

ELECTIONEER OUTRANKS ALL OTHER TROTTERS.

Coming from California Coils in the East - Rare-Bred Colts in the Rancho del Paso.

Mark Constock, in the New York Spirit of the Times, thus writes of Electioneer, the famous Palo Alto trotting sire.

The sire of Sunol and Palo Alto is getting along in years, and every year forces itself more strongly upon thoughtful breeders that his blood is destined to become one of those factors in the make-up of winning pedigrees of the future that will be without it to be behind.

When we take each of the great sons of Hambletonian and compare them with Electioneer, as years roll on, gradually closing upon and finally surpassing the capacity of Electioneer? Will his not prove in the end to be the greatest line from Hambletonian as Sir Archy's was from Dioned?

But it is his opportunities that have been greater, and not himself, some will contend. I grant that in one sense they have been greater, but in another sense they have been more thoroughly trained than the Voltinners, though possibly more numerous.

But let not what is said upon what might have been. Electioneer has had, and will have, that advantage in great measure, and that is the fact that he has been bred to a purpose.

Call the other sons of Hambletonian as great as Electioneer if you will. Yes, if it passes your mind to call them greater. It matters not how that phase of the question is settled.

There will be a grand aggregation of California-bred colts sold at auction in New York this month. Indeed, the advertised lists, with the names, records, etc., of the sires and dams of the colts, fill the columns of all our papers.

"BUCKING BRONCHOS."

THE COWBOY SHOW TURNS OUT SOME-THING OF A FIZZLE.

Fieri, Untamed Vaqueros Who Couldn't Last Anything - Buckers That Couldn't Buck.

Several hundred people whose attention had been attracted by the varied-colored banners and show bills which have ornamented the city during the past two weeks visited Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon to see the "Cowboy Tournament."

The "cowboys" proved to be rather new in their business, judging from their appearance during the street-parade in the early part of the day, and among them were several faces which have been familiar about the local slaughter-houses for years.

The parade was prolonged to such an extent that the performers did not reach the park until after 3 o'clock.

A stout gentleman wearing a shining silk tie mounted the judges' stand and, after giving several lugs at the starter's bell, announced that the exhibition about to begin would be of a kind that a person could witness but once in a life-time.

Several of the alleged "cowboys" galloped their fiery steeds over to a pen which had been erected in the paddock, in which were a dozen docile-looking car-horses. There they drove upon the race-track and landed the audience upon the circus seats, and down swooped the services of the "Fur" swinging their lariat and yelling like "bronchos."

The starter's bell pealed forth again, and the stout gentleman with the shining silk tie mounted the judges' stand and, after giving several lugs at the starter's bell, announced that the exhibition about to begin would be of a kind that a person could witness but once in a life-time.

THE DISCIPLE OF PETER JACKSON ON HIS WAY TO FOLSOM.

Wm. McPherson, a negro, who was recently sentenced to two years imprisonment in the penitentiary for felony committed at Stockton, was lodged in the City Prison last night by Deputy Sheriff Cassidy, en route to Folsom.

McPherson is known to be a dangerous criminal and has served considerable time in prison. He is well known to the police in this city, and has served two years in the County Jail of Sacramento for petty larcenies.

The crime for which he is now to be imprisoned was committed some weeks ago in Stockton. He was in the act of robbing a man of his money when he was arrested. When the officer attempted to arrest McPherson the latter drew a knife and threatened to carve the peace guardian.

The Board of Supervisors will meet today. Last evening's west-bound overland train, due at 6:25, was several hours late in its arrival.

Again the streets are becoming dusty, and people are looking longingly for the "rain-wagon."

March came in with the proverbial meekness of a lamb. It remains to be seen how it will go out.

The snow-shovelers, who did not get a chance to vote Saturday's primary election, are looking very sick.

Judge Armstrong will today decide whether or not the supplemental register should be used in the city election.

There was a runaway on G street yesterday caused by a phaeton losing a wheel. Nothing could be learned as to whether or not any person was injured.

If any family in the vicinity of Seventh and K streets should miss one or more of its little toddlers, they might find it profitable to drag the frog-pond on Uncle Sam's lot.

A couple of lads at the theater last evening seemed to be highly amused at that jester, Maud S., when she, in her usual manner, killed her daughter, Virginia, and disturbed those about them with laughter. Had they not been so accustomed to her antics, they would have had more sense, if not better manners.
