CHENEY was equal to the occasion, and guests were delighted with a fine roast of lamb. Friday morning Mr. Turkey showed up on the boat train, bright and early, and was declared to be the best ever, even if a little late.

A Jewett City man has a clipping from a paper printed fifty years ago. He wonders if any of the older residents in Woodstock or Putnam, remember about Squire McCellan's mammoth wood shed.

The shed was built by John McCellan, a great uncle of the famous George B. McCellan, at Woodstock, the early home of the McCellan family.

For years it was the leading curiosity of the town. The story gives its dimensions as thirty-two feet in length, by three feet in breadth.

The men and boys loaded on full ten cords of the finest hickory (worth $120 in the local market today) and drove off down to the parson's home, where willing hands piled it up at his door.

Never before in the history of the Palmyra district in the south part of the town did the old fashioned, old sound and resound with music as they did last Friday evening when the radio receiving set equipped with a loud speaker, picked up a band concert by the Fort Worth High school cadet band, broadcasted from station WJAP.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Claussen entertained Mrs. Claussen's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hazen on Thursday.

Thanksgiving guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Cram were E. K. Whitehouse, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Erickson, Mrs. John Erickson and Miss Ethel Erickson.

Two young men, both natives of Jewett City, have been offered and have accepted positions in the business life of the day, the first in a month, by passing notice. As stated in Saturday's Bulletin, the directors of the Jewett City Trust company have deemed it advisable to give Chester Dutkowski and James G. Dolan a few days' vacation in place of its treasurer and secretary.

A glance at the educational and efficiency equipment of the two young men, disclosed the fact that they being graduated from the Riverside Grammar school in Jewett City, both sought further education in the Norwich school.

The treasurer at a commercial institution and the secretary at the Norwich Free Academy. For several months Mr. Dutkowski was connected with the office forces of the bank, dating from its incorporation, his efficiency and general business address, winning the complimentary mention of the management.

Mr. Dolan has been privileged also, to come favorably in touch with the business world, having had valuable experience while engaged in the interest of a number of financial concerns.

Most favorable of all, in connection with the important banking positions which these young men are to take over, is the confidence evidenced by the board of directors, and the satisfied attitude of the hundreds of depositors and patrons of this finely conducted and rapidly expanding institution.

Rev. J. W. Payne attended the funeral of Rev. Welcome Bates, in New London Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Stewart, Miss Irene Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Benjamin were in Maynard, Mass., Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. Stewart's cousin. The young man was 36 years of age, and died as the result of an operation for appendicitis. He was a visitor here last summer at the Stewart home.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Lee of Webster, Mass., were visitors at the home of Mrs. Sarah A. and Thomas E. Lee, Sunday.

Mrs. R. F. Cheney's native home is in Jamaica, Vt. In the heart of the Green Mountain state's famous and well known turkey belt. A letter notified Mrs. Cheney that a fine 10-pound turkey had been forwarded to her by parcel post, and that it had been mailed early Monday morning.

Relatives and friends to make up a grand old fashioned family gathering, were invited, and Mrs. Cheney was prepared to call upon the guest, who arrived in hand to tell an awe-inspired audience just how the Thos. H. Ince folks "foiled 'em all" when they made it look like a thriller, in the scene when an escaping convict is matched off the roof of a speeding express train.

The thrilling incident occurs in "Skin Deep" Ince's special production appearing as the feature in an exceptional bill at the Strand theatre this week.

There is no "take" about this startling transfer of the convict from the back of the flyer to the airplane. The train not only looks in the picture as though it were tearing over the rails—it actually was, when the scene was shot.

The train had to travel at a speed of 50 miles an hour to accommodate the slow speed the airplane could travel with safety to all concerned. Both the pilot and the man on top of the train took their lives in their hands, but the stunt finally was successful. It was one time when the ingenuity of the motion picture producer to "fake" a dangerous scene ran up against a stone wall.

The second feature is "The Like Em Rough," in the life of the latest "Marty" picture starring Viola Dana which will be at the Strand theatre today for a run of three days. Miss Dana plays the role of a girl whose aversion to discipline and authority is almost a mania. Discovering that her aunt and uncle, with whom she lives, are plotting to marry her off to a certain young man whom they regard as a most desirable husband, Katharine decides to take matters into her own hands.

"I'll show 'em," she says, "I'll go out and marry the first man I meet, and bring him back as my husband to the wedding."

Now it happened that the first man that she met was a big, bearded, rough-looking customer dressed in lumberman's garb. Nothing daunted, Katharine offers him $100 to marry her and after the ceremony says: "Thanks a lot, see you again sometime, maybe." It is informed her that she will see him from now on, jump into her car and carries her off to a lumber camp in the mountains. The resulting complications furnish much fun and thrills to everyone but Katharine.

They Like 'Em Rough is a Harry Beaumont production, written and adapted by Rex Taylor, and photographed by John Arnold.

It is an exceptionally fine program and we cannot urge you too strongly to see it. This is a Strand week.

The Zion Harp Ensemble. The Zion Harp Ensemble, with Gerold MacAllister, tenor, is to appear Dec. 11th at the Community House. A delightful concert will be given by these artists who have won deserved popularity from the fine musicianship of the ensemble, the exquisite program rendered, and the playing of the harp, and the beautiful golden instruments and the incomparably sweet music produced by the harp ensemble. This organization is in constant demand and is appearing in many important clubs with marked success.

Miss Nellie Zimmer, noted for her beautiful playing on the harp, is the harp soloist. The other harpists are Carolyn Rice and Adèle Graves. All are artists of international reputation. Gerold MacAllister has a tenor voice of beautiful quality and sings with fine expression. The program will be varied and delightful, consisting of selections by the harp trio, harp solos, tenor solo and tenor with the harp trio.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 23, Grace Sage, the famous dramatic artist, will appear. Miss Sage is one of the foremost artists on the American platform. She has appeared with emphasis and success in the leading plays of this country and presents the scenes of a play with charming simplicity. Her rich, flexible voice adds greatly to the expression of the beauty of the lines.

Both these attractions are under the auspices of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

Course tickets for this series, $1.50; single admission $1. Tickets are on sale at Cranston & Co.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Thrilling Scenes Abound in Action "To Have and to Hold," at the Broadway.

Pirates being thrown headlong from towering decks; sword fights while cat in boom, and a thrilling swing for life 120 feet across and over the deck of a raking Corsair craft—such are the thrilling features of George Fitzmaurice's new Paramount picture, "To Have and to Hold," with Betty Compton and Bert Lyell in the featured leads.

Guided by Theodore Kosloff and W. J. Ferguson, the picture is a most dramatic novel. The pirate incidents were taken in the ocean off Balboa, Calif., aboard the old South sea trading schooner, Wm. Irwin, specially rebuilt for pirate purposes. A hundred tough looking pirates with swords, pistols, bandannas and all the vivid background against which the principals play out their thrilling parts.
