or three weeks until full grown. Cherries should have two sprayings, if possible. The poison need not be added after the first application.—S. P. Hollister, Department of Pomology, Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs.

BLACK ROT OF GRAPES.

Even if you have but one or two grape vines, spray them with Bordeaux Mixture either home made, 4-4-50 or any of the commercial brands made or powdered. Spray them just after the fruit forms and at intervals of ten days or two weeks until full grown. Add one and a half pounds of arsenate of lead powder in the first spray to control rose chaffer.

Spray the foliage as well as the fruit during the early part of the summer, later it does not make as much difference, but for best results cover the entire vine.

Small lots of Bordeaux may be made by dissolving one ounce of copper sulphate in three pints of water (1-2 quarts), slacking an ounce of lime in a little hot water. Then dilute to three pints, stir well and pour the two solutions into a third vessel at the same time. Use either wood, fiber, crockery or glass containers, as the copper sulphate solution acts upon metal.—S. P. Hollister, department of pomology, Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs.

FARMERS' WEEK PLANS.

S. L. Strivings of New York, vice president of the American Federation of Farm Bureaus, will be the principal speaker of Farmers' week at Connecticut Agricultural College, August 3 to 6. Mr. Strivings will explain the plans of the Federation for advancing agricultural interests.

Beepkeepers, dairymen, poultrymen, fruit growers, market gardeners, swine growers, sheep growers, and all other agricultural interests in Connecticut formally organized into associations, will be represented at Storrs in August. Each association has prepared an interesting programme for its members.

An interesting feature of the session this year will be the demonstrations. These will include haymaking, use of farm machinery, spraying, etc. The demonstrations will be held on the college farm and have for their purpose the promotion of better methods of farming and the exploitation of labor saving devices. A mock auction of dairy cattle will be a new plan for the year's summer Farmers' week. The college herd of dairy cattle will be "sold at auction" visitors will be permitted to "bid" on the animals and each winner bidder will be expected to explain his reasons for purchasing. The purpose is to bring out the important points of selection of dairy cattle. None of the animals will be actually sold.

GRIMM ALFALFA BEST.

Grimm Alfalfa, while not superior to common alfalfa in yielding power, is more resistant to winter killing. Therefore it is especially desirable in Connecticut where seedlings are expected to last several years, says Henry L. Dorsey, of the agronomy department at Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs.

The supply of this seed is limited and the price is consequently higher than that of common alfalfa. The price difference tends to induce unscrupulous dealers to substitute less desirable varieties for Grimm.

There are no marks on the Grimm seed that will permit of its certain identification. One must wait until the plants are grown and can not then always be certain that he has Grimm alfalfa. The roots are branched while common alfalfa is tap rooted. However, there are many tap roots in a Grimm alfalfa field and many branched roots in a common alfalfa field. When the flowers are abundant, Grimm alfalfa has variegated flowers ranging from white through light yellow and green to smoky brown, purple and blue.

Common alfalfa has slight variegation but purple and blue colors predominate. Perhaps the most significant characteristic of Grimm alfalfa is its tendency to begin growing earlier in the spring after a hard winter and to stop growing a little earlier in the fall than common alfalfa. Grimm alfalfa is also a little less drought resistant than common alfalfa.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS MAY SETTLE CHACO DISPUTE

Buenos Aires, June 29.—The famous Taena and Arica dispute involving Chile, Peru and Bolivia, is not the only South American problem which may go before the League of Nations for settlement. There has existed for years a controversy between Paraguay and Bolivia over a strip of territory in the heart of South America as big as the state of California. This it is understood, is on the programme for consideration by the league.

It is probably not generally known that when the American peace expert, Under Colonel House, collected their data on world problems for use at the Paris peace conference, they included a report on the issues between Bolivia and Paraguay of the possession of the territory, which is called on Bolivian maps the Bolivian Chaco and on Paraguayan maps the Paraguayan Chaco.

The case of the Chaco is known to have been also brought before the conference by the Bolivian peace delegate, Senator Montiel. It was decided, it is understood here, to postpone the question for early settlement by the league.

These problems hold for Bolivia, hemmed in on all sides by other states, the realization of her greatest political and commercial ambition, her own territorial outlet to the sea. Possession of the port of Arica would give her an outlet to the Pacific and, curious as it may seem, possession of the Chaco, or at least a part of it, would give her access to the Atlantic. For the Chaco borders the great River Paraguay, affluent of the River Plate, and on the Chaco side of the river, 2,000 miles from Buenos Aires, is a little port called Bahia Negra, a steamer steams from Bahia Negra to Europe and Europe could take on cargo transported across the northern edge of the Chaco from the Bolivian mines and farms.

But in the year 1858, a few years after Bolivia had lost in the war the Pacific port of Antofagasta and was turning eastward, she was seized by Paraguay and has been in her possession ever since. Paraguay, furthermore, made land allotments in the Chaco, whose unmanned nature was a quibachero forests were beginning to untrace the white man. A mysterious, unexplored land, stretching northward from the Pilcomayo river on the Argentine border and westward from the River Paraguay, into unexplored Bolivian territory, it has not been directly crossed by white man since the days of the Spanish conquerors, since the year 1818 to be exact. Except near the rivers, it is inhabited only by savage Indian tribes, the only white man seen looking forward to its possibilities, which recently have included that of finding petroleum.

It is doubtful if there was any speech at all placing him in nomination at the first democratic national convention. The business of this convention was principally to nominate for the vice presidency.

The convention adopted a resolution concerning in Jackson's "repeated nominations." The resolution was drawn in 65 words.

Previous to that time (from 1860 to 1891) nominations for the Presidency and vice presidency, the well-known reference library says, were by congressional nomination in a caucus consisting of party members of both houses of congress. The last congressional caucus was held in 1824. Jackson opposed the "King Caucus" as it was termed, as undemocratic. In 1828 he was nominated by state legislative caucuses and conventions held in the various states. Following this, popular state conventions grew up and out of them came the national convention.

OPEN WARFARE DEVELOPS OVER PARTY ISSUE

San Francisco, Calif., June 25.—Open warfare over prohibition, the Irish question and other troublesome issues of the democratic platform began today in a stormy session of the party caucus in private the leaders continued their negotiations for a settlement to keep the hostilities from spreading later to the door of the convention itself.

Tonight the platform sub-committee had not yet begun actual preparation of the party's declaration of principles and there were no surface indications that their task had been made any simpler by the day's public arguments or private consultations.

A momentary defeat was administered the Bryan dry legions by full platform committee when parliamentary maneuvering for position on the speaker's list was decided in favor of the wis by a vote of twenty-seven to twenty-five. The general inclination, however, was to discount the significance of the vote which was taken to decide which side should speak first.

In the skirmish both wets and dries argued that their opponents were trying to re-open the prohibition issue and therefore should promise the same first. When the dries were forced to go ahead, Mr. Bryan took charge of the time allotted to that side, but divided all of it among other speakers representing the anti-temperance league, church associations and other prohibition organizations.

For the wets, W. Bourke Cockran of New York was the chief spokesman during a debate in which Mr. Bryan was called upon to explain his connections with the anti-temperance league. He denied that he ever had received compensation from the league, except for "four months of last year, for certain public speeches."

Meriden.—Many people are interesting themselves in the case of Theodore Rehm, who recently finished his course at the local high school. This young man has worked his way through the school, working part time and studying at times, but was not graduated, because had not taken military training.
