FATAL TO JOHN F. HOLLAND

John F. Holland, 25, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Holland of 420 Asylum street, was instantly killed by an electric shock Saturday afternoon about 6:50 at his home as he was about to turn on an electric light in the cellar.

At the same time the house switchboard in the cellar was on fire and an alarm was turned in from box 321, at the corner of Asylum and Starr streets.

Wires from the municipal electric plant supply the house with electricity, but there is only one switch in the house, a part of a fatal shock, and Supt. C. W. Trapp said Sunday night that investigations had not yet determined how the wire in the Holland house could have become so heavily charged as to bring on the fatal accident.

Mrs. Holland, who had been visiting at her mother's home in the next house, discovered a flickering light in the cellar of her own home as she was returning there, and called to her son that the house was afire. He was upstairs shaving but he rushed down stairs and into the cellar, closely followed by his mother.

The lights in the upper part of the house were lit, but the cellar was dark, and the young man reached for the switch which hung in front of the heater. Apparently he touched the cord, getting the full current, and falling to the floor, breaking off the wire as he fell.

The young man was not conscious at the time, and it is stated, would have come to his senses before he was able to get up. The only mark on his body was a burn on the back of his right hand, which was apparently caused by the hand from the thumb to the little finger. A section of the wire was clutched in his hand.

Deep sympathy for the family was expressed in all parts of the city Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Holland was a partner with Frank Leonard in the photograph business at 159 Franklin street. He was born in the city Jan. 6, 1895, and had always lived here, having been educated in the Norwich schools and formerly employed as a plumber. He was ambitious and of fine character and held in high esteem by his wide circle of friends. He was a member of the Young Men's Christian association, C. E. Biddle's parents, No. 14, C. W. Biddle's parents, Mrs. Joseph J. Quinn and Mrs. William P. Callahan, both of Hartford.

PAGEANT PRESENTS PEACE PROGRAM OF RED CROSS

An audience of over 300 witnessed the Red Cross pageant, an elaborate pageant given Saturday evening at the Community house, Church street, under the auspices of the Norwich chapter of the Red Cross. The pageant marked the opening of the local Red Cross roll call which begins on Armistice day, and admission was free.

The object of the pageant was to present the peace program of the American Red Cross. It was a play, a pageant, and was well received by the pleased audience. The pageant, which was written and arranged by Ruth Mossey Worrell, was divided into three parts, each part being divided into tableaux and what were designated as "actions."

The program opened at 7:45 o'clock with the playing of the national anthem, and the prologue "Spirit of Humanity" impersonated by Miss Marion Gibbs. Part one was an introduction to the peace program. It opened with a tableau, "The Spirit of Humanity," Miss Marion Gibbs; Florence Nightingale, Miss Hazel Fletcher; Clara Barton, Miss Beatrice Bascom; two Civil war nurses, Misses Edna and Helen; and a peace war union soldier, one with his arm in a sling and head bandaged and the other with an arm missing and head and face bandaged. The scene was set in a room, with Mrs. W. H. Mitchell; Mrs. Dumas; Stanley Edger Wood; Red Cross woman, Miss Ruth Loring. They appeared in costumes of the Civil war days.

Part two, "Action 1," the Red Cross in War, the characters being as follows: The Red Cross of War, Miss Ruth Loring; Junior Red Cross, three individuals; motor corps, Mrs. Ebenezer Learned; ambulance corps, Mrs. W. H. Mitchell; Mrs. Atterbury and Mrs. Kramer; canteen dressings, Mrs. Ferguson; canteen nurse, Miss Victoria Malmer, Miss Louise H. DeWitt; Red Cross nurse, Miss Susan Gallup, Miss Lillian Stetson; overseas personnel, Dr. Ier J. Manwaring.

Part three, in which Columbia conferred a commission on the Red Cross of Peace, was next seen. The characters: Columbia, Miss Laura Peckham; Red Cross of Peace, Miss Peckham.

Presented the peace program to the returned soldier. The characters: Red Cross of Peace, Miss Peckham; returned soldier, Raymond Case.

Part four, depicting the activities of the peace program. In the nursing service tableau those who took part were Miss Mary Monahan, Guido Ottaviano, Frances Pitt, George A. Turner, Mrs. C. C. ELECTRIC SHOCK FROM WIRE

FATAL TO JOHN F. HOLLAND

John F. Holland, 25, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Holland of 420 Asylum street, was instantly killed by an electric shock Saturday afternoon about 6:50 at his home as he was about to turn on an electric light in the cellar.

At the same time the house switchboard in the cellar was on fire and an alarm was turned in from box 321, at the corner of Asylum and Starr streets.

Wires from the municipal electric plant supply the house with electricity, but there is only one switch in the house, a part of a fatal shock, and Supt. C. W. Trapp said Sunday night that investigations had not yet determined how the wire in the Holland house could have become so heavily charged as to bring on the fatal accident.

Mrs. Holland, who had been visiting at her mother's home in the next house, discovered a flickering light in the cellar of her own home as she was returning there, and called to her son that the house was afire. He was upstairs shaving but he rushed down stairs and into the cellar, closely followed by his mother.

The lights in the upper part of the house were lit, but the cellar was dark, and the young man reached for the switch which hung in front of the heater. Apparently he touched the cord, getting the full current, and falling to the floor, breaking off the wire as he fell.

The young man was not conscious at the time, and it is stated, would have come to his senses before he was able to get up. The only mark on his body was a burn on the back of his right hand, which was apparently caused by the hand from the thumb to the little finger. A section of the wire was clutched in his hand.

Deep sympathy for the family was expressed in all parts of the city Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Holland was a partner with Frank Leonard in the photograph business at 159 Franklin street. He was born in the city Jan. 6, 1895, and had always lived here, having been educated in the Norwich schools and formerly employed as a plumber. He was ambitious and of fine character and held in high esteem by his wide circle of friends. He was a member of the Young Men's Christian association, C. E. Biddle's parents, No. 14, C. W. Biddle's parents, Mrs. Joseph J. Quinn and Mrs. William P. Callahan, both of Hartford.

Two of the freemen carried the body upstairs. Efforts to extinguish the blaze with chemical were unsuccessful as the heavy current was still rushing through the house and the fire was spreading. It was thrown off with the aid of a board, but this had no effect, as the wires still sputtered and burned.

Two of the freemen Joseph Brunson of the electric light plant trouble crew arrived and cut the wires leading to the house. This shut the current off and the fire in the cellar was then quickly extinguished with a can of chemical. The recall was sounded a few minutes before 6 o'clock.

Sergeant John H. Kane of the Norwich police force who lives at 436 Asylum street, said Sunday night that he saw a slight shock at his home when he turned on an electric light there Saturday afternoon. He said he was not hurt.
