DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Announcement was made Wednesday of the settlement by agreement of the case of the Manhasset Manufacturing company of Putnam vs. Alcott D. Sayles of East Killingly. Mr. Sayles is attorney for the mill company and certain expenses incident to the bringing of the suit and counsel fees.

The suit grew out of an accident that occurred on North Main street in Danielson on Nov. 20, 1920. A big motor truck owned by the Manhasset company was coming south from Putnam en route to Voluntown when, near North Main street, it was struck by a machine driven by Mr. Sayles. The collision, slight though it was, caused the driver of the truck to lose control of the big and heavily loaded vehicle and it crashed head-on into a large tree.

At the time the truck, a Pierce Arrow, had been in use only a few months. The machine was so badly damaged that agents of the manufacturer at Hartford asked $3,300 to repair it, but this price was considered high, and the truck eventually was repaired at a cost in excess of $1,500 by mechanics of the Manhasset company. New parts that cost in excess of $700 were used in making the repairs.

Not otherwise being able to bring about an agreement for settlement with Mr. Sayles acting through the court, an injunction was obtained from the court. The case has been pending trial for some time and was to have been heard at Willimantic during the present term of court, but was settled by agreement of the parties Wednesday.

Motorists will do well to look to the condition of their headlights. Chief John McFarland stated Wednesday morning that so many drivers are operating machines showing only one working headlight that it is necessary to take action toward correction of the evil. Drivers of these "one-eyed" cars have even come to the attention of the police here.

Cars with one headlight are a menace to all traffic moving over the highways, as much to the occupants of them as to other motor cars. Hundreds of accidents have resulted from meeting such cars, and Chief McFarland is determined that a step to driving them shall be made here.

Chester Vernon Brown, 37, is dead at his home on Main street. Mr. Brown's death came unexpectedly and as a great surprise to his friends. He had been in poor health for several weeks, but his condition was not regarded as serious. As late as last week he was up and about and there was nothing to indicate that his end was so near at hand. Mr. Brown leaves a wife and five children.

There have been no developments of interest this week in the Ernest Skinner case. Skinner, held at Brooklyn jail, has been given a haircut and otherwise "tidied up" treatment that he was sadly in need of when brought to the institution. He takes his predicament as a mere incident and seems no more disturbed about it than do his fellow prisoners. Skinner has insisted that he was alone in the carrying out of the crimes that included breaking a door, murder and arson. He has taken full responsibility for the acts which evidently have not impressed him as being very serious.

PUTNAM

This city will hold a biennial city election the first Monday in December for the purpose of electing a tax-collector. This is rather a broad statement, but embodies the viewpoint of many after they had inspected the doings of the democratic city caucus Wednesday morning.

Of course, there is a nominee for mayor, city treasurer and all other important city officers, but the concern is all over insofar as any contest is concerned excepting for city tax collector.

Senator Archibald Macdonald is the republican nominee for mayor and that nomination has been endorsed by the democrats. Likewise the nomination by the republicans of Victor Chapdelaine for alderman-at-large and of Charles H. Brown for city treasurer. This disposes of three important city offices.

Each of the four republican and four democratic nominees for the common council are assured of election, as eight candidates will be required to fill the place, and the same is true of the nominees for registrar of voters and auditors.

This leaves the city tax collectorship as offering the only basis for a contest at the biennial city election.

Neither republican nor democratic leaders had any long statements to make Wednesday regarding the lineup, which represents the results of conferences and agreements made some time since.

Party politics, insofar as alignments on that basis are concerned, will not weigh much after January 1, when the factory government will be in power. There is a volcanic shakeup coming, insofar as distribution of patronage is concerned, as many citizens read the handwriting on the wall. The shakeup will chiefly concern the police and fire departments and will come about, it is predicted, not because of any charges of inefficiency, but to gratify a desire for changes and to make some new spots that have been treated for two years by the result in large sense of previous political maneuvering.

Unless the unlikely injection of an independent ticket into the election is something unusual and unexpected the election is all over but the shouting. This is taken for granted among the rank and file of at least the male voters of both parties.

But the women voters may have to be reckoned with. One who spoke for them Wednesday morning was up in arms over the doings of both republicans and democrats and roundly denounced both party leaderships for the situation as now for the voters who are to participate in the biennial election. Her criticism was caustic and without reserve as to denouncing the present situation, as she sees it, in city politics and she was anxiously seeking some means of offsetting the excess of the nominations plan as it is now offered to the voters of the city.

Incidentally, no time was being lost Wednesday by those who would like appointments from the city council that will be organized in January. At least three candidates for appointment as captain of police were said to be in the field.

There are candidates for chief engineer and assistant engineers of the fire department and for this and that appointive office. Who will get the plum is no one is prepared to say, though it seems that many believe the tax collectorship will go to Eugene Dumas.

For alderman the democrats have named Eugene D. Dumas from Ward 1, Eugene Dumas from Ward 2, Honorius Magnan from Ward 3 and Alfred J. Pierson from Ward 4. Ulrich Beauvois of the ward 5 nominees for tax collector, against Alcott D. Sayles, Jr., the republican nominee. For auditor, the democrats have named J. Harry Mann and for registrar George Potvin.

An interesting sidelight on the caucus and nominations that preceded them will be found in the following: Eugene Dumas, the first Wednesday afternoon by Alderman George H. Padgett, who, as a democrat, is at present representing the first ward in the common council.

It is probably a timely and fitting thing that I should make a statement relative to the recent matter of nominating a democratic candidate for alderman for the first ward. For nearly eight years I have been a member of the city council. Several times during that period, as you know, I have stated that I would not be a candidate for re-election.

On Thursday of the past week I was asked by a number of large taxpayers to reconsider my decision; that it was the interest of the city that some of the experienced members of the council should remain as members of that body; that if I agree again to be a candidate Alderman Johnson, Wheelock, Dean and I would be asked to consent to be candidates. Otherwise they would announce a declaration I could make but one answer and that was an affirmative one—that I would be a candidate again.

I added, however, that there was an affirmative candidate for the nomination in my ward, Eugene Bartholmeus, and that I probably had already pledged a sufficient number of voters to assure him the nomination.

There are the reasons why myself and the above named aldermen, ward 1 or less passive candidates for re-nomination after having publicly declared they wished to retire.

Friday of last week I saw Mr. Bartholmeus and told him of my retiring and considered about being a candidate for re-nomination. He said that he had no belief that I was not a candidate and had asked voters of the ward to support him and under the circumstances felt that he could not retire. I told him that under the same circumstances I would feel as he did and that I would do all in my power, in like circumstances to win the nomination. I further told him that I would not ask anyone to vote for me nor do anything active to win the nomination, and I abided by that statement.

At the democratic ward caucus Tuesday evening I repeated the statement I made to Mr. Bartholmeus and included the remark that if any of those present in the caucus wished to vote for me they might do so and that I realized that the caucus would defeat me. I added that I had only the kindest feeling for Mr. Bartholmeus and all who were supporting him and the best wishes for the success of the incoming administration.

Mr. Padgett added that his statement was only issued in the interest of making clear a situation that is of interest to many and that the interest of a square deal.

There is special interest here in the disposition in the superior court, at Willimantic, this week, of the case of the Automobile Insurance Company of America vs. Napoleon Mour of this city. The case was built around the fact that car which Mr. Mour bought in good faith proved to be a machine stolen in Charles street, Boston, in May, 1919, from one C. C. Cheever. The car was first brought into this territory by one H. B. Wright, whom the police of many cities are still seeking. Later, in legitimate transaction, it came into possession of Andrew Sharpe of Abington, then was owned by Roderick Miller and in turn by Arthur Peplin, who sold it without knowledge of all its history to Mr. Mour. When the state police began to pick up stolen cars here in February of 1920, the Mour car was one that was replevined and furnished the basis of the suit that has just been decided.

It was announced Wednesday that a settlement by agreement had been reached in the case of the Manhasset Manufacturing company of this city vs. Alcott D. Sayles of East Killingly. Mr. Sayles is to pay the company a considerable sum of money, as well as the Danielson damages sustained by a big motor truck of the company after it crashed into a tree in Danielson, following its clicking wheels with a machine driven by Mr. Sayles. The accident happened a year ago this month.

Elizabeth Foster Putnam Chapter, D. A. R. had as its hostess Monday, Mrs. Charles H. Bissell of Southington, vice-regent of the state D. A. R. This was the second meeting of the season and Mrs. Bissell, regent, presided. The matter of a gift toward the American Legion's fund to mark the graves of soldiers was presented as new business. The chapter voted $10 for that purpose. Mrs. Nelson D. Lown played two numbers, Carnival Song, Scrumman, and Claire de Lune, Debussy. They were both enthusiastically received. Mrs. Bissell had a most interesting subject as she has recently returned from France, where she accompanied the president general of the national society to dedicate the water system at Lille, France. This is a present to this little town from the national society, a sum consisting of fifty cents from each member accomplished. Mrs. Bissell said that the mayor told her the town would speedily grow on this account as water is very hard to obtain in the devastated region. This little town also received the reward of the government for having accomplished the most work of reconstruction in a year. She also told of placing a wreath for the national society upon the grave of the "unknown soldier" of England and also of France. She read in closing the beautiful inscription upon the memorial to Henry Farnsworth erected by his parents.

The hostesses served refreshments.

William Brunelle, a student at the Putnam evening school, has just been presented a card case as an award for proficiency in typewriting. He has written at the rate of 48 words per minute after 15 hours of practice.

The ladies put out an Armistice Day to get funds to purchase markers for graves of World war veterans netted $20 in this city. A wreath at Pomfret brought in $16 additional dollars. Girls selling flags obtained $68 more. Other revenue, has come recently from merchants who gave money to the American legion instead of decorating their business places for Armistice day.
