LAWYERS WILL CONFER OVER JITNEY SITUATION This week will see plenty of action in the jitney situation. This (Monday) morning the lawyers there will be a gathering of lawyers from all over the state to map out a concerted program of action against the enforcement of the orders of the public utilities commission. An arrest case being made all over the state as test cases, and as the decision of Judge Keeler will affect all of the 'bums' who have been denied permits, all the lawyers interested in the situation in the state are equally interested in the hearing to be held at New Haven Tuesday. At the meeting Monday they will take action looking in cooperation in the efforts in the courts for the protection of the interests of the jitney men. The hearing on Tuesday will be one of the most important ever held in New Haven, for to a great extent it will determine the immediate future and perhaps the remote future of the street transportation policy of the state. Judge Keeler's decision will be a principal question of whether or not the public utilities board has the right to deny to jitney men the use of the streets for their passenger buses. OBITUARY Calvin Wilcox. The death of Calvin Wilcox occurred about noon Saturday in Shelville, following an illness since last November with cystitis and complications. He had been living in a house he owned in Lisbon up to about three weeks ago when it was burned and he was removed to his home in Shelville, this probably hastening his end. He was born in Griswold, Sept. 15, 1845, the son of Thomas Wilcox and Watson Rugg. His father coming from West Greenwich, R. I., and his mother from Leominster, Mass. The father died when the boy was 15 years old and he worked out for farmers to pass upon 21, then buying the old homestead and freeing it from debt. He went into the lumber and real estate business and bought farms in Griswold, Voluntown, Plainfield, Preston and Ledyard. Mr. Wilcox married on Sept. 11, 1855 Martha Rosa Wilcox only daughter of Lieut. David B. Wilcox of Redney, Jefferson county, Mississippi. After residing in Griswold until 1889, they moved to Patchogue and later to Plainfield where they lived for six years. From Plainfield they moved to Lisbon and after five years' residence there went to Shelville. He is survived by his wife and five children—Miss Rosa Salome Wilcox, who is a teacher at the Norwich Free Academy, Calvin Eugene Wilcox of Groton, Jesse Randall Wilcox of Raymond, Gustavus Wilcox and Kirk Hammond Wilcox. Mr. Wilcox was of old colonial ancestry. John Rugg, the emigrant ancestor on his mother's side, was in Waterbury, Mass., for a time before going to Lancaster, Mass., where he married Nov. 1, 1684, Martha Prescott, baptized at Sowerby, Halifax parish, England, a daughter of John and Mary Platts Prescott who died Nov. 1, 1835. John Rugg married for his second wife her sister Hannah, who was born after her parents left England probably at the Barbadoes where the Prescotts stayed for a time before sailing for New England. Mr. Wilcox was from the eighth offspring of this union. Daniel Rugg, born in Concord, Mass., Sept. 15, 1678. Daniel's mother was killed at the time of the Indian massacre, Sept. 11, 1689. It is a singular coincidence that Sept. 15, the birthdate of Daniel Rugg, was also the natal date of Mr. Wilcox, and Sept. 11, was the date on which Hannah Prescott Rugg was killed, is also the day of the month on which Mr. Wilcox was married. Daniel Rugg married Elizabeth Priest whose mother was a Garfield. Mr. Wilcox was from the same issue of the union. Isaac Rugg, who married Jane Wright of Waterbury, Mass. Their fourth and last child, James, married Polly Raymond. The ninth being John Rugg, the mother of Mr. Wilcox. He had two older brothers, both of whom have died. Noah who was a farmer in Griswold and Gordon who was a book printer in Norwich. Henry T. Frost. Henry T. Frost, for many years a resident of this city, died Friday evening at 541 Asylum street after a long illness. Mr. Frost was well known among the colored people of this city. He is survived by no relatives, as far as known. He was 69 years old. Heavy Rain at Baltic Sunday.
