man, that is too good to pray at the feet of the old Gamaliel...

Mr. Sumner—I must correct the Senator. My speech was with regard to the Rebel States...

The Crisis—Republican Criticisms on the Conduct of the War. The New York Herald, of the 7th inst., in an article discussing 'The mismanagement and mismanagers of the War Department,' remarks:

There is a time to keep silence and a time to speak. The campaign has concluded with our repulse from before Richmond. The campaign to secure a thorough reformation for the future.

The weak point of the nation is the War Department. From the gross errors, reckless mismanagement and reckless intrigues which have disgraced that department can be traced all the disasters, all the defeats, all the repulses which our arms have sustained.

There is nothing riotous in our party, there is no thieving and lying in us, at least beyond what is natural to human nature, and not even as much as in the case of the other parties.

These censures come from a paper which has given the Administration a vigorous support in its efforts to crush out the rebellion. The New York World is also equally severe in its condemnation of the criminal blunders and gross mismanagement of the War Department.

It is not to be denied that the Administration has been an ardent and unyielding advocate of the vigorous prosecution of the war. We copy the following article from its issue of the 4th inst., and ask for the sentiments it utters the careful consideration of all who desire a more efficient administration of the Government.

The nation is in the most eventful crisis of its history. On the 15th of July, the day of the battle of Vicksburg, the moral courage and foresight of its North, hang all our destinies—hangs the very existence of the Republic.

efficient use of the means of victory, a still more lavish use of every instrument which God, nature and the nation had placed in their power...

And the constant attempts of Congress and elsewhere to connect the abolition of slavery with the works of the army is an insult to our brave and gallant brothers in the field for the Union and the Constitution and for no other cause.

That the soldier, comprising the armies of the Union have merited a nation's thanks, and will receive a nation's care, and upon their victorious return we will meet them with rejoicing hearts...

That the whole waste of blood and life, which has so frequently appeared in the conduct of the war, as expressed by committees of Congress, committees on claims and other ways...

That the Union as it is the Union of Washington and of the Fathers, the Union which made America great among the nations...

That in considering the dangers which uniformly threaten the Union we find two fallacies attempting to accomplish the work of destruction. The one being that of secession, civil war...

That, in dealing with the other class of foes to the Union, it becomes every citizen to bear in mind the advice of the fathers. Obeying the sacred commands of Washington, they should revere and protect the rights of every citizen...

them as lightermen, but these are not points included in Mr. Wickliffe's resolution.

To me it seemed that the liberty to employ men in any particular capacity implied with it liberty also to supply them with the necessary tools, and acting upon this I have loathed, equipped, and armed the only loyal regiment yet raised in South Carolina.

I must say in vindication of my own conduct, that I have seen a many other drilled, drilled and imperative claims on my time and attention, a much more satisfactory result might have been hoped for; and that, in place of only one, as at present, at least five or six well drilled, brave, and active regiments should be raised.

They are eager, beyond all things, to take the field and be led into action, and it is the unanimous opinion of the officers who have had charge of them, that in the peculiarities of this climate and country, they will perform fully and equal to men as the soldiers of the British army in the West India Islands.

In conclusion I would say it is my hope, there being no possibility of other reinforcements, owing to the exigencies of the campaign of the Peninsula, to have organized by the end of the next fall, and to be able to present the Government from 45,000 to 50,000 of these hardy and devoted soldiers.

Trusting that this letter may form part of your answer to Mr. Wickliffe's resolution. I have the honor to be, D. HUNTER, Major-General Commanding.
