

POLICE COURT.

The Ah Gong Murder Examination—A Little Rest. When the case of Hannah Mendis, charged with disturbing the peace, was called in the Police Court yesterday...

Grove L. Johnson, attorney for the defendant, made no objection, of course, to the motion, but explained that he would just as soon go on with the trial as not...

In the ill-ventilated foul-smelling Court-room were crowded about 100 Chinese, who appeared to be intensely interested in the case of Ah Gong, charged with the murder of Suey Kay.

Major Anderson, for the defense, announced himself as ready to proceed, but making no serious objection to a continuance, the case was continued until tomorrow...

In the case of Martin Gleason, charged with grand larceny, the prosecuting attorney stated that with permission of the Court he would withdraw the complaint...

Major Anderson, for the defense, asked for a continuance for at least three or four days, as he had talked to the defendant but little regarding the case, having but recently been employed.

Chief Lee, who was present in Court, arose and stated that the accusations made by Eastbrook were false. Gleason never visited an attorney, and he was a prisoner did ask for one his request was granted.

Arguments for a continuance were heard, and after a good deal of wrangling the case was set for next Saturday.

The cases of Mr. and Mrs. Dooley, who were convicted on Monday of disturbing the peace, were called. Dooley was taxed $20, and his wife $10.

That Mysterious Fall. A statement was published Monday morning regarding the mysterious falling of a man from the window of a J-street lodging house.

It appears now, however, that the man was never inside of No. 621. He fell from a seven-story building, and he has no doubt, taken back there.

DUSTY STREETS. Some Suburban Thoroughfares That Sadly Need Sprinkling. Having the street sprinklers are evidently having a good thing at the expense of the city.

Boys in Drinking Places. There is an organization of citizens known as the "Law and Order League," the object of which is alleged to be to secure the better enforcement of certain laws and ordinances.

That "Shylock" Item. Mr. Atwood, who keeps a saloon on Sixth street, and also deals in salary warrants, says that an item in yesterday's Record-Uzion, concerning an alleged "shylock" and an amador lady, had reference to him.

Still Cool and Delightful. The highest and lowest thermometer readings were 82° and 59°, with fresh to brisk southerly winds.

Shot by a Tramp. Yesterday morning William Jacobson, a brakeman on the Oregon express train, had a tussle with several tramps who tried to board the train at Vina, Tehama county.

All About a Woman. Two heavy-weight sons of Germany engaged in a combat at Sixth and M streets the other evening. It is said that the difficulty originated over some woman, and the result was a quick exchange of blows.

Notice to Contractors. All contractors intending to bid on the improvement of Masonic Hall, at Sixth and K streets, are requested to hand in their bids to the Secretary, W. B. Davis, at Jones & Davis' fish market, Water front, K and L streets, on or before 12 o'clock, noon, Wednesday, July 24, 1889.

He Convinces the Jury that He Worked for $25 a Month. The suit of Henry Weaver vs. Matt Storms was heard by Superior Judge Van Fleet and a jury yesterday. Weaver, it appears, has been in the employ of Storms for the past fifteen months or more, on the latter's ranch, as a trainer. According to the evidence given in the case, there was not a verbal agreement as to the amount a salary Weaver was to receive. Storms first offered him the position of trainer of a certain stallion, at a salary of $25 per month with board and lodging. Weaver did not want this job, so Storms put him to work as a "rubber" of horses. The other witnesses testified to the fact that Weaver had the job of a trainer, and that he was paid $100 per month. The jury returned a verdict in favor of Weaver for the full amount of plaintiff's claim.
