The stage was arranged as a typical country school, with blackboards and maps, and in the cast were in boy and girl costumes to carry out their parts, which they did with a realism that took their audience with them into the little schoolhouse where the teacher, in her charges up the thorny road of knowledge.

The first part of the program was a morning session of school, with recitations, singing and refractory and delicious choruses portraying the everyday events that attended the methods of instruction.

At the intermission boxes of homemade candy were auctioned by Mayor H. M. Leroy, who qualified successfully in this part.

The second part was visiting day with general remarks, when the children showed for the benefit of the school committee and visitors what they had learned. Clever original songs and verses by Mrs. Mabel V. Carothers and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard were among the features of the evening, bringing in some local bits on people who were in the school or the audience. Motion games and the exhibition of singing by the school under Professor Tinkle Keys furnished unlimited fun.

Members of the Sodality, with Mrs. Joseph R. French, chairman, were on the candy counter for the evening. They were the Misses Villetta, Ruth Kinney, Ida Hechner, Evelyn McMillan, Alice Browning, Florine Schell and Lucien Spaulding, and were in white with pink ribbons in the hair.
