Ask Yourself Seriously

- Does your present heating method really warm your entire home in extremely cold weather?
- Does it make the air too dry—and fail to circulate the warmth in the healthful way?
- Does it lower the temperature of your family because of uneven or "spotty" heating?
- Does it fail to heat certain rooms?
- Does it burn too much fuel?
- Does it waste fuel by heating your cellar needlessly?
- Does it spoil your cellar as a safe place to store your vegetables or fruits?
- Does it take too long to get your fire started?
- Must you force your fire on cold days?
- Does your fire go out when you try to keep it low in Spring and Fall?
- Is it hard to control and does it overheat the living rooms after it does get started?
- Has wasted heat and fuel been too expensive?
- Will you be wasting more money by using your present method longer?
- Does it put dust—gas—smoke into your living rooms?
- Does it make extra work to keep the house clean?
- Does it mar the appearance of your living rooms?
- Is it entirely out of sight when not in use and at the same time always ready for use when needed?
- Can you regulate it without making frequent trips to the cellar?
- Must you add fresh fuel too often throughout the day?
- Do you and the family feel safe with it?

IF the condition of your present heating method is such as to suggest the wisdom of replacing it "sometime," would you not be exercising good judgment in at least investigating new systems now?

IF a Round Oak Pipeless Heating System will give you just the service you want—and pay for itself over and over in the savings it would make for you—you owe it to yourself to at least know about the Round Oak, don't you?

IF you want to begin to make the savings for yourself now, you owe it to yourself to have a Round Oak NOW! Isn't this so? Isn't this reasonable? Isn't it true?

Remembering that you cannot own one at any price unless your home is naturally adapted for its guaranteed-satisfactory operation, don't you think you should at least investigate—NOW? during the Street car accidents were no novelty in Norwich 50 years ago as the old horse railroad which had just been started furnished many thrills for the people. A runaway car was the cause of the excitement for the week in the city. The county court house was in the progress of construction and several accidents frequently occurred on the building site, one of the worst resulting in the injury of Hiram Carey a mason.

Extracts from the Bulletin's files of '71 follow:

July 31 1871—A car No. 1 of the Greenville line was descending the incline near the Universalist church yesterday afternoon the chain connecting the brake with the wheels parted and the car ran forward upon the horse. The animal ran and the car gathering momentum at each turn of the wheel rushed down the hill at a frightful pace. When near the terminus of the road it jumped the track and most fortunately was stopped before dashing into the stone posts, flag-pole, watering-trough, and other insignia of liberty and civilization that adorn Franklin square. One woman passenger was hurt.

The court house committee has decided to grant no more contracts for the woodwork of the county court house, but will complete the work under their own supervision.

August 1, 1871—In moving the heavy derrick at the county court house yesterday morning, one of the guys overturned a scaffolding on which two masons and an assistant were working. Hiram Carey one of the former, and an old man named Timothy Casey were precipitated to the cellar of the building a distance of 15 feet. Carey landed on his head and is seriously injured. Mr. Casey was also cut on the head and bruised but not dangerously. The third man escaped with minor bruises.

The Third Regiment Band purposes to give no more open air concerts on the Little Plain this summer. The members of the band are quite unanimously disgusted with the pecuniary hard heartedness with which their musical efforts have been received.

August 2, 1871—The north abutment and approaches to the new bridge of the Yantic at Norwich town will probably be completed this week and the bridge opened to traffic about the middle of September.

As the Ella was entering Stenington harbor on her return trip Tuesday, the chain box, which is mounted on wheels and is kept on the main deck for shifting ballast, was moved by some person into such a position that as the boat heeled over, it slipped from its position and rolled down the inclined deck among the crowd. Several people were injured, one man having his foot crushed and two women being knocked down and bruised.

August 3, 1871—The body of the man who was murdered in Allington, near New Haven on Tuesday has been identified as George Brown of New London, a painter with no fixed home. The motive for the crime is a mystery as it is known that Brown carried only a small sum of money.

A woman entered a barber shop yesterday and in all seriousness asked for a lock of an African's hair to cure the carache.

A boat containing three men was engaged near the wharf yesterday and it was with difficulty that they were rescued by people who were on the shore.

August 4, 1871—A gentleman in the state of beer attempted suicide by jumping into a well yesterday. The wife of his bosom was near however and promptly remarking that he was always that way, harpooned him with a bathhook and brought him to the surface. It isn't exactly known where she struck him but he is having a new seat put in his parlors.

The speed at which some of the trains on the New London Northern railroad are twisting over its tracks between this city and New London is something marvelous. The other day Conductor Sanders' train ran over the road from New London to Norwich in 21 minutes, including stops.

August 5, 1871—The New London jail is so popular that remanded prisoners are sent to the institution in this city where they are courteously welcomed. This is well-giving the prisoners a change of air and scenery and cultivating the social amenities, too often alas neglected.

Ignorance and iniquity spoiled a local man into the river near the coal-wharf yesterday—the former involving a superficial knowledge of the main sheet and the latter an intimacy with gin.

foam candy, something on the order of what people buy each season at the shores, yet to my mind much more tasty and substantial. It is easily made, too, and perfectly harmless for children, who always like it. The formula follows:

Seafoam Candy: 1 cupful brown sugar; 1 cupful boiling water; 2 egg whites; 1 teaspoonful vanilla; 1 cupful pecans or English walnuts.

Place the sugar and water together in a saucepan. Stir until the sugar is dissolved; then cook without stirring until a little dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Have the egg whites stiffly beaten, pour the boiling hot syrup over them and beat until the mass is soft and creamy. Add the vanilla and the nuts and continue to beat until the candy stiffens. When nearly set, drop by spoonfuls on wax paper and leave until hardened.

HOME ECONOMICS

THE "EXCHANGE" VACATION

Corner Readers and Friends: To the majority of persons the word vacation stands for a good time and freedom from the cares of work or household responsibility; but to many others it is only a vacation since they cannot spare either the time from their daily tasks or the money required to go away.

One clever woman I know has solved this perplexing problem by what one might call the "exchange" vacation. Her home is in the city, but every June comes she is ready to leave the hot streets and her cramped little apartment and get out into the big, open spaces.

She can sew well and is handy at dress-making; and this is her summer dependence. Country friends with a big house, plenty of home-grown food, an abundance of eggs and butter, and milk, are more than glad to have her stay a month with them, meantime helping with the family sewing. The girls of the household are keen for the fashionable touches she knows how to give to their made-over new frocks, or to their exchanging old hats for new, or the articles art of dyeing or re-trimming. She would have to work a month or so much more agreeable sewing in the suburban places, with chances of rides, berrying parties, picnics, etc. on the side.

In fact, this same smart woman has in this way worked herself across the continent, seen much of the world, and made money while doing it, as one friend would recommend her to another in some distant town, and when she had completed her batch of sewing in one place there was always some other home anxious to welcome her.

Everywhere she was as a member of the family, busy, cheerful and contented; and when fall came, she was ready to return home, with a fresh capital of health, a modest bit of wealth, and a stock of pleasant experiences and remembrances of many agreeable acquaintances gained as she progressed on her itinerant way.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Mrs. Little Tells How She Suffered and How Finally Cured

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was not able to do my housework any had to sit down most of the time and felt bad in my left side. My monthly periods were irregular, sometimes five or seven months apart and when they did appear they were very painful. I was sick for about a year and a half and doctored but without any improvement. A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and the second day after I started taking it I began to feel better and I kept on taking it for seven months. Now I keep house and perform all my household duties. You can use these facts as you please and I will recommend Vegetable Compound to everyone who suffers as I did."—Mrs. J. S. LITTLE, 3455 Livingston St., Philadelphia, Pa.

How much harder the daily tasks of a woman become when she suffers from such distressing symptoms and weakness as did Mrs. Little. Such troubles may be speedily overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
