Restoration of Eastern Thrace and Adrianople to Turkey Also Will be Formally Considered by the French and British Cabinets Today—Approval of These Concessions Will Mean a Definite End to the Near East Crisis—France Approves All the Kemalist Demands—Only a Limited Acceptance by Great Britain is Expected.

Paris, Sept. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Limited assurances involving the return of Constantinople, Thessalonica and Adrianople to Turkey, were tentatively agreed upon today at a meeting of the conference of allied representatives and will be formally considered by the French and British cabinets tomorrow morning.

Approval of these conditions of peace would mean a definite end to the near east crisis, and it is hoped would be the result of a clash between the British and the Turkish nationalists. To meet the claims of the Ankara government should be accepted in a peace conference, today's plan would be subject to further discussions and approval by a full peace conference.

Taking the allied nationalist pact as a basis, the allied representatives discussed for nearly four hours the Turkish demands. Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, expressed some doubt as to whether the Ankara government was in any of the conditions of the nationalist advance of a peace conference; but he finally consented to forward the plan to London tonight.

Curzon approved even tentative approval of the Turkish demands before all the invited powers discussed them around the peace table, but the insistence of M. Poincaré, the French premier, was limited to the extent of accepting them contingent on their full endorsement by the British cabinet.

M. Poincaré favored out and out approval of all the Kemalist demands, but it is realized in French government circles that the best that can be hoped for is limited acceptance by Great Britain.

The general scheme for peace would contain the following points:

Constantinople, Adrianople and eastern Thrace up to the River Maritsa would be handed back to Turkey, with acceptance of a broad demilitarized zone along the Thracian, Bulgarian and Greek frontiers.

Internationalization of the straits of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus, and of some other international bodies.

Maintenance of a permanent allied military force at Gallipoli.

Right of transit through the straits of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles to all nations.

It is probable the British forces at Thrace would remain there until a peace treaty is signed between Turkey and Greece. The British would further insure the straits of the Bosphorus and eastern Thrace in order to insure peace in that part of Europe.

Premier Poincaré desired to have certain of the Kemalist demands approved today so that Franklin D. Roosevelt could be notified of the Franco-Turkish agreement, might proceed immediately to Smyrna in an endeavor to prevent Mustafa Kemal Pasha from committing the act which would cause hostilities between the Kemalists and the British. M. Bonin is now expected to remain in Paris until tomorrow evening.

The two cabinets approve of the plan as outlined by the conference today. M. Bonin will present it to Mustafa Kemal Pasha and try to obtain a promise from him that the Turkish forces will remain in Thrace until a peace conference meets.

It was further decided by the conference today to hold the conference at Paris, unless the Turks object to this place. It is possible that the conference will be held October 10 or 12.

ALL VICTIMS CHILDREN IN THEATRE FLOOR COLLAPSE

An 8-Year-Old Girl Was Killed and 37 Children and the Proprietor Were Injured—The Children Were in the Lobby When the Concrete Floor Cracked From End to End, Dropping the Little Ones into the Basement—A Dozen Boys and Girls Were Unconscious When They Were Dug From the Mass of Stone and Cement—The Theatre Owner and Four Children Are in a Serious Condition.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Fifty chattering school children, most of them less than twelve years old, were massed in the lobby of the Strand, a new motion picture theatre in the East Liberty district last night, awaiting admission to a free show when the concrete floor cracked from end to end and dropped the little ones into the basement.

The body of eight-year-old Madeline Kunkle, dressed in holiday garb, was removed from the debris. The injured 37 children and the theatre proprietor, were placed on cots in nearby hospitals at approximately the minute the performance should have started. Sol Belnick, theatre owner, who with his wife and four of the children were in a serious condition tonight, were hospitalized at approximately the minute the performance should have started. Sol Belnick, theatre owner, who with his wife and four of the children were in a serious condition tonight, were hospitalized at approximately the minute the performance should have started.

Physicians at the Pittsburgh hospital rendered first aid to the injured before the institution was reached by a score of hysterical mothers. Victims who escaped grave injuries were permitted to go home.

City officials began their investigation, as soon as the injured were removed. The free show was arranged several days ago exclusively for neighborhood school children. The program was to start about 4:30 o'clock and the crowd on hand consisted of the early delegation of youngsters.

The youngsters had started about the theatre until close to opening time. The realistic group clustered around the ticket window.

The crash and cries of the frightened youngsters were heard two blocks away. Policemen and civilians who made their first rescue said some of the children were buried "head deep."

Three jagged chunks of concrete were lifted from the unconscious form of a girl of about eight years. Underneath was a bleeding crying boy. Firemen forced their way through clouds of dust. The district chief was first to go down. At the bottom he noticed a frame, under which several children were pinned. He called for a rope and a frame containing a boy was dragged to the surface. It advertised "The Trap," the film the kiddies were invited to witness.

Robert J. Cochran, city superintendent of building inspection, after a minute examination of the theatre floor tonight, reported that the floor was not properly constructed and that several of the timber supports were rotten.

Make Your Advertising Reach the People

Maybe a long haired psychologist can emerge from his trance and prove that a campaign in medium of national circulation is profitable for a producer or dealer with a necessarily restricted distribution.

That is all right—for the psychologist.

It is not his money.

But a common, ordinary business man knows that most advertising profits come from selecting newspapers reaching the most prospects within territories where the advertiser has distribution.

To reach the trade of Norwich and vicinity there is no medium that can render the house to house service that is afforded by advertising columns of The Bulletin. Make use of it each morning.

During the past week the following matter has appeared in The Bulletin's news columns, for twelve cents a week:

JEALOUSY GIVEN AS MOTIVE FOR THE HALL-MILLS TRAGEDY

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 22.—(By the A. P.)—A jealous woman killed my mom and Mr. Hall.

This assertion, fitting in perfectly with the theory which authorities investigating the murder of Mrs. Charlotte Mills and the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, are holding every effort to prove, was made this evening by Charlotte Mills, 16-year-old daughter of the dead woman. It was the first time she had broken her silence since before the authorities since the tragedy struck into the humble Mills' home and left her in tears.

"The woman I think killed mom," the girl continued, with bitterness in her voice, "was my mother. She named a woman whom the authorities who tried to prove, was the center of most of their suspicions."

"This woman isn't an ordinary woman," she went on, "she has funny ideas that make you afraid of her. She has been in an insane asylum. She is three times as strong as most women. She has a very strong character. She didn't have a chance."

Charlotte admitted she had given her mother a package of drugs from the Hotel Douglas in the Times Square district, which she had been told to give to her mother. She said she had seen the package in the lobby of the hotel, and she had seen the package in the lobby of the hotel, and she had seen the package in the lobby of the hotel.

The raid furnished an extra thrill for thousands of theatre-goers and it was a sensational event in the history of the city. The raid was carried out in the lobby of the hotel, and the raiders declared they had secured $300,000 worth of drugs.

Have Kemalist Henry Gust

There is considerable speculation here whether the Kemalists have guns of sufficient calibre to interfere with the British fleet or drive it from the straits of the Bosphorus. It is said that the Turks long since provided themselves with heavy guns with the object of forcing all naval vessels from the straits of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles. It is said that the British will hold tenaciously to Chanak, the ground being taken that no naval vessel can pass through the straits unless they have sufficient land forces on both sides of the waterway to prevent the Turks from planting heavy land batteries.

Premier Lloyd George remained at Chiquers Court today, but he was in contact with the British cabinet. His office in Downing street and with members of the cabinet, who were holding themselves in readiness for action in case the news from Paris on the Near East conference, which is expected to meet tonight, was that Great Britain was drifting into a new war which would include the middle east.

Whereas the news lately had dropped from six shillings in the pound to five shillings, and which another war probably would raise again. Labor leaders pointed out that with one of the biggest strikes in the world facing the country it was no time to unsettle business, especially when the registered unemployment figures already aggregated 1,329,769.

Few details were received here in reports of the accident to friends of the injured representative. It was said the automobile skidded into a telegraph pole and then turned turtle on one side of the road embankment to one side of the road.

Two explosions killed by explosion near New Haven.

New Haven, Sept. 22.—Two men were instantly killed and a third was seriously injured today by a premature explosion of dynamite being packed into a hole in a trap rock quarry at the foot of Sleeping Giant mountain, near here. The dead men are John Argentieri, 30, and John Scamello, 37, both employed as blasters. William Kannak, an assistant, was badly injured and was taken to the New Haven hospital.

The men had packed 150 pounds of dynamite into one hole and were packing fifty pounds into another when the explosion occurred. It is not known what caused the dynamite to explode. The dynamite in the first hole was also exploded and a large hole was torn in the side of the quarry.

Argentieri leaves his widow and three children, while Scamello is reported to have had a wife and several children in Italy.
