OFFICERS GET LIQUOR EVIDENCE AT WEST THAMES STREET HOUSE

The seizure made by the officers consisted of one quart bottle of whiskey, bottled in bond in 1922, according to the label on it; one jar with about a quart of 'white mule' in it, and two other jars, each containing about a quart of what is said to be colored moonshine liquor. One of the bottles was found in the front room of the house and the others in the closets.

According to the officers, they had knowledge that Gershon had been circulating reports that his house wouldn't be searched, because he had the officers 'fixed.' For that reason they were all the more well satisfied with the results of the raid and the evidence they secured.

When Dr. Frederick E. Taylor of Indianapolis and I were chosen by the foreign mission board to go and preach to the Czechoslovakians, we realized we were not going there to preach to them, but simply reply them what we owe them for the religion that people handed on to us through the ages until it reached the English nation.

The people that make up the Czechoslovakians, the Bohemians, Moravians and Slovaks, were crushed under the heel of the Hapsburgs and the German empire.

When the war came these Slovaks were forced to fight for a flag they hated and for a religion they despised.

HOME SERVICE WORK IS OBLIGATION OF RED CROSS

Last year the executive committee of the Norwich Red Cross tried the experiment of employing a full time paid executive secretary, a trained worker, Miss Edith Rockwell organized and directed a most successful campaign, with a pageant and home-to-house canvass, carried on by the home service work, revived the Junior Red Cross organized classes in home care of the sick in the auxiliaries as well as in the city, and did the general secretarial work of the chapter.

In March a policy of retrenchment was adopted and the general office was closed. Arrangements were made with the family welfare department of the United Workers to administer the home service work, still financed and directed by the Red Cross.

Home service work would show a steady decrease but for the fact that two state institutions at Wauwages, the insane and the state sanatorium there are fifty ex-service men from different parts of Connecticut who are paying the toll of war in shell-shock and tuberculosis. Home service offices all over the state keep in touch with these men through the Norwich chapter, and our obligations to them cannot be denied and must not be forgotten.

There will be no home-to-house canvass this year, we appeal through the mails, but there will be a booth in the Boston Store on Saturday, Armistice Day, and in the Thames bank on Monday. Membership fees and special contributions for relief work in the Near Central Baptist church, will be sent to Frederick W. Lester, treasurer, 43 Broadway.

Nursing Activities. The report of the nursing activities committee for the year ending Oct. 31, 1922, is made as follows by Mrs. Frances E. Tagley, chairman of the committee:

The chief activity of the nursing committee this year was the organization of classes in home hygiene and care of the sick. Ever since the war there has been an ever-increasing demand for more knowledge among the lines, and it is the aim and earnest desire of the Red Cross to make this course available to all women, wherever possible.

This has been a difficult task, especially in the rural sections, because of a lack of suitable instructors. Last November, however, through the Norwich, Jewett City and Plainfield chapters, cooperating, a plan was worked out by which they jointly financed the expense of a traveling instructor, a graduate registered nurse who devoted her entire time to the teaching of classes in home nursing. Each chapter and branch contributed in proportion to the number of classes held in their territory. The organization of these classes was carried on by local nursing chairman or chapter representative in co-operation with Miss Edith Rockwell, Norwich chapter executive secretary, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, chairman of the chairman of the nursing activities committee. Eleven classes were organized and Miss Lydia Cookley, R. N., of New York, recommended by the Atlantic division, was on February first and completed the work June first. Classes were held in Plainfield, Jewett City, Danville, Norwich, Gales Ferry, Baltic and Norwich. On the whole the classes were very successful and much appreciated. Of the one hundred students enrolled in the Norwich classes, fifty received certificates.

Public Health Nursing. As your representative on the advisory board of the department of health for that part of the health work which pertains to the school children it has been my pleasure to attend all the monthly meetings except one. A dental hygienist was secured and added to the staff of health workers early in March and the school children's work, because it was impossible to secure more than one, the $600 voted by the Red Cross executive committee to help finance a second hygienist was not applied for by Dr. Thompson. Miss Margaret K. Stack of Hartford, state director of public health nursing, upon invitation of the advisory board has spent some time in Norwich this fall, going over the entire field of school nursing, and her report containing valuable suggestions will be at hand shortly. Important changes have taken place in the nursing staff, the personnel of the board and in the position of town health officer. Dr. George Thompson, who has held this position for fifteen years, resigned in September. Dr. Brophy accepted the appointment in November. It will be remembered that when the direction of health work in the schools was transferred from the board of education to the town health officer two years ago it was for the purpose of making the health work available to all the children of the city and town, thus broadening the scope. The process of broadening brought increased responsibility and innumerable details of reorganization had to be worked out. Dr. Thompson had been most faithful in the performance of these extra duties thrust upon him by virtue of his position as town health officer, and with the help of his advisory board each year considerable progress</
