To DISCONTINUE FALLS FIRE STATION

At the close of a meeting held Monday night in Chief Howard L. Stanton's office at the Central fire station, the three fire commissioners, Alderman C. V. Pennington, Jr., Councilmen Edward Crooks and N. Eugene Smith, stated that they had reached the unanimous decision to close up the Falls fire station. It is a move for economy and with no impairment of efficiency, nor will it lessen the fire protection for the Falls section of the city, the commissioners declared. Chief Stanton, who presided at the meeting, concurred in this view and said the other commissioners were taking was absolutely the right one.

The discontinuance of the Falls fire station will be made effective about the first of October, but will not mean the discharge of any of the three permanent men now on duty there. Capt. A. D. Lewis will be the other companies of the department on the days when their captains are having their regular days off, while John Nolan and Thomas Kearney will be placed in some of the other companies.

In explanation of their move, the commissioners said they had gone over the situation thoroughly, inspected the house carefully, looked into the condition of the two horses and the general equipment, and considered the changes that had occurred in the district since 1908, when the horse-drawn combination chemical and hose wagon was used at the Falls. The question that came up before them now was whether to buy a new team of horses and spend about $3,000 in the repairs of the fire house. Both would have to be done if the station were to be continued, and they believed it would be better to give up the station and use the money that would be saved in making more efficient the two fighting facilities that the department now has elsewhere.

The two horses, Tom and Jerry, were bought in 1908, when they were said to be six and seven years old, respectively. Twelve years of service makes them now 17 and 18 years old, so that new horses should be secured if a horse-drawn piece of apparatus were to be maintained. As a matter of fact, electric companies at the Falls station has really been out of commission for the last 10 days and could not have answered a call, since one of the horses has been laid up with a sore foot, and it will be 10 days before he can be hitched up again. The district has not been unprotected, however, because of the motor apparatus brought down, which frequently can get to a box to answer a call in the Falls district before the horse-drawn apparatus can reach the box.

As to the equipment at the Falls station, the commissioners said that the harness is old, though good care has been taken of it, the exercise wagon, which has necessarily been kept out of doors, is about ready to fall down, the combination chemical and hose wagon, which was built in 1908, is pretty much dilapidated. As for the fire station, this was never intended as a place where horses would be housed. It was built in 1867 for a volunteer station, and in 1908, when the horse-drawn apparatus was placed there, it was primarily for the protection of the Falls mill. Now the mill looks out for its own fire protection and the development of the residence building in this section of the city has left the Falls station on the wrong side of the district. The center of the district is now at the upper end of Washington street. For a dozen years there have been recommendations made by different fire commissioners, but they have spent all the money as possible on the building, realizing it was foolish to try to repair and modernize the building. It has always been impossible to make sanitary conditions for the men who have spent all the money on the horses. Since the Central Vermont railroad began running their heavy mogul engines the men have felt that some time they might be shaken off their foundations on the railroad track.

The district, the commissioners further pointed out, has very few fires and what there are have been small ones. The center of the district is now at the upper end of Washington street. For a dozen years there have been recommendations made by different fire commissioners, but they have spent all the money as possible on the building, realizing it was foolish to try to repair and modernize the building. It has always been impossible to make sanitary conditions for the men who have spent all the money on the horses. Since the Central Vermont railroad began running their heavy mogul engines the men have felt that some time they might be shaken off their foundations on the railroad track.

Save that which will be made from closing the Falls station include 15 tons of coal this winter, $50 a month for the upkeep of the horses, the expense of a telephone and other incidentals.

AUTOMOBILE STREET SWEEPER READY FOR SERVICE HERE

The Egin automobile street sweeper, which was ordered several months ago by the public works committee, has arrived for the use of the street department and was given its first trial on the streets Monday.

The sweeper parts arrived here several days ago and the machine was set up at the city barn to await the arrival of an instructor from the factory. He came Monday and Street Commissioner E. F. Feltwell and him, with the sweeper out with men of the street department for instruction in how to run it. As soon as the men have learned the operation of the machine, the public works committee will have it put into use at once. According to the tentative schedule which he has outlined it would be put on the brick and block paving in the business center of the city in the early morning and on the outlying streets later in the day. It can do more work and do it more quickly than the old method by man-power.

The sweeper carries a water tank, watering and rolling the street at the same time as it sweeps. The water is sprained from four nozzles in front of the roller, while a big circular revolving brush does the sweeping, the dust being kept down by the sprinkling in front of the sweeper.

John Kennedy.

Of the death of John Kennedy, father of Rev. William H. Kennedy, of St. Mary's church, Greenville, which occurred in Derby, Tuesday, last, the Derby correspondent of the Ansonia Sentinel, writes:

John Kennedy, a widely known resident of this city, died yesterday at his home at 59 Cottage street. Mr. Kennedy had been in failing health for some time, but his death came as a surprise to a wide circle of friends in this and the adjoining cities.

Mr. Kennedy was a native of Ireland and came to Derby some 27 years ago. He came here from Southington with the old Peck, Stowe & Wilcox company by whom he was employed and later he was engaged with the Birmingham Brass company. Until some time ago, when illness caused him to forego his duties, he was connected with the S. O. & C. company in Ansonia. He was a charter member of Paugusset club, Knights of Columbus and was also affiliated with Derby cent, Knights of the Maccoo.

Besides his wife, he is survived by ten children: They are Dr. Paul B. Kennedy, of this city, Rev. John Kennedy of Bethel, Rev. William H. Kennedy, of Norwich and Sylvester, Edward and Peter M. Kennedy, of Derby, and Misses Mary, Catherine, Agnes and Josephine Kennedy, all of this city.

The funeral was held Friday with a requiem mass in St. Mary's church at 9:30 o'clock. Burial was in Mt. St. Peter's cemetery, Derby.

Mrs. Sarah Frances Bartlett

The death of Mrs. Sarah Frances Bartlett, who has resided at the Johnson Home, Norwich town, occurred Monday morning at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone, Stonington, after a brief illness of pneumonia. She went there ten days ago for a visit. Mrs. Bartlett was born in Lebanon, Oct. 20, 1846, the daughter of Ezekiel Ripley and Sarah Tucker Bartlett. She came to Norwich town with her father in early life, after his death she was with friends, coming to the Johnson Home in 1908. She was a faithful member of the First Congregational church, interested in all its various forms of work. Her Christian life was shown in many acts of kindness. Many friends were here who will regret her passing. There are no near relatives, she being the last of her immediate family.

Mrs. Frank H. Allen.

After a lingering illness which had confined her to the house for the last 17 months the death of Frances L., wife of Frank H. Allen, occurred Monday evening at 7:30 at her home at 90 Williams street.

Mrs. Allen was born in Putnam Aug. 10, 1851, the daughter of Edwin and Eunice Tripp, her father being a prominent druggist there for many years. She was married to Frank H. Allen in Putnam on Oct. 15, 1869. Practically all their married life was spent in this city where Mr. Allen was a well known patent attorney. Seven years ago Mr. Allen located his business in Boston, but Mrs. Allen remained, residing here in order to care for her aged mother, whose death occurred during the past year.

Mrs. Allen was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and was active in many lines of church work before her illness incapacitated her. She was of kindly disposition, a helpful friend and neighbor, and a loving and faithful wife. She is survived only by her husband.

Obituary.

John R. Robinson died last Friday night at the state hospital where he had been ill for three years. He was born in Sweden fifty years ago and spent most of his life in this city. He is survived by two brothers, Gustavo and Robert of Waltham, Mass., and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Greenwood of Taftville and Mrs. Fred Dawson of New Bedford. The funeral services are to be held from the home of his sister in Taftville.

Mr. Robinson was for years a well known waiter at the Wauregan house and had also worked in New London. He was interested in baseball and other athletic sports and in politics, was familiarly known as "Jack the Ripper" and was popular among his many friends.

Removing Ugly Hairs— Entirely New Method

(Actually Removes the Roots)

The question is often asked whether a really permanent and effective hair-remover exists, and the answer has heretofore been very unsatisfactory. Fortunately, there's a new and remarkable process that really removes every hair, entire root and all! It is different from and far better than electricity, depilatories, the razor, or any other method. If you'd like to try this new hair-remover, please contact your drugist, follow the simple instructions—and with your own eyes see the hair roots come out! Roots are removed quickly, easily, leaving the skin perfectly smooth and hair-free. Phisilactin is non-irritating, odorless, and so harmless you could eat it!

Following a brief illness Mary Jane Underwood, widow of Ambrose Higgins, died Sept. 18 in a private hospital.

POETRY

THE FELLOW WHO FIGHTS ALONE.
The fellow who fights the fight alone,
With never a word of cheer,
With never a friend his help to lend,
With never a comrade near—
He has but one of a shalwar hand,
And a heart not given to man—
He struggles for life, and more than life,
The fellow who fights alone!

THE FELLOW WHO FIGHTS ALONE.
The fellow who fights the world alone,
With never a father's smile,
With never a mother's kindly tone,
His sorrowful hours to grieve,
Who looks at the dawn of day
And battles till night is down,
Must needs be strong, for the fight is long,
The fellow who fights alone!

THE FELLOW WHO FIGHTS ALONE.
God bless the fellow who fights alone,
And arm his soul with cheer,
Till safely out of the battle rout,
Who conquers comes at length;
The fame of his fight is blown;
Till friend and foe in the victor know,
The fellow who fights alone!
—Western Veteran.

THIS LITTLE OLD SCHOOLHOUSE.

This little old schoolhouse with that shingled roof,
Is taught by a teacher we never behold,
It has but one knowledge the sum and the proof,
The leaves of its books are of crimson and gold.

To millions of pupils it offers a course,
And none remark that aged and none are too young,
It tells them of marvols, the fountain and
And speaks unto each in his own mother tongue.

And yet despite all they will leave it too quick,
This foolishly quit and hold them aloof,
And bridle for false and hollow hopes,
This little old schoolhouse with that shingled roof,
—McLanburgh Wilson, in New York Star and Herald.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"The next move," remarked Mr. Quickrich, "is to invite the police in to investigate our new schoolhouse."
"Aren't you afraid they'll find out the way the trick is done?"
"We'll have to take a chance on that. In the meantime we need the publicity."
—Washington Star.

The author had stated his case in a few halting sentences. But have you achieved any success in life?" asked the adored one of the speaker.
"Oh, boy! Have I!" blurted the happy youth. "Why didn't I make it clear to you that your daughter has promised to be my wife?"—Buffalo Express.

"Yes, but why is a wonderful hostess?"
"She's paid Jones, who has a week old car, with Mrs. Smythe, who has a six-month-old baby."—Life.

"The Graham has engaged a social secretary."
"But I got even with her," said Mrs. Twoible.
"How so, my dear?"
"I passed the word around that she had a social secretary because she doesn't know how to spell."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A high school student wanted to talk military tactics and reported to the sergeant in charge. The student had a slight impediment in his speech.
"Have you ever had any drill?" the sergeant asked.
"No, sir, except a M-m-may-pole dance!" he answered.—Houston Post.

"Did you hear about the defeat of Mr. Skinner's tombstone?" asked Mr. Jones a few days after the funeral of that noted expert of industry.
"No, what was it?" inquired his neighbor, curiously.
"Some one added the word 'friends' to the epitaph."
"He did his best."—London Trib.

"Did you accept either of those men who proposed to you?" asked her friend.
"No; papa wouldn't let me."
"But why?"
"He said he didn't know anything about Mr. Gibson and he knew much about Mr. Flight."—Boston Transcript.

Mr. Joggles was an argumentative local politician, and was crushing an opponent's case.
"Gentlemen," he said, "you may say with Councilor Smith, that this is a case of 'his side or the other side of the other. But I say no-such-a-thing phasis—no; it is nothing of the sort. I is exactly the contrary."—Edinburg Scotsman.
