WOMAN FOUND LYING INSURED ALONGSIDE ROAD

Early Monday evening Mrs. Frances Meyer, an elderly woman residing in the vicinity of Preston Plain, was found lying on the roadside near the Lester Main place on the North Stonington road.

It had not been determined Monday night whether Mrs. Meyer had a fractured skull or not.

From the fact that her shoe and foot were found in the road, very much like the slash that might have been made by a knife, one theory was advanced that there might have been foul play and that the old woman had been knocked down by the road and her shoe put on by her assailant in the belief that she might be carrying money in her shoe.

At an early hour this (Tuesday) morning Mrs. Meyer was still unconscious.

Manufacturers Hear about Taxation

Albert M. Simons, chairman of the board of assessors of Hartford, who addressed the Chamber of Commerce open house meeting here last month on the subject of revaluation of property for the year 1921, spoke here again Monday evening at the largest manufacturing industries of Norwich.

At the dinner at 6 o'clock, daylight saving time, Shepard B. Palmer of the board of assessors of Hartford, who addressed the Chamber of Commerce open house meeting here last month on the subject of revaluation of property for the year 1921, spoke here again Monday evening at the largest manufacturing industries of Norwich.

Mr. Simons said that the revaluation of property for the year 1921, which is being made by the city assessors, is a very important matter and that it is being made in a very fair and equitable manner.

He called attention to the state law which requires that values must be placed upon property for taxation purposes. He said that many towns and cities were law-breakers in this respect, and that the state law was being enforced.

He said that the state law was being enforced in a very fair and equitable manner, and that the city assessors were doing their best to do so.

EVANGELIST GYPSY SMITH

Gypsy Smith, Jr., the evangelist, who completed a series of meetings here in the fall of 1918, has just concluded a month of union revival meetings in Augusta, Ga., which have been highly successful and at the same time very profitable to the great extent that has been used to purchase a new home for Mr. Smith to come back again next year.

On the last Sunday, the evangelist conducted two meetings, the first in the afternoon for negroes when between 1,000 and 1,500 filled the tent and sang with fervor their spiritual songs. After the meetings were over, the evangelist was dismissed and the tent and all the seats around it were filled by the white people for the second service.

In an editorial address to the evangelist, the August Chronicle said in part: "If any one had said to the average Augustan that he would see a man speak here twice next week, he would have been regarded as a madman."

Mr. Smith gave a clerical address at the meeting, and the evangelist spoke of the fact that while the Hartford grand jury has returned a bill of indictment against the people here, it has not done so against the people here.
