

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There were no developments during Friday to change the opinion of officials that the attempt to wreck a freight train two and a half miles south of here late Wednesday night was the work of Charles Jencks, who met death in the crash between the ties he is believed to have placed upon the rails and the big locomotive that crashed into the obstruction.

Not a new thing in the case developed during Friday, Coroner Arthur G. Hill shares the suicide theory held by other officials. So, too, does Medical Examiner George M. Burroughs, who, nevertheless, sees an unusual circumstance in the ability of Jencks, who is represented as being in exceedingly poor health and suffering from a serious heart ailment, to move railroad ties from where they were piled up east of the track and place them on the rails. The ties weigh close to 500 pounds each. There was no evidence before the vicinity of the attempted wreck was tramped up to indicate that the ties had been dragged from where they were loaded to the track. It appears that they were actually carried.

But, as Dr. Burroughs points out, there are times when mentally deranged persons develop human strength for brief periods and it might not be at all impossible that Jencks, in such a period, managed to carry the ties himself and put them on the rails. Practically new wire such as is used in some cases for clothes lines, was used in fashing the ties to the track. Where the wire came from has not been ascertained. Neither was anything known up to Friday night of Jencks' movements from his home in Providence Monday afternoon up to the time that his mangled body was found lying beside the track where the wreck attempt was made.

If Jencks had any accomplices while in this territory, no one has yet been found who knows anything about them. Jencks may have been seen Wednesday afternoon on the highway between Wauregan and Danielson. Mr. Brown saw a man that answers at least partly Jencks' description. But that is the only theory presented with which to unravel the mystery of where Jencks came from just before entering this territory. State police continued to give their attention to the case during Friday, but Albert S. Field, officer in charge of the local barracks, said that nothing new had developed.

There is not the slightest connection between the attempted track and the hold-up. Jencks was 27 years of age and more or less settled and of medium height. The hold-up agent who assaulted Albert Gray of Pomfret was a young man, not over 24 years of age, and tall.

Friday afternoon, funeral services for Mrs. Amy A. Adams of East Killingly were held at the undertaking rooms of A. P. Wood at 2 p. m., Rev. J. W. Carpenter of the United church at East Killingly officiating. Two hymns were sung during the service by Mrs. Elizabeth White, of East Killingly. The bearers were P. E. Kies, son of Mrs. Adams; Clarence Adams, grandson of the deceased, and Henry Pray and Everett necessary amount for the letter has not yet been fully subscribed, but enough has already been given to justify the federation in assuming the expense, confident that the remainder will be provided. There should be added a third general appeal, and that was through the Christmas seal sale the net amount raised for the tuberculosis work being $114.50. This amount was less than the preceding year, but the decrease was due to the general business depression.

The federation would most appreciatively acknowledge the following gifts: Quinshaus Company $100, Goodyear Cotton Company $100, Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross $300, Mrs. A. E. Whittington and household $35.34, Danielson Chapter, No. 77, O. E. S., $15, Fortnightly club $10, F. H. Jacobs Mfg. Co $25, Miss Emma Burbank $25, Junior Chautauqua $12.25.

Contributors for the wheel-chair: A. F. Wood, Methodist Episcopal Sunday school, Indian County National bank, F. A. Jacobs, Luther Pilling, Mrs. Obadiah Butler, Mrs. Simeon Danielson, Mrs. E. H. Keach, Mrs. Clara Pelet, Mrs. Clarence Bacon, Mrs. John Merrick, Mrs. Amelia Tillinghast.

The federation also gratefully acknowledges the courteous consideration given by the Windham County Transcript and the Norwich Morning Bulletin in keeping before the public the work being done by the organization, and in the appreciative estimate of the quality of the service rendered.

The federation is affiliated with both the state and national association of public health nursing, by which connection it is kept informed as to the work being done elsewhere by organizations similar to its own.

A noteworthy addition to this report is the fact that Mrs. E. H. Keach, during the seven years she has served the organization as president, has never been absent from a regular meeting.

Measured by the value of the work of the federation, the committee of membership should number hundreds instead of scores, and the unwavering loyalty of those who are making possible this splendid service, should be an incentive to many others, that the future may record even greater things than the past.

PUTNAM

Scores of Putnam people who are apprehensive, if not really fearful, as the result of reading the letter signed 'Tri-o de Death' which appeared in this column of The Bulletin may as well buck up and forget the subject. There are certain things about the letter that stamp the writer as the cheapest kind of a fakir, trading on the fears of timid people. The writer of that letter was declared Friday by an expert investigator who has taken up the case, that a downright mean and cowardly liar. His assertion that the death of Laurent Roi of Danielson was caused by the spurious Tri-o de Death can be clearly demonstrated to be nothing but the most outrageous untruth. The Tri-o de Death did not cause the death of the Roi youth. The Roi youth's body was in the water for a far longer period than the four days set by the Tri-o de Death as the time following his death and the finding of the body, floating, and bloated, on the surface of the Anasawva river at Danielson. A surprising percentage of people are chilled with fear, it has developed, as the result of such communications as was received from Norwich by Captain Remi Delage of the Putnam police from the spokesman or letter writer for the Tri-o de Death, but they are so frightened without reasonable cause, according to an investigator who is now giving attention to the case with the promise of interesting developments for the alleged Tri-o de Death in the not distant future. The writer of the fearsome letter may be an object of cringing fear on his own account as he faces the consequences of his letter writing in the not distant future.

Further, it may be stated as an end to the quivering of the consensus of all communities herabouts over an unusual series of incidents of the week, that there was absolutely no connection between the hold-up of Albert Day of Pomfret and the finding of the mangled body of Charles Jencks of Potter avenue, Providence, near where an attempt was made to wreck a north bound extra freight train south of Danielson late Wednesday night.

The hold-up, between Wauregan and Central Village, after a motor trip from this city, and the attempt to wreck the train occurred at almost the same time and at points only from two to three miles apart.

Yet, the hold-up man is described by Mrs. Day as occurring to 24 years of age, a youngling, tall man, while Jencks was of medium height and 57 years of age. There is no chance of satisfactorily demonstrating that the hold-up man, still among the missing, was Jencks; there was too decided a difference between the two men.

An interesting feature of the 'Cop-benits of the week following the wild west happenings in territory herabouts to make life a less less uncertain for those who would hold-up people or threaten them with violence in one way or the other. This pertains to the desire of motorists to take out permits to carry revolvers and the intention of many others not to bother with permits, but just pass along with their happy to own their own guns.

Many honest red-blooded men are driving cars owned in this territory and numbers of these have decided that the time has arrived to treat the highwayman rough. The courageous fight of Albert Day against the bandit who tried to beat him up and seal his car has received warm praise from hundreds of sources.

Herewith, though, it may be well to sound a note of warning to motorists who would defend themselves against villainous attacks, that they should not lose control of themselves and be too quick with the gun that might bark out death for some innocent or unoffending person. All who are excruciatingly nervous at night or not bandits and too prompt action with a gun might result in the death of some person entirely innocent of the crime. The coroner's office is investigating the Tri-o de Death letter were convinced Friday that it is the work of a bluffer, with clues from the surrounding country to demonstrate this before long.

Wednesday evening of last week was celebrated the first anniversary of the Why and How club, also the birthday of the president, Mrs. Nettie C. Lewis, wife of Judge Lewis. It was a social to which every club member and her family were invited. The room at the country house was decorated in yellow. Mrs. Mary McElroy had charge of the decorating. There were 90 present and each received a small yellow May basket as a souvenir. Mrs. Lewis was presented a large yellow May basket. A token from every club member was in the basket. Judge Lewis was toastmaster for the event. Elaborate refreshments were served. Everybody had a good time. Male members are eligible to join but so far only two have taken advantage of belonging to the club.

Wednesday of this week was another notable anniversary. A year ago a W. C. T. U. was formed in this village which has been very prosperous, so this week the district convention of the W. C. T. U. met at West Kingston church. It was well attended. The speaker was Mrs. Marsh of Providence. Rev. Mr. Harrington was present and gave an address. Officers were elected for the ensuing year. During the noon hour a lunch was served.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith of Hope Valley called here Sunday.

The grammar school is making preparations for an entertainment the last day of the term.
