OBITUARY. John B. Doyle. A telephone message from Hartford Tuesday announced the death of John B. Doyle at 2:20 Tuesday morning following a long illness in the city.

When a young man Mr. Doyle, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle of Norwich, learned the trade of cabinet maker, later he was engaged in the furniture and undertaking business being Rev. Richard E. Shortell, now of Ridgefield, Miss Murphy was the daughter of John Murphy, the contractor who built the Norwich reservoir and who also occupied the large brick house at the corner of Maple and Ann streets. Her brother was the late Attorney John W. Murphy.

Mr. Doyle survives her husband, with three daughters, Misses Eleanor, Marguerite M. and Katherine Doyle of Hartford. A son, John B. Doyle, died in Hartford Feb. 1917 at the age of 18 and is buried in Norwich. Mr. Doyle also leaves a sister, Miss Mary Doyle, of Norwich.

Hartford, as in Norwich, Mr. Doyle proved a far-sighted, efficient business man and shrewd investor in real estate, and had been successful and prosperous. He retained his interest in Norwich and was most happy to welcome to his Hartford home his friends and acquaintances from this city.

Burial is to be in Norwich in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. Only a few days ago Mr. and Mrs. Doyle had issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Marguerite M., and George H. Callahan, which was to take place in St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, Tuesday morning, April 13th, at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Louise F. Ogden, widow of Charles Ogden, and a well known summer resident at New London, was last week at her home, 13 East 79th street, in New York city. She is survived by one son, Charles W., and a daughter, Miss Mary Ogden, both of New York.

During the seasons of 1917, 1918 and 1919, Mrs. Ogden occupied the Gurbie house in Pequot avenue. She entertained extensively and was one of the highly esteemed members of the summer colony.

Henry Clifford Taylor. The many friends of Henry Clifford Taylor were saddened to hear of his sudden death, resulting from an accident Sunday, near the Jordan Cemetery, Waterbury, at the age of 18, on Dec. 16, 1918, the son of Mrs. Nettie Smart and the late James W. Taylor.

On April 17, 1920, Mr. Taylor was married in Norwich to Miss Margaret Olsen of New York by Rev. E. W. He is survived by his wife and mother and a brother Clarence of Norwich. Mr. Taylor was employed as a line-man for the Connecticut Electric Power Company and was held in high esteem by his fellow employees. He was well known in this vicinity for his good nature and made friends easily.

WEDDINGS. Miss Catherine F. Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Boyle of Waterbury, and John W. Herd of New London, were married at St. Joseph's church, New London at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Rev. William C. Pittsness officiating. Miss Margaret Boyle, sister of the bride and Thomas Hendry, were the attendants.

Following the marriage ceremony a nuptial high mass was celebrated, after which a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. John Caird, 381 Bank street, New London. Later Mr. and Mrs. Herd left on their honeymoon, at the termination of which they will return to New York, where the groom is employed.

Greenblatt-Glatky. Martin Greenblatt, formerly of New London and well known in Norwich was married Sunday in Milford, Conn. to Miss Dorothy Glatky of Milford, by Rabbi Nathan Fletcher. The bride was attended by her sister Miss Blanche Glatky, as bridesmaid and Bernard L. Gold of New London was best man. Guests were present from New London, Norwich, New York, Providence and other cities.

Mr. Greenblatt is connected with the firm of Glatky Furniture Co. going to Milford from New London about two years ago. Miss Glatky was bookkeeper for the firm for a number of years.

CHARGE POLLUTION OF CITY WATER TO WOOD-CUTTING OPERATIONS

Pollution of this city's water supply, alleged to have been occasioned through the wood-cutting operations of Ignatius J. Murphy and Walter W. Lang on the reservoir watershed, has been made the ground for a new count that has recently been filed in the Superior court by the city against Mr. Murphy and Mr. Lang.

The complaint reads as follows: "As a result of and following the acts and omissions of said Murphy and Lang after the contract marked Exhibit A had been signed and delivered, the plaintiffs' water supply has been polluted by the discharge of sawdust and other deleterious matter into the water supply of the city of Norwich, and by the commission of public health for the state of Connecticut, been condemned as unfit for drinking and for other domestic uses."

Asked about the situation with regard to the city water, Mayor H. M. Leroy said that the city had been ordered by the state department of health to have chlorinating plants installed at Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs by the first of August, but that the city had not yet received the necessary contracts for the water with coll bacilli, which is the typhoid germ.

Information has recently been received from Director Jenkins of the New England Fertilizer Association that certain practices are being carried out through the state of Connecticut that farmers and other users of fertilizer should be advised of.

There is every opportunity to invest in the stock of fertilizer companies with established business and reputation, if anyone considers it a profitable investment, after careful study of their financial statements, but to buy on a string of stock attached involving serious responsibility is more than unwise; it is foolish.

COURT FARM BUREAU FOR MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The New London County Farm Bureau is making plans to launch an intensive membership drive in the near future. Arrangements are now being completed for putting across the $10 farm membership which is a new idea local to O. E. Westcott, director of organization of the Connecticut Farm Bureau Federation, is in Norwich and is assisting the farm bureau directors in preparing the campaign to expedite the means for remedying the situation.

The chlorinating plant for treating the water from Stony Brook will be located at the master house on the pipe line from that reservoir, but the plant at Fairview will be directly at the reservoir. Each will have to be set up in duplicate, so that in case there is a breakdown there will be no interruption of the treatment of the water. It is estimated the cost will be $5,000.

The chlorinating treatment is applied as the water passes from the reservoir into the big supply mains and has no effect upon the taste or color of the water but renders the typhoid germ harmless.

Since the suit by the city of Norwich was started against Mr. Murphy and Mr. Lang over the contract for cutting off the dead chestnut trees that had been killed by blight, an amended complaint has been filed. Among the charges made was that the city had been ordered by the state department of health to have chlorinating plants installed at Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs by the first of August, but that the city had not yet received the necessary contracts for the water with coll bacilli, which is the typhoid germ.
