FOREST FIRE DISTRICT

OUTLINED IN STATE A plan to divide this state into 150 districts and appoint a forest fire warden in each district was developed Tuesday at a meeting of the state fire warden and State Forester Austin F. Hayes in the latter's office at Hartford. About ten wardens attended the meeting and a map of the state was carefully gone over to determine the best location for each district. It is the plan of Forester Hayes thus to develop a network of forest fire fighters all over the state and one of the requirements will be that each man appointed warden shall have a telephone. Even warden is also to be equipped with a limited amount of fire fighting equipment. This is a new departure for this state, and because of the small appropriation made for forest fire fighting purposes and forestry work it will be impossible to do a great deal along the line of equipping the wardens. However, it is planned to furnish each of these officials with a number of wire brushes which have been found practical in sweeping leaves back from a burning area and thus establishing control over a forest fire. As many more men as possible to obtain will later be distributed across the state and special instructions as to the most approved methods of combating forest fires will be issued to all.

CHAPLAIN KERNAHAN AT THREE MEETINGS

CHAPLAIN A. EARL KERNAHAN.

Chaplain A. Earl Kernahan of Boston, who is conducting special services at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, had three meetings at which he spoke in the city Tuesday. At noon he was at a shop meeting at the Richmond Radiator company, where more than 100 men heard him speak upon "The Change of Heart." At the evening service at the church he spoke upon "The Neglected Necessity, going from that service to speak at the meeting of Sackem chapter, No. 37, O. E. S. Here he gave an interesting talk upon "The Contributions of the Fraternity to My Life." At the Trinity church service he said in part: "There is a tendency especially among the American people, because of their progressive and sometimes too strenuous life, to overlook common things and abstractly necessary principles. We take up with something new and modern. And this is often done without any reference to the value of the new thing. Such a tendency is conducive to carelessness and neglect. Universally there is a tendency upon the part of all to cleave to that which is easy and to shun that which is difficult. All speakers desire to say those things which are easy to say and pleasant to hear. These are three pregnant facts which account to a large degree for the neglect of one of the basic principles of Christianity. 'The Bible is replete with hortatory remarks concerning repentance. It commands it. It urges it. It enforces it. Over 60 times repentance is taught in the Bible. The great doctrine of repentance occupies a large place in the teachings of Jesus Christ and his apostles. We get into the kingdom we have lowered the standard. As we study the instances in which these words were first spoken we cannot help feeling that they meant far more than they do today. They do not affect us in the same way. I am afraid that we have pulled these words 'Repent Ye' down to the low levels of our own experience. But that which is new and that which is measured steps the hills of light and he in unbroken communion with God. Perhaps we have been more anxious about heads than hearts. 'Jesus Christ never made it easy to repent. We have said to anybody and everybody 'Only believe.' The New Testament does not say so. The devil believes, and believes more than some of us do; he knows more about it. There was a man who came and asked 'Are there but few that he saved?' and he said 'Strive, struggle, agonize to enter in at the strait gate.' He never made it easy. Here is another man, who came and said 'Lord, I will follow Thee whithersoever Thou goest.' But Jesus knew that he had not counted the cost and said 'Fishes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the son of man hath nowhere to lay his head.' Here is another who came and said 'Lord, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?' Jesus diagnosed his case instantly and put his finger on the weak spot in his life and said 'If thou wilt be perfect sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor, and come and follow me.' Jesus never made it easy."

FINDS TURNER'S DEATH WAS UNAVOIDABLE ACCIDENT

Coroner J. J. Desmond announced on Tuesday that he had completed his investigation of the cause of the death of former Town Clerk John C. Turner of New London, and that he found that the affair was wholly accidental, and that no criminal liability could be found in the case. Eight witnesses were examined in the case, and the investigation extended over a period of several months, but constant reviewing of the case failed to bring out that anyone was responsible for the accident. Mr. Turner met his death in New London when struck by a trolley car at the corner of State, Broad and Huntington streets, about at the same spot where the one-man trolley car which tore through the stone wall surrounding the Charles Augustus Williams' estate, became derailed on last Saturday night. Coroner Desmond stated Tuesday that he expected to have a finding on the Edgar T. Howard case ready by Friday.

DORIC QUARTETTE AND READER GIVE ENTERTAINMENT The Doric male quartette of Providence provided a delightful programme Tuesday evening at the Community House, Church street, for the third in the Y. M. C. A. course of five entertainments. The Community House was well filled and the large audience was most appreciative of the splendid program. The program of the quartette consisted of Walter J. Harn, first tenor; V. D. Baldwin, second tenor; H. A. Hugus, baritone; L. E. Denison, bass. The programme which opened at 8 o'clock was given by the vocalists as follows: Quartette: Winter Song, Come O'er

BEER FOR NORWICH GOES INTO PROVIDENCE RIVER

Providence, R. I., Jan. 10.—Federal prohibition enforcement agents poured 3,650 gallons of beer into the Providence river here this afternoon while a throng gathered to witness the unusual scene in the heart of the city. Numerous volunteers who hoped to assist the officers were sternly repulsed.

The beer, included in 63 barrels and 69 other miscellaneous containers, arrived in this city on a steamship in 1918, consigned to a Norwich, Conn., man. Before delivery could be made the consignee died, leaving neither heirs nor assigns, and after standing guard over the shipment for three years the government ordered it destroyed.

It was stated in Providence Tuesday night that the federal officers refused to make public the name of the Norwich consignee.

POETRY

CANTICLES OF JANUARY. I.—AFTER THE ICE STORM. Cold, translucent daybreak, after the night of driven sleet; Bitter clouds flying before the pomp of dawn; And the world of sun-smitten ice aflame with splendor! Ah, tremor of the myriad ice-sheathed branches along this frozen border, in the passionate purity of light—How shall I endure your glory? Dazzling, wind-shaken spectrum fire of the tinkling crystal—crimson, orange, translucent, and made-blue—You must be the glittering debris from some aerial collision of wheeling rainbows; High above the pellucid founts of the morning.

II.—THE REFUGENT DARK. The sun sets among rose-purple clouds blazing all about their borders with orange-gold. And then the night! Resplendent in leveled majesty of the white constellations flashing from the fathomless blue-black vault. What an arch for the setting of this sun! Where the choir boys have raced from reflecting into the tingling cold! The cold and wide stillness prays that they fling burst into glittering powder when they strike. To melt against the cheeks and throats as snow with saucy of their warfare. While the shouting and laughter seem to come from the stars themselves. O ye nights of January, "Rise up the Lord and magnify Him forever!" —Eliot White, in New York Herald.

SEA BIRDS. Lonesome sea gull floating far Over the ocean's icy waste. Aimless and idle, wondering why Forever vainly seeking rest— Where is thy mate, and where thy nest? Tired wintry sea and wintry sky. Then sailst slowly, solemnly. No feather on thy wing is pressed— Where is thy mate, and where thy nest? O restless, homeless human soul, Following for aye thy nameless quest, The gulls float and the billows roll— Where is thy mate, and where thy nest? —Elizabeth Akers Allen, in Indianapolis News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY The green literary clerk with the gift of sarcasm made a hit the other day when a lady asked subtly: "Have you Bacon?" "No, we ain't got any Bacon," he said, "but here's a real good one, we call it 'about Ham.'" —Richmond Times-Dispatch. "John, John," whispered Mrs. Congressman Squibbs, "Wake up! You sure there are robbers in the house?" Robbers in the house? he muttered sleepily. "Absolutely positively not! There ain't no robbers in the house, Mary, but now in the house, absurd!" —American Legion Monthly. "How much did you make during the war?" "Ten dollars a day," he said. "Did you earn it?" "Boss, I'll be frank with you. Sometimes my conscience hurt me, so the only way I could get any relief was to stand in the street and ask for money. The fact I was honest" —Birmingham Age-Herald. Howell—"Where there's smoke there must be fire." Powell—"An where there's fire there must be a coal bill!" —New York Sun. He (just accepted)—"Let want to confess, darling, that I've been engaged before."

She—"Oh, you slowpoke! Why, this is my fifth!" —Boston Transcript. He had just received a telegram from his son attending college. It read: "If you don't send money by tomorrow, I will have to go to the poor house. The father promptly sent a telegram reading: "Don't go to the poor house tomorrow, wait 'til the day after and I will go with you." —Buffalo Commercial Advertiser. KALEIDOSCOPE The yucca, a species of lily, grows only in arid regions. In various parts of the earth wolves are supposed to roam during the night before Christmas, destroying property and in their more mischievous moods, snapping up vagrant humans. Before the break-up of the Turkish domain in Europe it was estimated that the tobacco of eastern Macedonia brought the exchequer of Constantinople a direct revenue of more than $2,000,000 a year. Gas issuing from a seam of coal was collected in a bladder by Sir James Lowther in 1733 and burned before the Royal society a month later. This was probably the first experimenting in gas lighting. Florence, Italy, is known as the "City of Flowers." Here the famous orris root perfumes are produced from roots of the large purple orris plant, which is grown extensively throughout the surrounding districts. Because they wouldn't let him sleep in the jail, John Guy of Middletown, N. Y., broke into a store and stole three cents. When he awoke the robbery to a policeman's confinement, was locked up, and got a good night's rest. Vermont recently paid bounties amounting to $32.10 on 2,125 hedgehogs, nine bay lynx and two black bears. One Stone hunter killed 849 hedgehogs, a Bloomfield hunter killed 532 and a Cambridge hunter reported that he had shot 287. C. M. Donovan, principal of the Cross-High school at Waterbury, Conn., is a bitter opponent of bobbed hair. He recently he announced that "curl day" would be observed at the school, and that one study hour would be given up to picking out the owners of the prettiest curls. Despite the novelty of his scheme, he carried it out and gave cash prizes to the winners.
