CRONIN'S DEATH.

Those Celebrated Proceedings of the Chicago, October 29th.—The ante-room of the State Attorney's office resembled the box office of a theater during a popular opera.

The State will, after gathering up a few threads of the white-horse story, go into the part which Camp 29 has played in the conspiracy.

The fact that there is a division of interests in the Cronin case, and that Senior Guardian Beggs is having his case conducted independently of others, was shown when Forrest, on behalf of the defendants, objected to the admission of O'Connor's testimony.

For Beggs, said in the latter's behalf that he wanted the record to show that no objection is made on his part to the introduction of this testimony.

He invites the introduction of his contention with the Cronin case, and the introduction of no testimony that will forward such investigation.

The most important incident at the trial in the morning was John O'Connor, Secretary of Camp 29 of the Clan-na-Gael.

O'Connor identified the witness at the meeting of Camp No. 29, on February 8th, at which Senior Guardian Beggs presided and the celebrated trial committee was appointed.

At the afternoon session Andrew Foy, a member of Camp 29, was put on the stand as a witness.

He was very non-committal and with the greatest politeness avoided giving positive answers even to the most pertinent questions.

Finally he was brought to admit that he had been at the meeting of Camp 29 when the matter of the report of the Triangle Trial Committee came up.

He made several statements, and the circumstances under which he made the speech, and got badly tangled up. He said:

"No body blamed you for seizing the seal pouches in Alaska waters, although they were mostly taken from the British, and is wholly laid upon the British Government, after telling us we had a right to fish for seals, relative to the protection of our young and progressive people to develop the country."

Foy also said that O'Connor spoke of having heard of the report of the trial committee received in another camp. This caused much excitement, and was the cause of the witness' speech. His anger was caused, he said, by the thought that Cronin had got any of the Clan's funds for any purpose, and also to learn that the report of the trial committee was not being sent to other camps sooner than Camp 29.

Michael J. Kelly, Junior Guardian of Camp 29, told of the proceedings, though his memory was deficient as to details. He said the demand for a report of the trial committee grew out of O'Connor's statement, to the effect that the report of the committee read in the camp of which Cronin was a member by Cronin himself.

The statement, by the way, is contained in the evidence on this subject heretofore given, and of all the published statements, which have agreed in saying that O'Connor did not mention Cronin's name. The cross examination of Kelly brought out the fact, although he denied it, that he did not know their names were published in the newspapers.

The authority for the publication of Camp 29, testified that at the meeting of Camp in February, Patrick McGary and Richard McGary, Junior Guardians of the Triangle, and that Senior Guardian Beggs replied, defending Alexander Sullivan, one of the Triangle's members. There was a warm discussion, and Beggs said it would be peace or war, or words to that effect.

Steven Coleran, a laborer, was the last witness called. He was asked to read a detailed statement of the proceedings of Camp 29 on the night of February 8th from him, but it was not read. The statement was questioned sharply by the prosecution as to what he knew of the relations of the various defendants with each other, and their movements. Kelly, Junior Guardian of the Triangle, and that Senior Guardian Beggs, replied, defending Alexander Sullivan, one of the Triangle's members. There was a warm discussion, and Beggs said it would be peace or war, or words to that effect.

UNION PACIFIC.

It's Gains by the Alliance—A Harmful Competitor Now Harmed.

Boston, October 29th.—An interview with Union Pacific officials results in the following statement of what is gained by the Northwestern alliance.

The contract would have no effect if the Northwestern was reaching to Denver and might soon start for more western points of our system.

Now, instead of a competitor, for the Northwestern becomes a close ally, extending our system to Lake Superior and Chicago, and to the West.

What Could We Do.

New York, October 29th.—Jay Gould's confidence in the Union Pacific is indicated here, intends to rebuild all the elevated roads, for which purpose $200,000,000 is ready.

The pressure of travel has forced the Directors to adopt heroic measures. Damages are to be liquidated, station platforms enlarged, the length of trains increased, and the Pacific is to be reformed.

INDIANAPOLIS, October 29th.—R. D. P. Pierce, Trustee of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Western Railway, says: "The outcome of the proposed alliance between the Union Pacific and the Northwestern is reaching to Denver and might soon start for more western points of our system."

An Awful Sore Limb.

Skin entirely gone. Flesh a mass of disease. Leg obliterated one-third in size. With a few days' treatment, cured by Cuticura Remedies in two months.

Cured by Cuticura.

For three years I was almost crippled with an awful sore leg from my knee down to my ankle; the skin was entirely gone, and the flesh was a mass of disease. I had diminished about one-third in size, and was in a hopeless condition. After trying all kinds of remedies and spending hundreds of dollars, I was told to give up. I then bought Cuticura Remedies, and used it as directed. After a few days' treatment, I noticed a decided change for the better, and in two months I was cured. My leg was healed, and the bone which had been exposed for over a year got sound. The leg began to grow, and in two months I was able to walk as well as ever. I was in great respect, and my cure was due to Cuticura Remedies.

S. G. ALLEN, Dubuque, Iowa, writes: "I have been troubled with a skin and scalp disease for seventeen years. My head itches and my body is covered with a large, hard, half dollar. I tried a great many remedies without success, until I used Cuticura Remedies, and am thankful to state that after two months of their use I am entirely cured. I feel it my duty to let the public to state the above case."
