GREENEVILLE

At the masses in St. Mary's church Sunday the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe, read his annual report which proved most satisfactory to his parishioners. Since every member of the parish is proud of the way the work on the new church is progressing, it was extremely gratifying to learn that the exterior of the handsome church is done and paid for and that work is now to begin on the interior of the edifice, also on the tower which is to be the memorial of the new church. Father Keefe and his assistant, Rev. William H. Kennedy, have spent a busy year in the interests of their people and they and the members of the parish begin the New Year with a determination to accomplish one of the most wonderful deeds in the history of this parish, with the completion of the beautiful church which even now gives promise of being an ornament to the city, as one of the finest church edifices in the diocese. The total of the receipts and expenditures in Father Keefe's report proved the best indication of the big work being accomplished by priests and people.

TAFVILLE

The recent cold spell has frozen the Biscuits here above here and the young people are enjoying skating on the river for the first time in a long while.

Mrs. Watson, wife of Captain John Watson of large Valentine of the Thames Tow Boat Co., of New London, was drowned in the harbor at New Bedford late Friday night when she fell from a gangway while trying to help another and landed in the icy water. JOHN J. CORKERY WATER COMMISSIONER

At a special meeting of the court of common council in the council chamber Monday evening John J. Corkery, a former superintendent of the municipal water department, was appointed water commissioner to fill out the unexpired term of Patrick F. Bray, whose death occurred last week.

The special meeting was called to order at 7:30 o'clock about a half hour ahead of the regular meeting of the council. Mayor Herbert M. Lerou presented to the council the name of John J. Corkery as the new water commissioner to succeed the late Mr. Bray. At erman Arthur L. Peale moved the nomination be approved.

"It gives me great pleasure to second the motion," said Alderman Gilbert S. Raymond. "Mr. Corkery has probably had more experience in the water department than any other man in Norwich; he is a man of sound judgment, and upright character." continued the Alderman.

Mr. Corkery was then unanimously appointed to the office. The special meeting immediately adjourned to prepare for the regular meeting which convened about a half hour later.

HUSBAND IS ORDERED TO LET WIFE ALONE

A triangle domestic case, with the mother-in-law alleged to be the third person in the case, occupied the attention of the New London police court for considerable time Monday. Although Hazel Knapp is suing for divorce from Frederick Knapp, and although they are living apart and Frederick paying alimony, still it is alleged that he probably has wife on the street, at her place of business, in the theatre and even in her own home, when he can gain admission.

Judge S. Victor Prince continued the case Monday for the month and until the next six months. Hazel is 18 and Frederick is 20. Frederick met Hazel while he was in the navy stationed at the submarine base. He came to New London from Manila, he Hazel, and when he returned to Manila, she wrote to him, and he returned and married her. Mother-in-law is alleged to have been opposed to Frederick as a son-in-law, and Frederick is alleged to have married Hazel, and Hazel started divorce proceedings.

Hazel got a job during the Christmas rush in a New London store and Frederick is alleged to have visited the store with boy friends and pointed Hazel out to the boys, and also to have brought women into the store and pointed out his wife to humiliate her. Just one week ago Sunday night Frederick tried to force Hazel to have sex with him, and she had accepted her on the street and told her to "Keep off of the streets." Hazel was new nurse on last Monday night, Frederick said they were "cute nurse alright" and Hazel alleged that Frederick had gotten down at her feet and she kicked him in the nose.

She also slapped him in the face, he says. Hazel alleged that her husband threatened to kill her with a pistol, and Frederick alleged that Hazel scratched her hand to place marks upon it to show in court. Frederick denied that he had ever threatened to kill his wife or kill himself and laughed at the idea. Presenting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin informed the court that Frederick thought that he was a cave man, and that he could not read his wife and tear her clothes. The court decided not to pass on the case at present as a conviction would influence the divorce proceedings.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The annual New Year reception for the members of the Boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. was held at the association building Monday afternoon. About 100 boys were in attendance and enjoyed the afternoon's programme.

Following the games the boys gathered in the "Y" hall for the remainder

ANNUAL GRAB-BAG FOR BACKS HOSPITAL NURSES

F. L. Woodard and Miss Elizabeth Norton contributed very generous checks for the Backus Hospital Training School and the pleasure of the nurses during the holidays.

POETRY

THE VISITOR

My great-great-grandmother, Phoebe is named,
Tiptoeed out from her picture frame,
Scrolled from the looking glass to a chair
Then to the carpet, and curtied there.

Grandmother's hair was powdered white
And her shoulders gleamed in the soft end light.
And her gown was raved to and fro,
Wafting a perfume of years ago.

"My dear, please don't be afraid," she said,
"There's a boy upstairs in the blue room bed
I've heard him laugh and I've heard his fret,
But nobody's brought him to see me yet
say."

"Why, only this morning I heard them
say
He was five months old this very day,
So now, when he's sure to be fast asleep
Please won't you take me for just one peep?"

I said I was charmed—it was only fair—
And the way up the darkened stair
Which is really the doorway leading to
With a great-great-grandmother follow ing you.

She knelt by the baby's blanket nest
And she touched his hand to her fair
And I heard her laugh as she smoothed
the clothes:
"Thank you, he's got the family nose!"

Then she looked back the way she came
And settled down in her picture frame
There's the happiest smile on the canvas lips
Of Great-Grandmother Charley Phoebe.

Journal'

RESPIRE

Sometimes strange, quiet arms reach out
As strong lides fake a tired ship to shore.
A shiver grows weary waiting in the harbor.
That moans to wail her moorings and go free.

Sometimes great, beating wings curve Dark, phony wings, softly through the night:
I risk on shoulders of a swift emotion
That soars to an unutterable height.

Sometimes on lonely nights I hear you sigh
Your step is like a bed upon the stairs
I feel your kisses sweep across my fingers
I know your quiet hands are on my hair.
—Martha Banning Thomas, in Good Housekeeping.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"You say you were graduated from a barber college. What's your college year?"
"Office boy! Cut his hair! Take his face off! How, raw, raw!"—American Legion Weekly.

"Auntie, what's that?"
"That, William, is a gruffie. Ham!"
he said for a long week.
"Yes, yes, I'd hate to hafta wash a neck that long or have sore throat it is!"

"Yes, dear, but think of how good it would make ice cream taste!"—Florida Times-Herald.

"Grimson Gulch seems to have become strange," remarked the visitor.
"Yep," replied Cactus Joe; "all the boys have taken a notion for getting married and settling down. Instead of squandering their money they're saving it up to buy suits and hats and such."—Washington Star.

"Goodness, Maggie! Where did you get the black eye?"
"It's nothing, ma'am. Me flossing has been marked attentions!"— Buffalo Express.

In the club bar the comedian was ban-tering a tall slip of a young actor.
"Ah, well," said the latter, with great self-satisfaction, "so far the profession has brought me bread and butter."
"And eggs, Arthur—eggs!" said the comedian.—London Opinion.

The coronerstone will be laid next week with elaborate ceremonies.
"What will be placed in the cornerstone?"
"A bartender's guide."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

More brains (at piano recital)—What is that charming thing he is playing?
Less brains—a piano, y' dubs.—Wisconsin October.

"Sage tells us that the best way to get the most out of life is to fall in love with a great problem or a beautiful woman."
"Why not choose the latter and get both?"—Amherst Local.

"I admire her hair, I rave over those fair tresses."
"I can take you to the store where she bought it," said the other girl, "a store just filled with similar fair tresses. And you can throw a regular fit."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"How do you envy you seafaring men?"
breathed the sweet young thing. "How wonderful it must be to gaze on the bound, blue-rippled expanse of ocean and smell the clean, salt air."
"Yes, an awfully good coal passer," it must be.—American Legion Weekly.
