In statements said to have been made tonight to Assistant District Attorney Hansman, Jeremiah Bohan, a prohibition enforcement agent, surrendered and, it is alleged, admitted shooting the "Monk."

Bohan said he suggested they make a "pot" for the waiter, but Eastman thought the law was against it and refused.

When the party finally decided with Bohan, and left the cafe, the revenue agent said Eastman grabbed him by the arm and said: "You beg me rate ever create you, this prohibition job."

At this juncture, Bohan declared, he thought Eastman meant trouble and he began firing.

SUPREME COURT DECISION REVERSE TO LABOR UNIONS

Reversed Lower Court Decree in Case of Duplex Printing Press Co. Against Business Agents of the International Association of Machinists—Finding Holds Labor Unions or Their Members Accountable Under Anti-Trust Laws When They Depart From Their "Normal and Legitimate Objects"—Court Was Divided, Six to Three, in Decision.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Labor unions or their members are accountable under the anti-trust laws where they depart from their "normal and legitimate objects and engage in an actual combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade, and by no fair or permissible construction can it be taken as authorizing any activity otherwise unlawful."

The court reversed lower court decree dismissing the application of the Duplex Printing Press Company of Battle Creek, Michigan, for an injunction restraining Small Bearing and William Bramley, as business agents of the International Association of Machinists from continuing a so-called secondary boycott.

This was described by the court as "a combination merely to refrain from dealing with complainant, or to refuse or to refuse to persuade complainants customers to refrain (primary boycott), but to exercise coercive pressure upon such customers and prospective employees in order to cause them to withdraw patronage from complainant through fear of loss or damage to themselves should they deal with it."
