

CITY OF CLEVELAND MAY PURCHASE CANTERBURY CLEVELAND HOMESTEAD

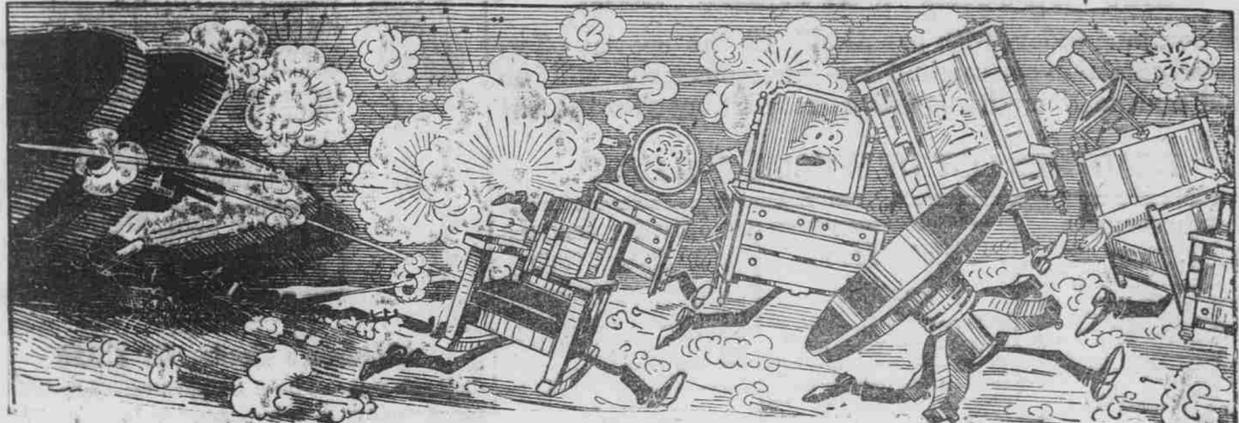

The city of Cleveland, O., may purchase as a permanent memorial to its founder the homestead of Moses Cleveland at Canterbury, Conn. This house is now owned and occupied by Michael Shea, brother of Daniel T. Shea of Norwich.

how a resident of Cleveland, the information that his adopted city was considering this purchase. At a meeting about April 5th of the members of the New England society, the Early Settlers' society and the Sons of the American Revolution the project was considered and a committee was named to see what could be done in the matter. Later in April it was decided to have a delegation from this committee come east and inspect the ancient house, reporting as to the advisability of removing it, what the cost would be, etc. and if possible to have it taken to Cleveland and rebuilt in time for that city's celebration of its 125th anniversary, the coming July 22-Aug. 2.

form in 1820 by the publisher of the first newspaper there, who needed room in his building. Cleveland died in his native town Nov. 18, 1804, and the tablet on the boulder at the old burial place was unveiled on the centennial anniversary of his death. The neglected condition of the forgotten cemetery was discovered by a former Jewett City man, James Johnson, who had left for Cleveland about 1832. During a visit east, about 1835, he chanced to drive past the place with his brother-in-law, T. J. Brown, of Packerville, who directed his attention to the fact that the founder of Cleveland was sleeping under the rough brush and weeds where a flock of sheep was grazing. On his return to Cleveland Mr. Johnson brought the 'name' name was 'abbreviated' to its present

SOLDIERS' AID BILL NOW CARRIES LEGION'S IDEAS

Important concessions to the wishes of the American Legion are made in the substitute for the Buckley estate aid for soldiers bill, reported favorably to the house of representatives by the judiciary committee of the legislature, which will probably come up for action next week.

Mr. Buckley's original bill continued the $2,500,000 fund but in effect provided that the income should not be used to aid ex-service men simply because they were out of employment. The substitute does just that but reads that the income "shall be expended in furnishing food, wearing apparel, medical or surgical aid, care or relief, or in bearing the funeral expenses of soldiers, sailors or marines who are eligible (etc.) or their widows or dependent children under 16 years of age who may be in need of the same because of any disability resulting from such service and there is no person of sufficient ability liable for such support."

The substitute stops with a period after the phrase "in need of the same" and strikes out "because of any disability resulting from such service." It takes care of the situation for support by a relative by writing into the bill in another place "No person shall be refused aid under the provisions of this section for the reason that he has a relative liable for his support under the laws of the state, and in any case in which aid is furnished hereunder to anyone for whose support a relative is liable under the provisions of Section 1659 of the general statutes the comptroller is authorized to proceed against the person so liable in the manner provided in said section, and any money recovered in such action shall be paid into the state treasury."

The $2,500,000 year appropriation for the use of the comptroller in carrying out the provisions of the amended act are left in the substitute bill, although this was opposed by the legion, which had been disbursing the proceeds of the fund without compensation and at a cost said to be about $5,000 for the two years. While the legion's position was appreciated, it is said the committee was confronted with the fact that the best service along this line could not be had for nothing, and while the spirit of the legion's work was commendable there was a lack of proper responsibility and proper accounting in the way the fund had to be disbursed.

While this substitute will in far away from the original bonus bills of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, or even the second choice of the legion for an increase in the state aid fund to $5,000,000, it is probably that the ex-service men will not oppose it very strongly, with the exception of trying to have some changes made in the $1,000 appropriation yearly for disbursement of the fund.

There is one thing to be said in favor of American girls who marry foreign noblemen; they are not mercenary.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BOTH SICK

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Comer, Shenandoah, Va., were both ill. He writes: "Rheumatism and bladder trouble was our trouble. My wife had rheumatism in her arms so she could not use them. She had had no trouble since taking Foley Kidney Pills. I don't have to get up at night so much since taking Foley Kidney Pills, nor have I a weak back." Backache, sore, swollen or stiff muscles or joints, tired, languid feeling—yield quickly to Foley Kidney Pills. Lee & Osgood Co.
