

WESTERLY

An alarm rung in from box 56 in Dixon square at about 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening for a burning automobile attracted crowds from all directions, but most of the spectators arrived too late to see the fire. The car that caught fire was a Buick touring car and bore the Massachusetts license number 119215. In a few seconds the hood was a solid black and cinders of automobiles in the square came running with extinguishers, with which the flames were put out before much damage could be done to the engine. The hood was badly scorched and the motor destroyed. Although the fire trucks arrived before the alarm had finished ringing, the fire was out. It is thought that the blaze was started by a short circuit.

At the meeting held Wednesday evening in the state armory on Dixon street the Western Sanitary corps was reorganized and the outfit was put on a firm basis. Hereafter applicants for membership in the corps will have to pass a street physical and mental test, and those who are members must abide by the rules that were administered at the session Wednesday night.

The officers of the corps, Capt. F. I. Payne, First Lieut. Harold D. Kenyon, Second Lieut. William Mitchell, were sworn into the corps service by Rev. Edmund J. Cleveland, chaplain of Merrill post, No. 15, American Legion. These officers then swore in the sergeants and corporals of the outfit, and the privates were sworn in by First Lieut. Harold D. Kenyon.

Fifty years ago the cross streets of the borough were named by some of the townsmen of the town in a spirit of fun, and have ever since held their names. Broad street was so named because it was wider than most of the others. High street because it was high in front of the Wadawanuck hotel was the highest part and sloped both ways, east and west, and toward the south Pearl street was from a girls' school that stood there. Great street was the corner street of that time. It swept from Samuel Denison's hill east to the Academy, crossing both Main and Water streets to the water. Along it stood the houses of Mrs. Maria Babcock, John, Silles, Stanton and Giles Smith, with the latter's post surmounted on the front as a memorial of the attack of 1814. Church street was from a colored family that lived on the corner of Water street as it was before the day of Calvary Episcopal church now standing there. Union is a short street uniting Main street and Water street. Harmony had reference to a family that lived on it. The father, when excited, by liquor, was very ill-natured and often would go home drunk and tell about going to his cottage of peace and contentment. Later, people could hear his wife screaming, while her husband dragged her around by the hair of her head and today "Harmony" is no more harmonious than 50 years ago. Wall street, so named, was an account of the high bank wall extending almost the whole way from Main street to Water street and is sometimes nicknamed "Shinbone Alley." Cannon square used to be Town Landing as the farmers brought their stock and produce here to those engaged in the West Indies trade. It was a busy spot in those days and the two old cannons which served to defend Stonington in the war of 1812, were put there. It has been called Cannon Square. Diving street was so called because of being a fine place for the boys to bathe; the boys congregated there in the hot weather for dives into the harbor. This was the last street in the village in 1850.

"I NEVER TOOK ANYTHING IN MY LIFE I GOT SO MUCH GOOD FROM"

FURTHER WONDERFUL TESTIMONY TO THE EXTRA-ORDINARY VIRTUES OF WINCARNIS

The following letter we have received from Mrs. Richard Ford, of 45 Lincoln Avenue Cohoes, New York, will bring encouragement to all those who may be suffering as Mrs. Ford suffered. This lady writes:

"I was very much run-down and feeling real miserable. I caught one cold after another, which kept me coughing and coughing. I was very nervous and irritable. Every little thing set my nerves on edge. My appetite was poor and I wasted down to almost nothing. I was pale and looked simply bloodless."

"I decided to try Wincarnis and it certainly benefited me. I never took anything in my life I got so much good from. It is very strengthening indeed and does certainly help pale and bloodless people."

"I shall always be glad to praise the merits of Wincarnis and if anyone wishes to write me personally I will be glad to answer all questions regarding what it has done for me."

Don't think that Mrs. Ford's case is an unusual one. Wincarnis will positively benefit people who are weak, anemic, nervous or run-down. Just as it helped Mrs. Ford regain strength and vitality, so it will help you.

If only sufferers could read some of the thousands of letters we receive from all parts of the world from people who have been benefited in health by taking Wincarnis, they would not delay another day in giving Wincarnis a thorough trial.

Wincarnis is put up in two sizes—$1.19 and $1.95. It is sold by National Drug Stores, Main and Street, and all other first-class drug stores.

Write for free instructive booklet, "Hundred Per-Cent. Health. How to Obtain It," to Edward Lassere, Inc., Dept. D, 400 West 23rd Street, New York, U. S. Agent for Wincarnis.
