MILK PRODUCERS WILL GET 10 CENTS MORE PER CAN The milk question which again has become an issue between the producers and handlers in Boston and Providence has been temporarily settled by the latter giving the producers of eastern Connecticut ten cents per can advance. The producers wanted 20 cents but for September will accept half that figure. A demand for another advance is expected to be made before October 1. The increase was asked for because of advance in freight rates on milk cans and feed, which are reflected in the price that producers have to pay. THEATRES TO BOOST THEIR ADMISSION PRICES The price of theatre admissions will advance within the next few weeks. It is practically an assured thing as one theatre manager stated Tuesday evening that the increased cost of production will advance the price. The reason for this advance is due to the increase in wages of the orchestra and motion picture operators and the rise in price of the rental of the pictures themselves. Within a short time the musicians have been granted a 25 per cent. raise, as have the operators. The price of rental for pictures for the coming season is to be advanced and in all probability will bring the cost of feature productions to three times as much as they were a few years ago. However, with this increase in prices will not be advanced as much as they have been in other cities. In New London the prices were recently advanced. It is the opinion of the local manager that the local theatres would try to make the raise within the five-cent limit. This limit will just about cover the increased cost of production. The increase in prices stands a cut in the quality of the shows.

STATE HEALTH DEPT. WANTS SCHOOL CHILDREN VACCINATED

School committees in every town in Connecticut are receiving a circular letter from the state department of health, which urges the school committees to have school children vaccinated prior to their entering school. In this way the letter states the school authorities have it in their power to raise a barrier against smallpox. This department and the state board of education are co-operating to prevent smallpox from gaining a foothold in Connecticut. Smallpox is increasing in the United States. The proper time to protect the community against disease is before the disease strikes. Many smallpox outbreaks have occurred because of the large number of susceptible school children. It is the close association of children during their recreation hours that spreads contagious disease. The recent increase in smallpox cases in the United States has attracted the attention of health officers throughout the country. Smallpox in the United States: 1916 15,450 cases (23 states), 48 deaths (29 states); 1917 45,137 cases (37 states), 237 deaths (28 states); 1918 65,819 cases (45 states), 245 deaths (27 states); 1919 statistics that are available show a further increase. (Statistics from Annual Report of Surgeon General, U. S. P. H. S., for 1917, 1918, and 1919.) Epidemics of smallpox in communities are prevented by the immunity conferred by vaccination of each individual, particularly the school children. The revised laws of 1918 of the General Statutes of Connecticut (Section 534) read as follows: "The board of school officers, town school committee, or board of education may require every child to be vaccinated before being permitted to attend a public school under its jurisdiction. If the parents or guardians of any child are unable to pay for such vaccination, the expense thereof shall, on the recommendation of said board or committee, be paid by the town. Said board or committee may exclude from any school under its supervision all children under five years of age whenever in its judgment the interest of such school will be thereby promoted." Thus the school authorities have the power in their hands to raise a barrier against smallpox by vaccinating all children prior to their entering school and preventing an epidemic among the pupils. Vaccination is the proper health method. Disinfectant and death follow epidemics. This department would greatly appreciate receiving the names of all children of school age in your schools and the number who have been vaccinated. If the exact number is unknown, give the approximate number. Smallpox vaccine is furnished through all local health officers in Connecticut by the state department of health.
