GREAT AND SMALL BLOCKADES OF SNOW.

On the 6th inst. dispatches from the East announced the blocking of many railroads in that section because of a fall of snow.

In the vicinity of New York we are told that travel was much retarded by a six-inch fall. A dispatch from Newburg speaks of drifts two feet in height, and of trains being stopped by them.

A Dispatch from New York speaks of a heavy fall of snow, and of the fact that the snow is being blown by a strong wind from the level.

A Scranton (Pa.) dispatch related that thirteen inches of snow had fallen in that State, and that on the mountain divisions railroads were blocked and trains had ceased running.

So the story went on; all over the East the snow fell from six to thirteen inches deep, and drifted to the height of two feet, whereupon the railroad authorities called a halt, and trafficked. A terrible calamity, to be sure. Yet in the upper Sierras, on the east border of California, and in the Shasta mountains on our north, snow fell to the depth of eight, ten, twenty feet before any thought of a blockade was entertained.

Between Colfax and Reno the snow was from eight to twenty-five feet deep on the level, and along the track routes the drifts were from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet in depth.

Against such obstacles the railway men of California threw themselves with a resolution to conquer, and conquer they did, and to-day trains are running between banks of snow on these routes from ten to fifty feet high.

The carrying, fault-finding press of this State that began to "howl" so soon as the California train was stopped, and scoured the California press in return for a few days the forces of nature prevailed, and have sent a word to say in criticism of the Eastern railway operators, who retired their locomotives to the round houses in the face of drifts of the enormous height of two feet, and ceased to accommodate the public when the snow thirteen inches deep impeded the way.

There is no winter that on the mountain divisions of the California roads the snow does not fall three times as deep as that reported in Pennsylvania, and yet the California trains sweep along, and such a thing as a blockade is not even thought of.

The truth is that we are given to expecting more of California energy, pluck, and the go-ahead spirit of our own than of the Eastern people. The loud growler, the persistent grumbler in the late Sierra blockade was the Eastern man, who cursed deeply because the railroad men did not tunnel in an hour or so through snow drifts fifty feet deep on an up grade of one hundred and sixteen feet to the mile, at an altitude of over six thousand feet. These same Eastern grumblers think it not at all strange that their own roads should "shut up shop" when their own drifts of snow confronts the iron horse. And, as said, there is no word of complaint from the belaborers of the California press who belabored the California railroads of late, because a fall of snow that drifted along the right of way from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet deep. Verily the evils that are a fact of concern to little, and our charity for those who serve us at home is small indeed.

THE LONDON PROTEST.

Russia has for half a century or more been dead to all appeals of civilized people to modify her cruel Siberian penal system. It is not possible for her to ignore the protest that is going up over the world against the inhumanity of the Russian officials. The protesting meeting in London will, though it is nihilistic and the red flag floated over it, make itself heard in Russia, as will those others called and yet to be held. The means for the dissemination of news are such in this day of enlightenment, that the Russian servants will not be able to keep the facts from the Russian people, that other peoples are aroused against their government. It is probably true that the ignorance of the Russians in ignorance of the gross cruelty of their Siberian system. A few unfortunate return to their homes, but they are wise enough to remain silent concerning the treatment they received in the arctic regions where Russia held her political and the government supervises and dominates. It is easy to understand, therefore, that the mass of the people will first hear of the barbarities in the Siberian prison pens through the protests of the outside world. That the news will reach them, we cannot doubt. It will be impossible to keep the facts from them unless Russia interdicts all commerce between her people and those of other nations, and utterly excludes all papers, books and other foreign means of communication. The effect will be to infuse something of a revolting spirit into the Russian that the czar, the police and the nobles cannot suppress. Then will come a demand for reforms, and as these are granted, as they must be, the people will begin to understand their power, and to realize that not all authority and wisdom is lodged in their "Little

Father, the czar." From that realization to the demand for a constitutional form of government the step is not a long one. It may take a half century to bring it all about, but it will come to pass. It is in the nature of things that the power of the czar will decline, and that the human right to self-government will assert itself. But while we say all this, we cannot approve the expressions of such as Burns at the London meeting. That assemblage will make itself heard in St. Petersburg, despite the fact that the radical socialists ruled it, but had not Burns advocated assassination, it would have been a more effective protest. The fact that Burns preached as he did, and that the red flag was flung, will be used in Russia to counteract the influence of the meeting. Nevertheless, the protest goes up, and though it is heated and ill-considered expression in which the principal speaker indulged, the outcome will be what we have forecast. It is simply impossible that such a system as Mr. Keenan has so graphically described, and that is so antagonistic to the spirit of the century, can long exist in a nation that claims to rank with the civilized and reformed.

A CRANK in Oakland is preaching to crowds of people nightly who are led away by his prophecies that San Francisco, Oakland and other cities are to be destroyed by a tidal wave and by earthquakes on the 14th of April. Several hundred dupes have been induced to sell their property and join the ranks of the crazy fool who imagines that he has been gifted with the spirit of prophecy. He proposes to take his followers to the summit of the Sierras; but in the present condition of affairs on the mountains the poor dupes will not be much better off than if they remain in Oakland and take to boats. It is amazing that in this day and age of enlightenment, people in any considerable number can be found to follow the leadership of men posing as prophets.

Three Birmingham leaders says that while love may be blind, he knows that the parole lamp is too high. True, but he has no idea of time whatever, for he is never able to tell when the clock has struck the proper hour for him to take his leave.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The Modesto Daily Times, the latest newspaper proprietor, is the latest newspaper proprietor in the San Joaquin valley. The first number gives evidence that it will be a sprightly sheet.

The Shasta Courier has entered upon its forty-ninth volume, having been published for thirty-eight years. The Courier has had three changes of proprietorship during all these years, and has only once failed to make its regular appearance, that occasion being when the press was disabled in the great fire of 1852. The present proprietor, W. L. Carter, has taken the paper for the past twenty-three years.

A gentleman who was in the city yesterday from Los Angeles says there is considerable talk in that city in regard to Republican candidates for Governor. Colonel Markham and Elwood Cooper have many friends who are urging their nomination, but he believes the strongest man in Southern California for Governor is Major E. W. Jones, President of the Los Angeles Board of Trade. He was Major in an artillery regiment during the war and was an efficient officer. He is really the head of commercial affairs in Southern California, and is the kind of man who would prove very popular with the people.

People who are Easily Deceived. He has Caught Eight so far. A city druggist stated that he had eight calls for his Vegetable Sarsaparilla but had not sold his own every time. It did not occur to him that it might be a serious matter to give his old time mercury and potash preparation to people who do not need syphilitic treatment. It is safe to say that not one person in ten has syphilitic trouble, hence what do they want with such dangerous medicine as mercury and potash? What nine-tenths of our people are troubled with is indigestion, dyspepsia, sick headache, constipation and face eruptions, all of which are legitimate results of improper liver and kidney action, or impaired digestive organs. Those disorders do not call for syphilitic treatment, but for mild vegetable, iron, stomach and bowel alteratives. We are surprised that intelligent people should be persuaded into taking a mercury and potash sarsaparilla. When you ask for Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, see that you get the
