Judge Chester W. Barrows has handed down his verdict in the case of State vs. Frank W. Coy Estate company et al., which was heard before Judge Barrows at the February session of the superior court for Washington county, in session at Westerly.

The court holds that the bill of complaint should be dismissed, unless the state is prepared to see that the conditions contained in Exhibit A are complied with. The preliminary injunction stands, restraining respondents from interfering with travel upon the new Shore road until the matter has been finally disposed of.

Past Grand Master Thomas McKenna and Grand Marshal Arthur N. Nash were also present. When the meeting opened the lodge room was filled, many persons being present from New London, Norwich, Mystic and Stonington, besides several members of Franklin lodge, No. 29, of Westerly. For some time it has been known to the medical fraternity, heads of hospitals and other organizations whose work is among the sick, that the supply of nurses in the state was not equal to the demand for their services, and that the disparity between supply and demand was steadily increasing.

This condition has led to the formation of the Rhode Island League of Nursing Education, and a general movement to recruit larger classes in the hospitals of the state whose courses qualify the student for registration.

The movement has the endorsement of the governor, mayors of several of the Rhode Island cities, public health officials and physicians, and is receiving the active co-operation of the American Red Cross. James Pendleton, chairman of the Westerly chapter, and Mrs. Frank A. Sherman of the national committee, are the league's representatives in Westerly.

The need of nurses cannot be minimized. Entering classes are invariably smaller than the graduating classes whose places the new students are to eventually fill. Unless the condition is changed by more young women taking up nursing as their life work, the day is not far distant when Rhode Island people will actually suffer for the lack of trained attendants in cases of accident and illness.

The Range That Really Saves

There are two separate ovens—one for coal and one for gas. Both ovens may be used at one time—or either may be used singly. In addition to the two baking ovens, there is a gas broiler oven. There is room on the coal and gas sections, at the top, for NINE large utensils. You can do all of your cooking at one time. You can do it better—with less waste and less work. You have coal for winter, to keep the kitchen warm and comfortable; and gas for summer, to keep the kitchen cool.

The illustration below shows the wonderful pearl grey porcelain enamel finish—so neat and attractive. By simply passing a damp cloth over the surface you are able to clean your range instantly. No more soiled hands, no more dust and smut. It banishes the old time task of blacking the range. You owe it to yourself to enjoy the comfort and convenience of the Gold Medal Glenwood range.
