What is Going On Tonight Motion Pictures at Broad Theatre. Feature Motion Pictures at Davis Theatre. Union Lodge, No. 11, L. O. O. F. meets in 605 Willow Hill. Thames Union, No. 17, U. B. of C. and J. of A. meets in Carpenter's Hall. Third Co., C. A. C. U. C. N. G., meets at State Army.

ANNOUNCEMENTS Will Discuss Boys' Work. There will be a meeting tonight (Monday) at the Y. M. C. A. of the night session in boys' work in the church. J. B. Jordan of the Central Baptist church will tell of the work that is being done there. There will be a demonstration of a special meeting and a discussion of the work.

Davis Theatre Again Elmer Hammerstein moves to a Seaside Picture, and if she had never appeared on the screen before her artistic work in "The Daughter of a Fool" had shown that Davis Theatre would immediately stamp her as being a star of exceptional brilliance.

Miss Hammerstein, as the heroine of wealthy Miss Reynolds' story appears as a girl who has struggled hard to keep her father's fortune which has been foolishly squandered by a careless and frivolous mother. As a last resort she marries a wealthy man thinking thus to be in a position to aid her family, but when she discovers that the man has married her only in order to make her life miserable and to revenge on her mother, who had once slighted him.

The outcome of this strange situation is shown in a most interesting and novel manner, which offers great emotional opportunities. After playing on the legitimate stage for several months, beautiful Billie Burke the popular Paramount Actress, appeared with unusual success in her latest photoplay, "Always Good Providence," at the Davis theatre. The picture was warmly applauded.

Miss Burke's comedy powers were never shown to better advantage than in the role of "Prudence" Thorne, a daring society girl who prefers flying to her mother's heart's attentions and is brought to her senses through a kidnapping arranged by him.

The flying scenes are quite interesting and Miss Burke wears a feather and bonnet in France, and the trousers and helmet of a French ace. A Paramount magazine makes up the remainder of the bill.

Broad Theatre "The Saphrod" produced last night at the Broad theatre with William H. Crane and Buster Keaton as co-stars, proved to be the biggest event of the week. Here with a screen play that carried with it the very breath of life. The characters were developed as real human beings far removed from the convention types of the screen. "The Saphrod" was a study of the lives of the characters, and it grew with that queer mixture of comedy and tragedy that is an essential part of human experience.

The story concerns itself with New York society and the stock exchange. In "The Saphrod" William H. Crane as Nicholas Van Alstyne plays the role created in "The Saphrod" and created in "The New Hebrides." It is a role that Crane has made so distinctively his own that it hard to think of any other actor playing it. The rich, swiftness of the great "Hoffman" naturally seen at his highest degree of perfection. Buster Keaton, as Bertie "The Saphrod" grows continuously funnier, but the fun comes from the humanity of the character, not from the slapstick trickery which Mr. Keaton gained fame.

Other members of the cast include Irving Cummings, Edward Connelly, Odette Tyler and Carl Hillary. "The Saphrod" will be the feature again today and Tuesday
