

ARBITRATION IN PLACE OF LAW SUITS

Chicago, July 28.—Avoidance of business law suits in favor of arbitration is urged on local business men by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The association has arranged for commercial arbitration under the state law and has designated a committee to promote it.

"If you have any commercial disputes in your business, you can avoid the many disadvantages of court action by using the facilities of the Chicago Association of Commerce for commercial arbitration. You will thus obviate undesirable publicity, delay, expense, animosity and the danger of having your matter determined by a jury unfamiliar with your line.

"An Illinois statute on arbitration and awards provides for commercial trade suits. The rules of the Chicago Association of Commerce for the conduct of arbitrations, under this statute, have been approved by the superior court of Cook county and by the municipal court of the city of Chicago.

"Commercial arbitration combines an old method of determining questions of fact with a standard procedure or impairment of legal rights but provides for the determination of facts before an arbitrator having ample power and competence and if points of law arise in the evidence these alone are submitted to a court. That necessity seldom arises.

"Arbitration is mutual and voluntary, and may be conducted either with or without legal counsel, as agreed. Controversies in the Chicago Board of Trade and in the Building Contractors' Association of Chicago are satisfactorily concluded by arbitration. About 140 cases in other lines of business have been settled in this manner during the last two years. In England, 94 per cent of all commercial disputes—domestic, import and export—are settled by arbitration.

"The Chicago Association of Commerce is urging the use of commercial arbitration or of commercial trade courts for the benefit of its members and in the public interest of the city as a whole. During the year 1919 there were 52,000 civil cases filed in the municipal courts of Chicago, to say nothing of the county courts. Think of the possible relief to these courts. Think of the economy and the avoidance of costly delays to individuals if the majority of these cases were disposed of elsewhere in a simple way.

"The association will arrange for arbitration in any case on request, will supply forms of submission to arbitration with the law printed on the back of the form, will furnish copies of its rules for arbitration and in many lines of business is prepared to suggest the names of arbitrators expertly qualified in their respective fields.

"In order to provide for arbitration, the association submit a standard clause agreeing to arbitrate in case of dispute, such clauses to be inserted in contracts and in applications for credit.

JEWETT CITY

A number in town have received the handsome David Hale Fanning Acknowledgment booklet, which has been issued in honor of Mr. Fanning's ninetieth birthday, as noted in the Norwich news Thursday.

As a philanthropic benefactor, Jewett City never had another like him, and when those added evidences of his good health and prosperity come, its people rejoice and are glad. In this book are to be seen, among the many hand-sets illustrations, two photographs taken especially for Mr. Fanning by W. H. Brown of this place. One is the title house on Factory Hill where Mr. Fanning was born ninety years ago the fourth of next month. The other is a winter scene at David Hale Fanning park, the soldier's monument dedicated eight years ago, with fitting ceremonies, and St. Mary's church. These include the site, not the house where Mr. Fanning was born but the site of his home when in 1846, at the age of 16, he left Jewett City to seek his fortune.

Among his many other philanthropies in other places there is mention made in the book of those in Jewett City. "The beautiful park is the result, not only of Mr. Fanning's financial assistance, but of much personal effort and thought on his part, given to these projects, in order that they might be worth while and endure.

He has also made recently a substantial money gift to the endowment fund of Slater Library." The book does not speak of several thousands of dollars given to beautify and improve the Jewett City cemetery.

Far from being one of the negligible resources of this vicinity is the humble huckleberry takes a place well up toward the head of berry assets.

Every day about this time of the year, the easily recognized sun bonnets of the berry pickers can be seen almost anywhere, such as the many pastures round about the town. Huckleberrying in Griswold is a sort of cross between a fad and an epidemic, and many there who get it, those who become overtaken by this not altogether unpleasant distemper range from 5 to 80. In corroboration of this statement both extremes of the year limit were seen on the street offering handsome berries for sale Thursday. But not all who called are the chosen ones to return with brimming baskets. The three Larcher sister rose early Thursday morning. Fitted, each one with a 16-quart milk pail and clad in attire as befitting their errand, the trio set forth for the distant berry fields. It must have been the natural elusiveness of the local species of huckleberry. It couldn't have been the desire not to be picked, for berry ever could have been gathered by fairer pickers. However, the return was sad, with empty pails, but a red lips, redder still, kissed by berries on the hill. They ate all they picked.

Jewett City passed a lonesome day Thursday. It was half holiday and one of the finest of the summer. But alas! Those who could enjoy themselves could not. The trolleys that Jewett City depends upon to go or come were not. All sorts of rumors were afloat, such as burned out generators, no coal strike and broken shaft. A straw vote here would find jitter service much of a favorite. This town loves the trolleys and gives them patronage enough to finance a line. They yearn season Chautauque tickets before noon and clear the guarantors of all debit—adv.

A hundred or more of the younger population of the town adorned with Chautauque caps and badges parade the streets of the borough Thursday morning.

City, deacon, and Rev. Joseph H. Comtois of Mousop sub-deacon. The bearers were Solomon Paquette, Albert Paquette, Frank Stanley, Joseph Lalle, Clifford Allard, Theophile Paquette. New London Girls Returns

Miss Mary Antis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Antis, of 79 Montauk avenue, New London, who was missing from home for several days, has returned and there is joy in the Antis family. It seems that the young woman went to Boston to visit her brother, Meyer, an ex-service man. She did not tell her parents of her intentions, because she was afraid that she would not be given permission to make the trip.

She went to Boston alone and when she saw in a Boston paper that her mother was distracted by grief at her absence she and her brother at once came home, arriving Wednesday night.

THE LONGEST DAY

There is a sadness in the longest day,
We feel somehow the year has seen his best;
He seems to look 'round, then make his way,
With shortening breath, down to his snow-wrapped rest.
But 'tis not so—his best is yet to be,
When his child, Autumn, shall with gifts abound,
And when, at happy Yuletide, we shall see
His snow white head with wreaths of holly crowned.
Then tell me not that life's best part is gone,
Because the high noon of the day is here;
There is a beauty in the twilight deep
One has not felt at any hour since dawn,
And what is there for tired man to fear
When night comes in with stars and dreams and sleep?
