

NEWS OF THE MORNING.

In New York yesterday government bonds were quoted at 107 1/2 for 1897; 107 1/2 for 1898; 108 1/2 for 1899; sterling 4 1/2; silver 66 1/2; silver coin, 100 discount buying, per selling, 100 1/2; London, 104 1/2; Canada, 105 1/2; 5 per cent. United States bonds, 105 1/2; 4 1/2, 104 1/2.

In San Francisco gold dollars are quoted at par; Mexican dollars, 91 buying, 91 selling.

An Liverpool wheat was quoted at 20 1/2 for good to choice California.

The stock market in San Francisco yesterday morning opened weak and prices varied as the call proceeded. In some instances values were lower than they have been for a long time. Sierra Nevada got down to $10 1/2, with sales of 300 shares at that figure. This is $3 1/2 lower than the lowest figure during the year.

At New York, the Union consolidated sales yesterday morning were at $23, or $13 below the lowest price Tuesday morning. At the close Sierra Nevada closed up to $10 1/2 and Union Consolidated at $20 7/8.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention which meets in this city to-day has no difficult work before it, nor can it feel any doubt as to the line of action which will prove acceptable to the party in the State. There is no question that the Republican sentiment in California is very pronounced in favor of James G. Blaine for President, and if the Convention should instruct the twelve delegates to the National Convention to vote and work for Mr. Blaine, that action would meet the approval of the party.

Regarding the question of platform, there is plenty of room for suggestion. It must be remembered that in a Presidential year it is the National Convention which formulates the issues upon which the campaign is based, and that therefore very little significance can attach to any resolutions now adopted, unless they are calculated in some way to affect the policy of the National organization. To produce such an effect it would be necessary to rise above the commonplace ideas of such occasions, and to advance some clear-cut, bold, and perhaps even aggressive propositions. The constitutional timidity of politicians generally causes them to shrink from any action of this kind, and will probably have that result in the present case; but we have no doubt that it would be possible to infuse a good deal of enthusiasm into the party by the adoption of a course somewhat out of the usual line.

An anti-third term resolution would certainly be endorsed by a very large number of Republicans, though the politicians are apt to be afraid of it because of the contingency of Grant's ultimate nomination. In several Eastern conventions, where the delegates have been instructed for Blaine, Sherman, or Edmunds, resolutions have been passed to the effect that the party would stand by the nominee of the National Convention, whoever he might be. It has been objected to this, with considerable force, that it is a covert encouragement to the machine politicians who are working to foist Grant upon the party, and that it is equivalent to telling them that they have only to get to the Convention successfully to be assured of the support of those who are opposed to them. Of course such a resolution is entirely gratuitous, the natural presumption being that the party will support the Chicago nominee provided he is not so objectionable as to force a revolt; in which case it is perfectly clear that the promise made beforehand to support him would amount to nothing. It is the plain interest of all who desire the nomination of any other candidate than Grant, and who do not believe that the party could succeed with him, to do all in their power for the candidate of their choice, and to refrain from doing anything for the candidate to whom they are opposed.

PROTECTION OF DISPATCHES.

Townsend, of Illinois, has introduced a bill to protect telegraphic dispatches from violation, and no doubt it will become a law. The principle is entirely sound, and the inviolability of telegraphic messages being as necessary as that of the mails, and in fact being embraced in the same general category. As, moreover, a Presidential campaign is about to open, and it is probable that Mr. Tilden may be the Democratic candidate, it is perfectly apparent that his party friends are in duty bound to adopt this precaution. The old gentleman of Cipher Alley expects to have use for his dictionary again in a short time, and it is natural that he should wish to guard against the possibility of having all his political dispatches published with translations by the New York Tribune. It is a prudent and opportune measure, therefore, which Mr. Townsend has introduced, and it will simplify matters greatly in the near future.

THE PENNSYLVANIA LOBBY.

Five members of the Pennsylvania lobby have just been sent to the Penitentiary for trying to bribe members of the State Legislature. Three of them are prominent and wealthy men, one being a banker. It appears that none of them had any apprehension that sentence would ever be pronounced upon them, relying upon political influence for their safety. But this influence has somehow failed them at the pinch, and the courts have proved to be inflexible. It was a four million dollar steal, the money of which they achieved their unenviable distinction, and as one of the five was the principal political agent of Senator Cameron, of course Rumor accuses the latter of being smirched, though there appears to be no evidence of the kind.

ITEMS OF MINING NEWS.

The bullion yield of Colorado for 1879 was $19,000,000. The hydraulic miners throughout the country are making great gains at a low rate, says the Nevada City Transcript. All the claims are in full blast, and large clean-ups may be expected. The miners in the Richmond, at Bureka, Nevada, are making great gains at a low rate, says the Nevada City Transcript. A SINGULAR STORY.

The story told by Mrs. Paul, of Santa Clara, concerning the alleged attempt to kill her husband by a masked man who entered her house during her husband's absence, is in many respects a very singular one. In the time last year this same lady told a story of a conspiracy to abduct Santa Senator Murphy, of Santa Clara, alleging that she had overheard the conspirators accidentally. A searching inquiry was instituted, but no corroboration of her narrative has been found from that day to this, so far as we are aware. She now states that her assailant declared his intention to kill her because she knew too much about the Murphy case, and this is a curious circumstance, because there is really nothing tangible about the Murphy case, or indeed that there ever was a Murphy case of an objective character. It is said that her husband and his father-in-law do not believe her last story, notwithstanding the fact that she is undoubtedly suffering from two gunshot wounds, and several contusions on the head. The chief difficulty in the case is of course that of understanding what motive anyone could have for inventing such a narrative, and inflicting wounds on herself to boot. It is thought that nobody attacked her, and if it is true that she was attacked, it follows that she must have shot herself. Before entering upon any examination of this theory, however, it is necessary to inquire what the lady's mental condition is, for it is highly probable, if not certain, that the explanation of the whole mystery lies in the answer to this question. Those who are at all familiar with the class of morbid phenomena commonly ranged under the generic term Hysteria, do not require to be told that even stranger things than this have often been done by women suffering from such affections. In such cases there may or may not be a positive predisposition to chronic aberration, but whether there is or not, it is quite possible for the most eccentric and unaccountable actions to be gone through, and even with an assumption of coherence and system well calculated to deceive the ordinary observer. An experienced alienist would be very likely to give useful advice in a case of this kind, and are quite prepared to learn that it is a situation in which the services of a physician are more needed than those of the detective.

THE DEMOCRATS AND WEST POINT.

The Democrats appear incapable of avoiding fatal blunders. The West Point scandal has created a very strong and general feeling of indignation in the country, and a disposition has been manifested to reform the Academy very thoroughly in consequence of it. But certain Democrats, who cherish a long-standing antipathy to West Point as the training school of those Union captains who put down the rebellion, think the temporary unpopularity of the institution affords a good opportunity for destroying it altogether, and have already begun to work to that end. The only effect of this movement can be to make the country forget the Whittaker affair altogether, and to rally to the support of the Academy. The cradle of the Federal army, the school where all the nation's most illustrious defenders and preservers have been educated, will not be suffered to fall at the instigation of Democrats whose sympathy with abortive treason is the source of their hostility to the establishment. It has been made sufficiently apparent that abuses have grown up at West Point, and that the place needs a thorough reorganization; but all the reforms which are needed can be applied without detracting in any degree from its usefulness, and only wholesome and invigorating changes will be consented to by the people. West Point must be preserved as long as the Union endures, and it must be made more efficient and valuable instead of less so. The Democrats who think it possible to pull it down will find, if they proceed much farther, that there are lions in the path, and that the American people will never consent to the destruction of this national pride and safeguard at the suggestion of disloyal enemies.

OREGON MATTE'S.

The Republican point of view this is quite natural, moreover, for unless Grant goes into office as a "strong man," it cannot go in at all. A candidate who favors "reconciliation" with the South, is in their eyes a renegade and apostate. Grant's special and peculiar recommendation to this class of people has always consisted in his availability as a "strong man." He was to do things which no other Executive could do, and which, in truth, no Executive could do without violating the Constitution. But if he has relinquished that role, and appears as a peace-maker, he can be no more acceptable to the Southern Republicans than Mr. Hayes has been, and there can be no longer any motive for their union in his behalf. The incompatibility of the "strong man" and the "reconciliation" theories is obvious, and it cannot be wondered at that it is perplexing the Southern delegates, and demoralizing them.

THE LATE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Supreme Court—The Nominees of Both Parties—Weather—Railroads—Scottish Capital. It ought to be possible for the mail to go joining overland on summer schedule time, for here we are at the 22d day of April, a season when all the world should be getting ready for May-day and the apple blossoms sending out the balmy ten thousand flowers, but the fact is the blossoms are behindhand and the roads put the schedule time at defiance. So we wait for the steamer, which goes every five days, and this time the steamer leaves just in the nick of time. The Republican State Convention is just adjourned and you can receive a summing up of its doings and the men it has placed in nomination. There has been a sharp tussle and the contest was a close one, but it was not so vigorously conducted. The chief interest centered in designating the man to run for Congress. The aspirants were W. H. O'Neil, who runs the State, and who was formerly Surveyor General, and who was in Congress from '66 to '68, Speaker of the Oregon House in '72, and is now United States District Attorney; and George W. Brown, a young lawyer of this city, who has served two sessions in the State Senate, and has commanded the unequalled respect of all, both Democrats and Republicans. George was nominated on the first ballot, and to the surprise of his competitor's friends. He is a gentleman of fine character, of undoubted integrity, of considerable ability and of high moral standing. He is a young man, so far as they know him. He is just the man to put in the field against Whiteaker, and is good for 1,000 majority, as he is able enough to make a good canvass and be an active Representative, but had been in public life long enough to find many a hard day.

OBSTINATE OPPOSERS.

In his own party. His friends claimed he had a sure thing of it, but some of us knew better. It would not be surprising if he had been hand-picked by an old sage, or a young man whom the members of his own party could make no objection. Mr. O'Neil had only a moderate following and would have been liable to the same objection. The remaining candidates were Mr. Brown, a young lawyer of this city, who has served two sessions in the State Senate, and has commanded the unequalled respect of all, both Democrats and Republicans. George was nominated on the first ballot, and to the surprise of his competitor's friends. He is a gentleman of fine character, of undoubted integrity, of considerable ability and of high moral standing. He is a young man, so far as they know him. SCOTTISH CAPITAL.

That has gone to work buying and building narrow-gauge railroads in this valley and shows plenty of pluck and a long purse to back it. They seem to be determined to take in a wide region, ultimately, and even to reach down towards Winnemucca and meet the Central Pacific at the State line. The four gigantic corporations in the field are excavating and constructing, and times must be flush in consequence. The latest, and not the least factor in these great enterprises is the Scotch capital.

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

The Democratic nominations include Judges Kelly and Prim, who are now on the Supreme Bench, and John Bennett of Bend, who has been Judge and a candidate for Congress, candidate for Circuit Judge, without election, and has been State Senator with credit. He is a plain, good, honest man, of average capacity, and will run well. Prim has been in the judiciary for many years, and is a man of high character, representing the southern district. He is quiet, and perhaps a little lazy, and has not been active in politics. He is a man of high character, representing the southern district. He is quiet, and perhaps a little lazy, and has not been active in politics.

THE DOUBLE MURDER.

The late double murder tragically enacted in the upper country is too horrible to believe. You may think that a man and woman deliberately entered their perilous relations to this fact, to take them to distant wilds and separately murder them, so as to rob them of their money, and leave their bodies to rot in the woods, is not so far from the truth. The officers who found their way back to Kansas, it forms a tale of unparaphrased horror and cold-blooded atrocity. Their recent arrest in Kansas brings relief to every mind. Their trial will be held in the city of Lawrence, and the bodies consumed, and will attract the greatest interest. We shall "sup our old of horrors."

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Solano county has recently sent six convicts to San Quentin. The street-sprinkling cart now makes its trips at night, when boats were running a race to see who could get the most water.

There is neither beef, veal nor mutton in Ward, Nev., at present, and the only butcher shop has closed up in disgust. Quite a number of little colonies from the Nietos valley, Los Angeles county, have started on prospecting tours for Arizona.

Dick Chamberlain, a printer, and formerly of Boise City, recently perished from exposure in going from Tuscarora to Rock Creek, Nev., and York.

Last year the first strawberries from Santa Clara were shipped the latter part of March. This year the berries were not half lumbered on the 10th of April.

Lambert at Candelaria, Nev., is selling his stock at $200 to $250 per acre, and board $9 per week, water five cents per gallon, whisky 25 cents a "smile."
