Massachusetts Constitutional Convention.

The Boston Advertiser of the 3d instant gives the following synopsis of the doings of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention:

The convention was in session with the exception of a recess at one o'clock p. m., and another at seven, of an hour each, from nine o'clock on Monday morning to two on Tuesday.

During that period the final act of the convention embracing the rights of its laborers from the commencement, was reported for the first time, forming a compact printed pamphlet of forty pages.

The parts of the present constitution thus retained, together with the most important amendments now adopted consisting of fourteen distinct chapters, and of thirty-eight printed pages, are submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection, in a single act.

Among the present amendments thus incorporated in the proposition No. 1, are: 1. One which entirely changes the organization and manner of election of the Senate...

2. It is provided that the council shall be elected by the people—one member in each of eight districts, each council district to be composed of five contiguous senatorial districts.

3. A new organization of the House of Representatives, which is to consist of 407 members elected annually, and 431 elected on the years of the valuation of estates.

4. There are some important alterations in regard to the majority and plurality of votes to be required in elections of a somewhat complex character.

5. The principal State officers—viz: Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor, and Attorney General—are to be chosen by the people.

6. An important change is proposed in the tenure of judicial appointments—the term of office of Judges of the supreme judicial, and other courts, being limited to ten years, instead of being during good behavior.

7. Judges of Probate, Registers of Probate and of Deeds, Sheriffs, District Attorneys, and Trial Justices, are to be chosen triennially by the people.

8. The right of suffrage is opened to every male citizen twenty-one years of age and upwards, except paupers and persons under guardianship, who has been a resident in the Commonwealth one year, and in the town in which he may claim a right to vote, six months; the condition of payment of a State or county tax being dispensed with.

9. Provision is made for taking the sense of the people on the question of the expediency of a convention for a new revision of the constitution in 1873, and in the twentieth year thereafter.

Arrival of the Baltic—Three Days Later from Europe.

New York, August 7.—The steamer Baltic has arrived, having left Liverpool on the twenty-seventh ultimo.

The Turkish question was considered settled, though the Govt's assent had not been received, but was daily expected.

It was reported that England was negotiating with Denmark to obtain command of the entrance to the Baltic in case of war with Russia.

It was rumored at Constantinople that the United States was endeavoring to purchase Port Mahmud.

The Russian were quiet in the Principality. The Kosova affair still remains in statu quo.

The sloop-of-war St. Louis had left Smyrna. Two Austrian frigates had arrived there.

The Chinese Empire divided, and Nankin declared independent of the Tartar dynasty.

A rising of the people was feared at Canton. A despatch from Vienna of the twenty-second ultimo says that a conspiracy had just been discovered, and forty-seven persons had been arrested.

The difficulties between Austria and Switzerland were nearly settled.

Flour advanced 6d. to 1s. Cotton firm.

Alabama Election. Mobile, August 4.—The returns are sufficient to indicate the election of Colonel Winston, Democrat, for Governor, although there were four candidates for that office.

W. S. Earnest, the Whig candidate, received a strong vote, including the support of the temperance party.

The Whigs in this city have a majority, and also in Montgomery, Macon, Chambers, and Barbour counties.

The election for the Congressional delegation, as far as heard from, indicates the choice of Sampson W. Harris, Democrat, in the third district, over S. D. Moore; George S. Houston, Union Democrat, in the fifth; W. R. Cobb, Democrat, in the sixth, over Clement C. Clay, jr.; and Jas. T. Dowdell, Democrat, over Alexander White, Whig, in the seventh.

In Mobile a portion of the first district, Philip Phillips, Democrat, has a majority of 200 over E. Lockwood, the Whig candidate.

In the second district James Abercrombie, Whig, is elected over David Clouton, Democrat.

American Books.—The last number of the Edinburgh Review contains an article on "Education in the United States," in which is the following remark:

"A few years since, the question was asked by a distinguished divine, 'Who reads an American book?' The question now is, 'Who does not read an American book, journal, or newspaper?'"

LOCAL MATTERS.

THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC PRINTING.—

A large portion of the Democracy of this city attached to the Jackson Democratic Association have been nervously exercised of late in consequence of the report that Mr. W. W. Curran, one of the most active members of the organization, and an applicant for the situation of Government Superintendent of Public Printing, is likely to be disappointed by the selection of Mr. Seaman, of Connecticut.

A meeting with reference to the subject was, we learn, contemplated by the more impulsive members on Friday night; but calm counsels prevailed, and there was a postponement of the convocation. Mr. Curran has just resigned his post as superintendent of printing in the Union office, and is now in the field without business embarrassment.

Meantime Mr. John T. Towers, the present Government Superintendent of Public Printing, is discharging the duties of the office with his usual professional ability, apparently unmoved by the outside agitation which threatens to shake him from his shoes.

THE TELEGRAPH.—In June, 1844, Professor Morse, it is well known, erected the first telegraphic line in the United States, between Washington and Baltimore, a distance of forty miles; and in about eight years from that time, such was the popularity and necessity of this mode of intercommunication, there were twenty-three thousand two hundred and eighty-one miles of wire extended all over the country; and ere long the incomprehensibly swift and silent electric agency will convey intelligence even to the Pacific shores.

The business transacted upon the various lines is immense, and one prominent proof of this exists in the fact that the associated press of New York, embracing five newspaper establishments, paid, during the year ending the first of November last, nearly fifty thousand dollars for despatches; and about fourteen thousand dollars for special and exclusive messages not included in the expenses of the association.

But, notwithstanding the patronage hitherto bestowed upon the telegraphs, it could be rendered still greater and more profitable to the proprietors. Ten words or less, between Washington and Baltimore, are transmitted at a cost of twenty cents, or double former rates; and to New Orleans, Louisiana, two dollars and twenty cents.

The distance in the one case is forty, and in the other fourteen hundred and eight miles. As under the cheap postage system very many more letters are sent through the mails than formerly, and as travel has to a great extent increased with the lessening of the fare from time to time, so would the number of messages by telegraph be largely augmented by a reduction of tolls.

And not only this, but the poor generally would be enabled to share in the blessings and conveniences of the great invention, which are now nearly altogether denied.

A few days ago a laboring man in this city had to pay a full day's wages for the transmission of a message of four words to a relative in Boston. And so it is elsewhere; they who are but slightly compensated for their toil must either submit to exorbitant rates, or forego the advantages of the telegraph.

In these days of "reductions," we cannot conceive why the electric tolls should not be diminished; if for no other reason, the increase of the number of messages would at least make up pecuniary deficiencies, while the people generally would be enabled the more easily to avail themselves of this means of correspondence.

RIOUS CONDUCT.—The colored people's camping, a short distance over the Eastern Branch, yesterday was numerously attended by persons from Washington, Georgetown, and the surrounding country. Some of the whites availed themselves of the intoxicating facilities plentifully afforded by vendors of spirituous drinks without the camp line, and the consequence was several desperate fights. Four or five of the rioters were arrested, and held to bail for their appearance at court.

DOG-KILLING.—A police officer informs us that a good many dogs have been killed by him and his official companions during the last two weeks. Did not the information come from a quarter in which reliance can be placed, we should doubt the statement, as we can see no diminution of the number of canines enjoying the "freedom of the city." The quiet and refined Italian method of poisoning is preferred to the noisy and vulgar pistol.

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.—A gentleman of this city not long since received through the post office an anonymous note, to the effect that the writer was indebted to the person to whom it was addressed the sum of upwards of fifty cents; and to pay this, with interest, were enclosed twenty three-cent postage stamps.

PAYMENTS.—We notice that the worn-out side pavements throughout the city are in the course of being replaced by new ones, in compliance with a municipal law. This description of work has been fairly commenced on Pennsylvania avenue, beginning on the north side near the Capitol, and proceeding westwards.

DANIEL T. WOODWARD.—A friend who yesterday visited this individual, now under sentence of death for the murder of his wife, informs us that he does not yet seem to realize the awfulness of the event which awaits him, and that he yet prefers hanging to a commutation of his sentence to imprisonment in the penitentiary. Banishment beyond the limits of the territory of the United States, or death upon the scaffold, is the issue which he himself presents. The memorial to the President of the United States, now circulating for signatures, however, asks for banishment or confinement in the penitentiary.

APPROPRIATE NAMES.—On Saturday, as appears from the official police reports, Bill Drinkard and Thomas Gaezle were, in company with others, both sent to the workhouse for thirty days for being drunk.
