Authority to sell the stocks and bonds is also given by the court. Under orders from the court the New Haven railroad is prohibited from purchasing

PUTNAM

Deacon Charles C. Brown, 77, for many years a resident of Putnam and Thompson, is dead at a home on Kings street. While he had been in failing health for some years he was up and around until about seven weeks ago. He had retired from active work having been a farmer all his life.

Mr. Brown was born in Thompson, November 24th, 1842, the son of Lemuel and Phoebe Hall Brown. He attended the school in Thompson now the Sawyer District school of Putnam. He finished his education under the tutoring of an uncle in Vermont.

Mr. Brown went west in 1885 and located in Kansas. His wife died in 1893 and in 1894 he returned to Putnam. Mr. Brown was three times married. His first wife was Miss Sarah Terrill of Vermont, whom he married in 1866. She died in 1882. The following year he married Miss Emma Fenn of Putnam, who died about five years later. His third marriage was with Miss Ella E. Waterman of Providence, who survived him.

Mr. Brown had his home with his uncle since 1880 and has been a son to him. During the later years it has been Mr. Brown's custom to spend the winters in the north.

Mr. Brown was for years a member of the Second Congregational church and was a deacon and for some time superintendent of the Sunday school. When he came to Putnam he became a member of the Second Congregational church and served as deacon. He was an ardent advocate of temperance and active in the prohibition cause, although he voted the republican ticket. A large number of unknown origin that was discovered at three o'clock Friday morning totally destroyed the two story frame building next to the Pomfret post office occupied by Leon Allard as a general store. The building and stock were a total loss, estimated at $15,000, only partially covered by insurance. Miss Helen Byrnes, daughter of the postmistress, was awakened by a light in the back room. She looked from the window and saw flames bursting from the second story of the next building. She quickly gave the alarm. There is no fire department in Pomfret but a bucket brigade was rapidly formed. This was ineffective and the fire department in Putnam was notified and a truck responded. By the time the Putnam department arrived the building was a mass of flames and nothing could be done except to protect nearby buildings.

Mr. Allard, proprietor of the store, and his wife were in Providence. Joseph Allard, father of the proprietor, locked the store for a few days about ten o'clock. There was no fire in the building and everything appeared to be all right at that time. In the second story were thousands of dollars worth of general merchandise, automobile tires and accessories. Mr. Allard remembers that there were several cases of matches stored there and thinks that possibly rats were responsible for the blaze. This is the only solution offered as to how the fire could have started. Without means of fighting fire had there been a high wind there might have been a greater loss as the Allard store is surrounded by several other wooden structures, including the post office and the large store of Smith Brothers. The building was owned by Richard Clemens, the village blacksmith. Mr. Allard has occupied it for the past six years. He states that he will erect some kind of a structure immediately, to take care of his trade.

Following the completion of their work, the registrars of voters, Hermon G. Carver and George Fotvin, announce that 74 names have been added to the caucus lists. Of these 51 were male republicans and 19 female republicans. A total of four new names were added to the democratic list. When asked if many voters were taking political faith and asked to be transferred from one party to the other the registrars said, "A few." These they said were transferred from the democratic to the republican list.

It is announced by Health Officer Peter A. Gardner, that the samples of city water he sent to the state laboratory, at the request of members of the state board of health, have been analyzed and reported to be suitable for drinking purposes. A large crowd gathered on the board came through Putnam and went to Roseland lake, the source of the city's water supply. It was on one of the warmest days and the lake was very warm. Following this visit the request for samples of the water were made. The samples were taken at the pumping station at Harrisville. The water sent for analysis had run through the filter beds. It is believed that the samples were made by citizens that persons were bathing in Roseland and that a request was made to have the matter investigated. In all probability this only bathing place will not be closed, this year at least.

All over this little northeast corner of the Nunez state and clear over into the Bay state, in Southbridge and Webster, to be exact, the dried-in-the-wool bass fish are to be had. The fish are to be had in the coming of the Boston Americans to Grosvenordale for an exhibition game Sunday afternoon. And Manager Melborn guarantees that it is in the Red Sox first string side out including Karr, Walters, McInnes, McNally, Foster, Vitt, Harry Hooper, Shantz and Menosky. Manager Tom will of course strengthen up a little and will have either Reiser of Pittsfield or Dolan of Portland, Me., on the bench to succeed Davies should it be necessary to take him out at any stage of the game. The North Grosvenordale grounds will see the largest crowd in their history if the day proves pleasant. For miles around the fans will gather and arrangements are being made to handle several thousand spectators. While big leagues have been seen from time to time, Babe Ruth and the Cubs for instance, in Putnam and hereabouts, this is the first time that a major league aggregation as a unit has ever invaded this semi-rural district. They will find a great reception awaiting them and will also find that Manager McDermott has assembled a base ball team that will make them go their paces.

The governors of the Putnam County Club have voted to plop up, extend and reseed the putting green near the club house. In the meantime the women voters will use the ninth green and will have full right of way every Friday afternoon. It has been suggested that driving and approaching matches should be added to the putting matches and prizes for these new features will be provided by interested club members. The July ringer contest was won by Ernest C. Morse with a score of 35 for the best selected nine holes. This score is a below par score. Morse will hold the silver cup until next player turns in a lower best score. The committee is arranging for Labor Day and a match is under consideration. The captains of two teams of all Putnam players will be interested here. In the announcement from Webster that September 15th, Harry L. Nado, executive secretary of the Webster-Dudley Chamber of Commerce, will hold his duties with that organization, where he has been the past three years.

Mr. Nado lived in Putnam for a number of years. He was at the time a clerk at the Putnam Inn. Later he went to Worcester, where he was connected with the advertising department and later with the circulation department of a morning newspaper.

Webster where he has since held the office from which he now resigns to accept a similar one in Greenwich, this state. The change is an advancement. It is in a larger city, at a larger salary, and carries with it head of a credit department that the chamber of commerce of Greenwich maintains.

Mr. Nado is a graduate of Killington high school, Danielson, class of 1907, the Alexander Hamilton Institute, and the American City Bureau summer school, attending the last named school for secretaries a year ago that he might amplify his knowledge of this work. Mr. Nado married a Putnam girl, Miss Jane Donovan. They have two children. The family will move to Greenwich where Mr. Nado has been to confer with officials of the association and to look over the field.

The Ballards, one of the pioneer families in this section of the state, held the annual reunion Thursday at Nichols' grove, West Thompson, Ballards from far and near and of all ages gathered in the pines for a picnic luncheon. There was singing, games and a general good time. Miss Ruth Child of Putnam was elected chairman for next year. The history for the year as read by Pearl M. Gifford, of Quinebaug, follows: "Possibly at no time in the history of these reunions has their significance been more fully brought before us than now. A reunion, and especially of the many branches of a large family, does and should mean something more than a picnic. We have experienced in the past just past, and the few preceding it, conditions which are seldom witnessed in one generation. The departure of some and the advent of new-comers to take their places put upon us all a responsibility in that these reunions and the better binding of family ties may exert an influence that may lead these new-comers to pur and upright living." The historians then reported 2 births, 5 marriages and 4 deaths during the year.
