As woman cannot reason abstractly, she cannot reason exactly; and as she cannot be exact in most things requiring exactness of statement, life insurance companies decline to insure her.

These are, then, the reasons which move the doctor to his remarkable conclusion. We say remarkable, because we do not believe it accords with the history of the race, nor is it supported by his own line of argument.

THE WOMAN QUESTION AGAIN.

Dr. William A. Hammond, in the North American Review, has an article on "Woman in Politics," which, we think, is less creditable to his intelligence than to his knowledge as a cultured physician.

The brain of man is larger than that of woman. Relatively to the size of body this is not true, he admits, but he holds that the relative of the brain quality is to be considered, but the brain quality is to be considered, but the brain quality is to be considered.

INTERVIEWING.

The New York Sun, which, as a rule, is the most impracticable of journals, has given utterance to one suggestion that is worthy of sober consideration.

determined by every human being claimed by that nation as a component part of it. The humanity of American politics should embrace the common humanity that wraps into the single mantle of law and self-government both man and woman.

A VIEW OF THE SITUATION FROM AN EASTERN STANDPOINT.

The New York Evening Post takes a very dispassionate view of the present telegraphic difficulty, which is so disarranging and unbecoming the business of the country.

THE CHOLERA.

The cholera appears to be making a more rapid march than even the most fearful anticipated. The mortality in Egypt is frightful, but not more so than in the Bombay district in India, where 1,161 deaths were officially reported in a single week in June.

A RESUME TO THE FACT.

Recently near Salem, Mass., a picnic or reunion was held by the descendants of Rebecca Nurse. It was a notable gathering, and one that afforded an elevated vantage ground from which to look back over the past.

NOT AT ALL STRANGE.

The Silver State, remarking upon the telegraphers' strike, says that as to railroads when they do wrong the law can be invoked against them, but the telegraph operators have no other recourse to redress their grievances than to work for starvation wages.

IMPULSIVE YOUNG RUSSIAN GIRL.

With spirit and constancy. When she does "young Mr. Hoffmeister's" white hat and runs away with it, the prank is played in rollicking, girlish fashion; she is never boyed.

FREEHAND NOTES.

A LIVELY MEDLEY UPON SOCIAL AND OTHER TOPICS.

Wedding Notes—Glances at the Esal—Golden Gate Park Improvement—Theatricals—Etc.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25, 1893.

Another native of the British Isles has carried off another of our pretty Californians. The wedding took place at San Mateo on Thursday, and the appointments were as faultless as the day.

MUSICAL NAME IN A VARIED REFRAIN.

The young people have not yet decided whether they will visit the Yosemite for a wedding journey, and meantime are spending their honeymoon in their country house.

THE MID-SUMMER HONORS.

To St. John Nepomuk by the Bohemian Club. Fred Yates has just finished a painting in black and white of the scene in the redwoods at the burial of Care, one of the oceromies of the occasion.

OUT AT THE GOLDEN GATE PARK.

They are progressing admirably with the pedestal for the Garfield statue, to be unveiled next month as they hope. There was an hour when it seemed as if this hope would be deferred, for the pedestal, as first constructed, was so extremely friable that the experimenter was obliged to make the pedestal more solid.

MUCH-TALKED-OF COMEDY COMPANY.

Hold the boards at the California Theater. They are really treating us very badly. It is said that the "lond" patterns and crude colors in the dry-goods that come to New York commercial houses are laid aside.

Drew, between whom and one of the handsomest men of San Francisco it is customary to perceive a resemblance, but from what epidemic obliquity of vision this hallucination has arisen is not interesting to inquire.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

"An American Four-in-Hand in Britain." By Andrew Carnegie. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. Mr. Carnegie's delightful book is a realization of what one has in mind in telling an imaginative, original fiction that should "write a book."

"The North American Review" is before us for August, and its contents will be found of much interest. The articles presented are: "Moral Instruction in the Public Schools," Rev. Dr. R. H. Newton and Rev. Dr. F. L. Patton; "Making Bread," Henry D. Livitt; "Women in Prison," Dr. William A. Hammond; "Henry George's Social Philosophy," Francis A. Superintendent Fillmore and General Traffic Manager Sibus, of the Central Pacific Railroad, are now in Denver, where a meeting of the directors of the road is being held.

The object of the meeting, it is understood, is to arrange, if possible, a pool between the Central, Southern and Union Pacific Railroads and Eastern lines.

There was no trouble Friday forenoon at the Jackson-street strike, and the strike Thursday reported among the longshoremen. The strikers who had refused forty cents per hour were on the wharf by 6 o'clock, but were driven off and the boats were closed at 7:30.

Pride of the River, did not arrive until nearly 7 o'clock. There was a little talk, but the men who had tickets and were admitted to the wharf thereon went to work at forty cents per hour unloading. They finished work about noon.

A BATCH OF RAILROAD REMORS.—The following is found in the San Francisco Bulletin of July 26th:

There is a rumor that there is to be a mid railroad war in overland freights and fares, but it is probable that the rumor will be long forgotten before the war begins. The foundation for the story is the fact that the Union Pacific Railroad has fitted up a large office in this city, and in addition to Mr. Hitchcock, and his assistant, has appointed George W. Walls, an experienced officer, as General Freight Agent for San Francisco.

The Central Pacific Railroad has followed the lead of the Union Pacific, and has appointed G. W. Fletcher, its General Freight Agent, to the Southern Pacific, its Commercial Agent. Mr. Fletcher will have an office down town in some convenient quarter, and will seek to reach merchants and importers. Mr. Walls will do the same, and the merchants will probably find more convenience in the transaction of business, though they may not expect a war of rates.

Another railroad rumor is that the Northern Pacific Railroad is to be sold to the Union Pacific. The foundation for the story is the fact that the Union Pacific Railroad has fitted up a large office in this city, and in addition to Mr. Hitchcock, and his assistant, has appointed George W. Walls, an experienced officer, as General Freight Agent for San Francisco.
