

WESTERLY

The first step has been taken by the committee appointed to see what could be done in regard to a hospital for Westery, and it is understood that about $75,000 in pledges will be available whenever the project matures and it would be an easy matter to double this amount. The newly equipped ambulance of the Sanitary Corps is the first step toward having such an institution here. Westery's large number of excellent physicians and its wide scope of territory, lacks a hospital, none being nearer than at Norwich, New London or Providence.

A good deal is happening outside the beaches. Wet goods are being carried by on boats just outside the inlet and not far from Block Island the coast guard cutter Acushnet is patrolling, looking for the boats loaded with imported liquors which come into Rhode Island waters and which come inside the three-mile limit.

STONINGTON

The town of Stonington has shown rapid growth during the last 25 years. In Westquodoc, for instance, less than 25 years ago the older residents remember when there were but a few houses, a church and a little wooden building for a schoolhouse. Today along the new state highway no less than 25 new houses stand in the former pastures where cattle fed. All the way into the borough and to Pawcatuck are handsome residences built on the vacant lots of the past. Community clubs, one located at Westquodoc and one in the borough, have made the town up to date as they afford educational and social enjoyment for the people. Three little stores have been opened in Westery, whereas before, the people depended upon buying necessities either in Westery or in Stonington and had to go about three miles each way. Summer people from New York have purchased farms which were run down and have spent thousands of dollars in reclaiming and improving them. Farmhouses, one of them, in this little community, is known far and wide for its wonderful vegetable, many fancy varieties of fruit, etc., which have been exhibited at fairs all over the state each year. While many of the old buildings in the borough remain the same there have been many new and up-to-date structures erected, both by and up to come here during the summer season and by former residents, who returned to Stonington to enjoy its beautiful scenery and sea breezes. New schoolhouses of modern type have been erected in Mystic, Stonington and Pawcatuck, of brick, to replace the old wooden buildings. The streets are kept up better and a new cement highway connects the town of Stonington with Groton and Westery, whereas before tourists had to travel through mud and sand many times.

There are many new stores opening in the town. Pawcatuck has about 5,000 in population, having grown rapidly in the past 25 years. Stores of all descriptions, theatre and a bank are now located there, besides three large manufacturing concerns.

The borough is provided with three fire companies, second class post office, New York, New Haven and Hartford station, 10 garages, four churches of different denominations, etc.

Mystic also has its share of increased progress, both commercially and in new residences with a modern $150,000 drawbridge spans the Mystic river. The borough of Stonington was the first one incorporated by the state of Connecticut and organized in 1801, and from that time on has shown a steady growth. She figured in the war of 1812 and made a name for herself which has come down in history, as the 18-pound cannon kept the English fleet from landing here 121 years ago.

Mrs. N. F. Nease at Harborville is the first woman in this locality to make a study and a business of keeping bees. Several hives have been added yearly. While she began with one hive a few years ago she has now a dozen hives of high-grade bees and has added to her establishment an extractor which removes the honey from the comb. Hundreds of pounds of sugar are used by her to keep the bees alive during the winter months when her large supply of honey was not sufficient to keep the thousands of bees fed whole.

Harold Hobart and Misses Chamberlain of the borough made a trip to Sag Harbor, N. Y., Tuesday.

One of the oldest burying grounds in this vicinity, at Westquodoc, is receiving attention by local people. New monuments are replacing the old ones in many instances and the old ones are being repaired. The trip will be made by auto bus. This is the annual outing for the whole band which numbers about 25 musicians. Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Craft of Springfield, Mass., have been spending new days here.

loosened and dropped down at the pond beside the roadway where he watered his horse and both he and the horse were killed. Mr. Edwards took dinner with friends in Quilimburg as usual and left there at 11:30 p. m. A live wire with 2000 volts caused the fatality.

Mr. Edwards leaves a sister, Mrs. Main of Hopkinton, and a brother, Ezra Edwards, of Voluntown, besides a daughter, Mrs. Oakley W. Davis of West Friesland, who left Monday morning to make the trip here to visit him.

They are reported to have one of the fastest teams around here including members of last year's Providence college players. The Shamrock and Westery series is now tied, as each has won two games. Today (Wednesday) a conference is to be held to decide the place for the next game.

Warren Rhoads will be among those who will give a luncheon for 18, and bridge will be played.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sherman of Yantic were week-end guests of friends here.

J., died at the City hospital, Providence, on Saturday night after being taken there with two other children from Westery, where they were found to have infantile paralysis. Medical inspection is being made daily at the hotel. Mary Crowell of Summit, N. J., is also ill. Twenty-three cases and five deaths have been reported in the state this year. A new case reported by Dr. Wilcox is that of Miss Eleanor Wilson Williamson, of Clinton, Mass., 19 years of age.

THE Fisk Cord is giving more value in service this year than was ever put into a tire of any kind before.

The buying public knows it, too—for, even though the Fisk factory, working at capacity, is bending every possible effort to build them, it has had difficulty in keeping up with the demand.

Before you buy any other tire, compare it with a Fisk Cord—the tire whose distinctive extra quality you can see and feel, weigh and measure at the time you buy.

ing the road at the foot of Spaulding Hill and covering the land of A. E. Hall. Residents of this place for 40 years state that they have never seen the brooks overflow to such an extent. The retaining wall stones at one side of the state road fell into the water like pebbles.
