TAFTVILLE

The new residence on Maennerhorst avenue of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Raymond of Providence, R. I., has been completed and the new owners expect to occupy it next week.

Flapping and decaying is underway at the warehouse of the Taftville Congregational church which will be occupied next week by Rev. and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowley.

Charles Lingard Tracy of Norwich was a business caller in the village Thursday afternoon.

Miss Laura Savage of Huxley avenue is spending two weeks with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Branstead of Schenectady, N. Y.

William H. Hill of Providence, R. I., was a caller in the village Thursday.

Napoleon Parent of South Second avenue has added to his aviary, a pair of Cockatillo Parakeets and a pair of Green Shell Parakeets, sometimes known as Budgeters or love birds.

The Cockatillo are about about the size of a small pigeon and are of a greyish-brown color, with bright crests and bright spots on the cheeks. They are easy to breed in captivity, especially if small rooms are used for aviaries and the birds are supplied with a barrel of keg with a hole cut in one end, where they may nest.

The small parakeets are attracting a great deal of attention, as they are small birds of a bright green color, and as they give one another a great deal of attention, they have been called love birds. They are quite common in Australia and some of the neighboring islands, where they are known as the warbling grass parakeets, and they do considerable damage to grain and rice fields.

They are very intelligent and are very inquisitive and in some instances have been taught to talk and do various tricks, and sing in a droll little voice.

Mr. Parent also has a handsome Amazon parrot in his aviary which is a brilliant colored and gentle bird. Great numbers of these parrots are now being imported from South America, as at this season of the year, there are not many parrots marketed from Mexico.

A notice has been posted in the local post office by the Norwich chamber of commerce warning Taftville people not to make any purchases of shares of stock in any doubtful company without first consulting their bankers or the chamber of commerce. Taftville people should appreciate this effort of the Norwich chamber of commerce to protect them against unscrupulous stock salesmen, of whom already too many have appeared in this village.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ritzler of Norwich avenue.

A number of boats and canoes of the Taftville Boat and Canoe club members have already been out in winter quarters. Some of the members continue to hold frankfurter roasts one evening each week on the Lisbon side of the Shonaker river.

The large field of corn north of North 3 street owned by the Ponsman mills is being harvested.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Du-rocher of North Third avenue expect to move soon to a house of South Second avenue.

The committee in charge of Italy Day at the Taftville Congregational Sunday school met Wednesday evening at the church and discussed plans for having every member of the Sunday school, cradle roll and home department present on October 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul and family of South B street expect to move this week to make their home in Northbridge, Mass.

While at his work Thursday, Charles T. Webster of North A street sprained his wrist. He was attended by Dr. David Husler.

Defying the cool wave that prevailed this week, one hairy youngster was seen swimming in the Shonaker river Thursday morning.

Owners of woodlots report that they are being swarmed with orders for hard wood, and that there is great scarcity of shoppers to get the wood ready for the consumer, although the pay is attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. James Adams are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

Miss Loretta Langlois who was injured several weeks ago has been able to return to her work.

EDMONT FOR $1,200.00
Judge Newell Jennings has entered judgment for $1,200.00 on a bill of particulars for the plaintiff in the case of Edward B. Smith & Co., New London, stock brokers, against James Wells of New London in the superior court there. The judgment was for stock transactions extending from Oct. 10, 1919, to March 21, 1920.

AUTO HITS EAST GREAT PLAIN GIRL

Loretta Derval, 5 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aloha J. Derval of East Great Plain, was hit by an automobile late Thursday afternoon near the Magna place on the Salem turnpike and is a patient at the Hospital hospital, where she was taken after the accident.
The child was unconscious when picked up, but examination at the hospital showed no external marks of injury, and X-ray photographs show no fracture of the skull, although there is bleeding from the ear.
The machine that hit the child was driven by Nathan E. Whiting of 27 Benjamin street, who was bringing a party of workmen in to the city. According to the report he made to the police department, he was driving at the rate of 20 miles an hour when the little girl ran out and into the machine so that he could not avoid hitting her.
The mother of the girl was there at the time and saw the accident, having been visiting with her daughter at the home of Alfred Kelly on the Salem turnpike. Mr. Kelly and Charles P. O'Neill took the girl to the hospital, where it was reported that the little girl was as comfortable as could be expected.

SENATE GIVES FORT HALE PARK TO CONNECTICUT

The senate on Tuesday passed the bill transferring to the state of Connecticut the military reservation at Fort Hale Park, which the war department announced a year ago it planned to abandon for military purposes. If President Harding signs the bill, as expected, thus completing the transfer, the state park commission will turn over the reservation to the city of New Haven to be used as part of the park as at present.
A group of New Haveners, among them George Doolittle, Seymour, became active in the matter when the war department announced its plan, fearing that the reservation might be sold to a private party and the site lost to the city. It was pointed out at the time that the government had no appropriate memorial to Nathan Hale, Connecticut's Revolutionary patriot, and suggested that the reservation be set aside for this purpose.
Mr. Seymour communicated with Congressman Tilton, who tried to have a bill passed by the house transferring title in the reservation to the city of New Haven. It soon became apparent that this would be futile, since the house did not want to establish such a precedent, and after further communication with Mr. Seymour, Congressman Tilton amended the bill to have title transferred to the state. This bill was passed by the house several months ago.

Mr. Seymour wrote to Senators Bran- degan and McLean of Connecticut, and chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, urging them to work for passage of the bill, but nothing definite was heard from Mr. Seymour until he returned from Europe recently and the congressman apparently pushed the matter for Mr. Seymour.

Mr. Seymour received a telegram from him saying that the senate had passed the bill.
It is expected that the president will sign the bill, thus saving the plot to the community.
No definite action has been taken yet in regard to the military reservation at Lighthouse Point, which the war department also announced it would abandon for military purposes.

MAKE COLLEGE EDUCATION TRAIN FOR CITIZENSHIP

Middleton, Conn., Sept. 21.—Acting President Stephen Henry Olin, L. L. D., Wesleyan, '68, son of former President Stephen Olin, who administered the affairs of the Middleton college from 1873 until 1881, except for one year, today delivered the Matriculation Service address in Memorial chapel, in which he pleaded for a return to a more unified curriculum for college training, and stated that a college should be a student's training camp for citizenship.
Dr. Olin, using a quotation of his father's, "Education is the natural source and guide of popular opinion," traced the development of the elective system of studies in colleges and showed how "individualism" ran riot until the members of the same college class were no more fitted to act together than were the builders of Babel after the confusion of tongues. He also stated that class, stating that Wesleyan had "always been a school of character" that it had taught "that industry and integrity are necessary foundations of real success." Over 500 undergraduates, and entire faculty in academic costume, and many township and alumni students, were among the visitors was Rev. David G. Downey, L. L. D., vice president of the board of trustees.

SUPERIOR COURT HEARS SUIT OVER $2,000 CLAIM
The case of the Hawthorne Sewing & Door Co. of New London against Thomas C. West, former New London contractor for payment of $2,000 for material on the contract for the Northwest Hose Co. house in Branford street, New London, was tried before Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court there on Wednesday.

In October, 1921, the plaintiff secured judgment against West for $2,197.27 which was the balance due on the contract for material furnished on the Northwest Hose house. When execution was made upon the city for payment of the money, it was refused on the ground that there was only a balance of $225 on the contract price of $11,500 for the house and that money had been garnished by Walter A. Kilgarr and Leroy Barrow for claims against West.

The plaintiff claims that $375 for extra work amounting to approximately $3,900 had been paid out of the contract price for the building when they should have been paid out of the appropriation of $25,000 which would leave sufficient balance on the contract price to pay the claim of the Hawthorne Co.

Fitch L. Constock, former city treasurer, and W. A. Merrett, present city treasurer, gave testimony from city books. Morris B. Payne, architect for the Northwest Hose house, testified as to the contract and Attorney Lewis Crandall, clerk of the court of common pleas, testified from records of the court.

Chief of the case occupied the whole session of the court Wednesday.

"Lend me ten until I see you again, old man?"

"I'd rather not put it just that way." "What do you mean?"

The principal use for radium in the commercial world is as a luminous material on watch and clock dials. It is not the radium that glows, but other substances which become luminous in the presence of very minute quantities of radium. Millions of watches and clocks have been thus treated, and hardly a third of an ounce of radium has been used in the production of the luminous material required.
