

SPORTING ITEMS.

Record-Union Notes and Compilation of Sporting Intelligence.

OHIO'S LAW.—Ohio's new game law provides that "whenever purchases, sells, exposes for sale, or has in his possession, any of the birds, games or animals mentioned in Sections 6960, 6961 and 6963 (killed or taken) during the time when the killing thereof is made penal, shall be fined not less than $25 nor exceeding $200, or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both."

BIG GAME.—The Nebraska State Sportsmen's Association propose a memorial to Congress regarding the much-needed protection of the big game of the Territories, and they suggest that other State societies do the same thing.

FATAL SIMULATION.—Jasper Smith, of Wise county, Texas, while out hunting, was accidentally shot dead. This is the substance of the case in the quaint language of the jury before whom was presented the dead body of a man by the name of Jasper Smith, after hearing all the evidence accessible to us, and examining the body found, that his name is Jasper Smith, and that the deceased was secured in the brush in Cattle creek bottom yelping up a turkey, and was shot by A. J. Pillows, evidently being mistaken for said Pillows for a turkey.

BAKING A BIRD IN CLAY.—Given a bright camp-fire and a bird in condition. Make a pliable cake or sheet of clay large enough to envelop the bird. Let it be about two inches thick. Smooth and straighten out the feathers, but do not pull a feather or "draw" the bird. Pack it tightly in the clay envelope and it takes the shape of, as it were, a smooth, oblong clay ball. Dig a hole in the earth under the center of the camp-fire, and bury the bird with a covering of earth, ashes and embers about three inches deep. Do this about 10 p. m., just before you turn in for the night. If you are a genuine woodsman you are supposed to keep a lively fire all night, and to turn out before daylight in the morning. Sit up the fire, start your coffee or tea, and potatoes, if you have any. Go down to the hot spring, give your face and hands a cold rinse, dig into your outer covering for that three-inch bit of broken horn comb, unroll your hair and whiskers some. Finish up by a concluding wipe with the lint towel that came in around a large loaf of bread and a supply of killiknick, and then go back to camp and "haul" your bird. You will find him represented by a lump of cracked, hard-baked clay, which, pulled off piece-meal, takes feathers and skin clean away, leaving the well-cooked body of the bird in its naked beauty, with all his gamey flavor and native aroma held in and preserved. Lay the body tenderly on the fragrant section of fresh peeled bark which serves you for a plate, get out your potatoes, bread, butter, coffee, etc., and then settle down to a breakfast that you will remember long after you have left camp and gone back to the yoke and short-tug-harness of civilization.

LAWYER TENNIS.—There are now thirty-four clubs in the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Not one of these is in California. We know of no place on the coast better provided with grounds suitable to this sport than Sacramento. The Secretary of the National Association is Clarence M. Clark, Germantown, Pa., and he will give all needed information.

TWO-MILE HEATS.—A correspondent of the Spirit of the Times, New York, protests against two-mile heats, and asks the Stewards of the Grand Circuit programme to hereafter rule them out. He says: "It was the general verdict last season that the two-mile heat races were a failure, and I cannot doubt that the good judgment of the Stewards will prevent any repetition of them. The fact is, our horses are not trained for these long distances, and it saves or orients to call upon them for these feats of endurance, and, besides, there is no doubt that they put a premium on raceability. The 'junk' in the Grand Circuit of 1881 were mostly confined to these two-mile heat affairs, and in my opinion they will never be on the square. There is too much room for plausible 'laying up,' and too great scope for 'generalship.' The public does not wish any more of these races, and is contented with the old style all along the line."

WHEELMEN.—There are half a dozen good bicyclists in Sacramento now. The number should increase. Wheelmen are great in number in the East. Our level drives give the finest bicycle routes in the world. The truth is our people are afraid some one will "look" at them when perched on a "wheel." How is it that the tricycle, so popular in England, is not out here yet? It is not quite so speedily as the bicycle, but with it "headers" are an impossibility; the rider sits down between two great wheels; they are adapted to old and young, and ladies as well as men. Some are so constructed as to carry three persons, and almost any of them carry two. We propose that the new tricycle, of which there are thirty patterns, will yet become popular in America.

LATE.—After the Forester Gun Club had been two weeks in the field with a heavy reward for the conviction of violators of the game law in the killing of doves, the State Sportsmen's Association woke up and gave notice in this column. It says: "The opening of the season, that is, to, would reward any one who would secure the arrest and conviction of the offenders. This was late action; but then, better late than never."

EFFECTIVE.—The Record-Union first called attention to the wanton shooting of doves in violation of the law, and urged the arrest of the offenders. That checked the evil; but when a Sacramento club followed with a reward and a pledge to punish violators of the law, the shooting pretty much ceased. Another year let the preventive steps be taken, so well in advance as to insure the protection of this game.

THE DERBY.—The following bets have been taken by the owner on the Derby of 1883: 5,000 to 50 against The Duke, by Barillon, out of Lady Abess; 5,000 to 50 against The Prince, by Balfe, out of Scobell's dam.

A SUCCESS.—The success of the spring meeting of the Capital Turf Club, Sacramento, was such that a permanent organization has been resolved on. The Club had a good programme, no appeals, no friction, and quit money ahead.

A PROSPECTUS.—James Cairn Simpson, the long experienced and thoroughly efficient editor of departments devoted to the horse and his culture, announces the intention to engage in the publication of a paper in San Francisco, to be known as the Breeder and Sportsman. He says: "The farm, especially the breeding of domestic animals, will have the first place. The breeding, rearing, and education of horses will, necessarily, have the foremost rank, though all kinds of live stock will receive attention. The turf and track will be awarded the prominence they are entitled to from the magnitude of depending interests, and care taken that these, the most popular of sports, be presented fully. Shooting, fishing, coursing, boating, all in fact, of the recognized, legitimate pastimes of the American people, will have a place. Indoor sports will not be overlooked, and billiards, chess, draughts, whist, etc., incorporated in order to make the paper complete. The only political questions permitted, editorially or in correspondence, will be those which have a direct bearing on the interests represented. Every department will be under the charge of men who are thoroughly versed in their respective specialties, and an experience of nearly a quarter of a century gives the editor confidence in his ability to perform the services satisfactorily to a majority of the readers. There is probably no man on the coast more competent to conduct such a journal than Mr. Simpson.

FROZEN THROAT.—At the office of the Virginia City and Gold Hill Water Company recently, there was on exhibition a block of ice in which were frozen several trout. The ice was frozen by the company's ice machine on the Divide. The trout were almost as plainly visible as though they had been suspended in air. They were in natural attitudes, and appeared to have congealed without knowing that anything was happening to them. As all their spots and colors were distinctly visible, and they stood immovable with tails and fins expanded, they would have formed a splendid study for an artist. Indeed, we think that here is a hint that painters of such subjects should not neglect. Bets were made that they would thaw out "alive and kicking," and the block of ice was accordingly placed in a tank and allowed to melt, but at last accounts the trout were lying on the bottom apparently quite dead. Artificial freezing was evidently too quick and sharp for them.—[Virginia Enterprise.]

NATURAL HISTORY.—It is too often the fact that our modern sportsmen care more for the pursuit and capture of the game, than they do for minutely examining or classifying it after the excitement of the chase is over. To such a duck is a duck, a goose is a goose, or a snipe is a snipe, with regard to the many varieties that exist in the different families. It often happens, resulting from such carelessness in whole sections, that the same variety is known by a certain name one season of the year, and by a different name at another season, owing to change in plumage consequent upon the varying seasons. A few moments' study of the conformation and habits of the bird would often make plain the identity. It is this lack of interest in practical natural history that causes the confusion in the local names of the fauna of America.—[American Field.]

TWELVE-BORES VS. TEN-BORES.—A correspondent of the American Field says: To begin with, it has been proven over and over again, and also at the Chicago Field gun trial, that a 6-bore will beat an 8-bore, and that an 8-bore will excel a 10-bore, and that a 10-bore is superior to a 12-bore. This has been found true, everything else being equal. Of this there can be no dispute, and any one who doubts it has only to look the matter up to be convinced. Simply because a certain sportsman does as good shooting with a 12-bore as another does with a 10, or because some one exchanges a 10-bore for a 12-bore with which he does better shooting, proves nothing only that either the 12-bore is bored to make a better pattern, or the person can handle it better. Incidentally, it is a fact, well known to large gun manufacturers, that the difference between the shooting of 10 and 12 gauge guns is less than between any other two sizes. For instance, everything else being equal, suppose an 8-bore was superior to a 10-bore by 20 per cent., then the difference between a 10-bore and a 12-bore would be only 8 to 10 per cent., and the 12 gauge would be found to be superior to the 14 gauge by about 20 per cent. I must not be understood as stating that a light 12-bore is nearly equal to a heavy 10-bore, but that the difference between them, when of the same weight, say from 9 1/2 to 10 pounds, is very slight. Nevertheless, the 10-bore is a better shooting gun.

DEAD.—Lady Rysdyk, the old gray broodmare, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian out of Dandy, by Enquirer, died recently at the Oakney Stud Farm.

Professor to classical student.—"If Atlas supported the world, who supported Atlas?" Student.—"The question, sir, has often been asked, but never, so far as I am aware, satisfactorily answered. I have always been of the opinion that Atlas must have married a rich wife, and got his support from her father."

Mme. Amalia Fredrich-Materna, THE GREAT SOPRANO.

Amalia Materna was born in St. George, a small market town of Styria, in 1847. Her father was the town schoolmaster and an excellent musician. In her sixth year Amalia distinguished herself in church music. When the girl was 12 years of age her father died, leaving his family penniless. Amalia's brother, however, had faith in her future, and at once proposed a journey to Vienna, where a competent musician might try her voice and undertake its culture. Amalia was presented to Professor Guntensperger. The well-known Professor admired her voice, but the advantages contingent upon undertaking Amalia's musical education did not impress him as sufficiently tempting to induce him to accept her as a pupil. Greatly disappointed, the child journeyed to Vienna and joined her mother in Upper Styria, where she passed the ensuing three years. At the expiration of this period the whole family emigrated to Graz, where, after acquiring considerable local repute in church services and concerts, Amalia finally obtained an engagement at the theater. Forty guineas—about $20—a month was her first salary; but after her successful appearance in Suppe's "Platz" her remuneration was increased to 100 guineas. After her second season in Graz, she was engaged for the Carl Theater, Vienna, at an annual salary of 5,000 guineas, and an extra honorarium of five guineas for each performance. While confining herself still to the repertoire of opera comique and opera bouffe, however, the young singer aspired to reach a higher plane of art. To this end she studied diligently the more trying roles of opera seria under Professor Proch, and one day her execution of Donna Elvira's grand air in "Don Giovanni" so delighted Hofkapellmeister Esler that he insisted upon her engagement for the Imperial Opera House in Vienna. Her concert tour in 1870 was in Bayreuth during the progress of the Wagner Fest, in August, 1876. Summoned thither by the composer of the "Ring der Nibelungen" to perform the title-role—the heroine of the mighty trilogy—Mme. Materna's glorious voice, uncommon breadth of style and intensely impassioned delivery produced an impression such as is rarely witnessed in the habitable world hastened to chronicle and transmit to every ear. Under engagement to the Carl Theater, Frau Materna married Carl Friedrich, an actor, whose name she now bears as part of her stage name—Amalia Friedrich-Materna.

"Right royally did I have the rheumatism, and I suffered dreadfully," said Dan Emmett of Leavitt's Gigantean Minstrels. "St. Jacob's Oil," however, cured me completely, as any one can learn by addressing me, care of New York Clipper."

MISCELLANEOUS. GARLAND RANGES. 200 GARLAND RANGES PER DAY.

MESSERS. L. L. LEWIS & CO. Sacramento: I am today visiting the immense works of the Michigan Stove Company, which is, beyond a doubt, the largest Stove Works in the world. To give you an idea of the amount of work done by them, I will state that they turn out, all finished and ready for use, 200 "GARLAND" RANGES per day, besides many other patterns of STOVES AND RANGES. Mr. J. Dwyer, Manager of the Company, tells me that even this very large number of "GARLAND" RANGES often does not fill the many orders received for them from different sections of the country. The Company has in their employ at this time about 2,500 men; but expects before 1883 to increase the force to 3,500. I have just ordered an amount of "GARLAND" RANGES AND STOVES. I may expect them about JULY 20th next. I am now on my way to the principal manufacturing in the East. I shall write again soon. L. L. LEWIS.

We take great pleasure in referring to the above letter, in order to show the people of the Pacific coast the immense popularity of the "GARLAND" RANGE throughout the Eastern States, as well as on this coast.
