WESTMINSTER

The new year was celebrated at the morning worship Sunday by the observance of the sacrament of the Lord's supper with a talk especially timely on the newness of life lived by those striving to follow Christ. In the 1921 Handbook a new plan is being tried by Dr. Burton, secretary of the Congregational national council, and with the approval of the council, in making out topics for the midweek prayer hours. Until Lent the general topic is to be Ideas of Redemption as Shown in the Old Testament. Daily readings and a special topic will be given. The topic for this week Wednesday, Jan. 4, is The Kingdom of God. Scripture, Mark 1: 14. Topic for Wednesday evening, Jan. 11, The Growing Idea of God as Father. St. Matthew 23. Christmas exercises of the church school were held Monday evening of last week and considered quite successful by those present. The talk on present conditions in the Near East, illustrated by beautifully colored slides, was very informing. The exercises by the school followed the Near East talk; the curtain being removed and lights turned on, revealing a handsome tree in the center of the platform, with two lesser trees, one either side untrimmed, as attendants, and other decorations, largely the work of the children. The Christmas carol of the angels, St. Luke 2: 8-14, read by Bonita Dusenberry, the audience joining in the last verse. After a hymn and prayer by the pastor, recitations were given by Anna Olsen, Goodwin Lee, Douglas MacLeod, Simona Raymond, Beatrice Lee, Harry Heldstrom and Julia Green, each deserving the applause freely accorded by the audience. Bear officers had asked to speak but were unable to be present on account of illness in their families—Zola Page, Annie Alice and Amen Hagopian. Hilda Grab and Daisy Olsen recited the Near East offering, which amounted to about $10. Ralph Olsen, assisted by Earl MacLeod, operated the stereopticon. Several of the grand old Christmas songs were interspersed in the literary program, which was followed by gifts, candy boxes and fish pond fun for the children. Oscar Olsen left Backus hospital, Norwich, Wednesday, his foot a cast, protected by a wire cage. He has to return to the hospital at stated times for further treatment. Frank Greenman has had a serious experience with his hand which included blood poisoning and a high fever. He is now improving and it is thought will save the hand.

LIFTED UP

A little child in tears comes by; You lift her chin and look into her eye, And speak soft words of comfort and of cheer, Until she smiles—and you have come so near The lifting up and bring to the sun The pitiful heartache of a little one!

When I go up to meet the judgment word I hope that I'll be able to reply To every question that mine ears have heard "I lifted up some heart that life made cry!" For I would rather have done that in life Than won the glorious triumphs of the strife.

The sad are many and the gay are few, And there is little else that we can do That counts so much as lifting, day by day, The hearts that wander in the shadows gray, Keeping clean service in our lives the goal Of every manly, forthright, stalwart soul.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Still handling corkscrews, I see." "Yes, we sell quite a few as souvenirs." "The old druggist—Louisville Courier-Journal." "What about those motor bandits?" "Did they wear masks?" "Didn't need masks. They all had on goggles."—Boston Transcript. "Where do I cash this winning ticket?" "Follow those men." "Which men?" "The ones who are smiling."—Louisville Courier-Journal. Mrs. Neidore—Your boy threw a lump of coal at our cat. Mr. Naybor—I'll attend to the young rascal. Not that we care anything about your cat, but no boy of mine is going to waste coal in that manner.—Boston Transcript. Screen Actress—I have a certificate from my doctor saying that I cannot act today. Manager—Why did you go to all that trouble? I would have given you a certificate saying that you never could act.—Elm Fun. Alice—Dick is such a large-hearted fellow. Edith—That is why I rejected him; he's so large-hearted that he can love half a dozen girls at the same time.—Boston Transcript. "I know a young couple who have been married only a week, and now they don't speak." "What did they quarrel about so soon?" "They didn't quarrel about anything; they're deaf and dumb."—Baltimore American. "Jones is a suspicious chap." "Suspicious!" He reminds me of a farmer I used to know. Whenever he bought a head of sheep he examined the wool of each sheep closely to make sure it had no cotton in it."—Boston Transcript. A man was invited to speak at a local gathering and, being nobody in particular, was placed last on the list of speakers. The audience was tired out by the time the chairman rose and announced: "Mr. Brown will now give us his address." "My address," said Mr. Brown, rising, "is 45 Rushton avenue. I wish you all good night."—Edinburgh Scotsman. "What," said the indignant old gentleman, "you want to marry my daughter? Why, sir, it was only a few years ago that you were caddying for me." "Yes, sir," the young man replied, "but I don't intend to let that stand in the way. I hope I have sense enough to realize that a very bad golfer may make a fairly good father-in-law."—Exchange. A Scotsman named MacDonald was very proud of his ancestors, and was never tired of boasting about them. On one occasion he remarked to a friend that his clan had lived before the flood. "Well," replied the other, "I never heard of the name MacDonald ganging into Noah's ark." "Noah's ark!" returned MacDonald, contemptuously. "Who ever heard of a MacDonald that hadn't a boat of his own?"—Los Angeles Times.

A Japanese woman can tell her husband's approach by the sound his shirt made on the sidewalk to which piece of wood in the heel of his shoe has his peculiar hum and pick. One of Robert Louis Stevenson's earliest publications was a scientific paper contributed to the proceedings of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. It dealt with the effects of fossils on climate. When James VI of Scotland married Queen Elizabeth of England, a great British ship, the Scottish Queen, was at the grounds of Edinburgh. Chase in his address he made a plea for the dedication and consecration of the lives of all present to Jesus Christ. The benediction followed and after hearty handshaking and exchange of greetings the departing dispersed. The members of the Preston City Baptist church held their annual business meeting Wednesday.
