GENERAL NOTICES. Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal, it is among the most dangerous and disgusting of the flesh as he is, and the records show very few cases of radical cure of chronic cases by any of the multitude of modes of treatment until the introduction of Eps's Saccharine a few years ago. The scientific preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

WASHINGTON COLLINGS. Samuel J. Randall, the Well Known Politician, is Dead.

Biographical Sketch of a Soldier and a Statesman—Arrangements for the Funeral. (SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

SAMUEL J. RANDALL. The Great Democratic Protectionist Quietly Passes Away. WASHINGTON, April 13th.—It was a sad and touching scene at the residence, on Capitol Hill, when Congressman Samuel J. Randall expired at 5 o'clock this morning and around him during his last hours gathered the family, Robert E. Randall, his brother, the physicians and Postmaster-General Wanamaker, who had all kept a constant watch during the night. A few moments before death he opened his eyes and looked tenderly at his wife, said, in a low voice, "My dear wife, I feel that I am leaving you, but I am leaving you in the hands of a loving and happy life and I am always with you." He looked into her face and seemed to say something more but seemed to have no strength left, and in a few moments he passed away.

WATERS SAID ALL WAS OVER, and the grief-stricken wife and daughter, who had been at his bedside during his illness, could restrain their feelings no longer but gave way to their grief. Randall's death has been expected at any time during the last few days of his illness, and his friends knew he could not last long. Friday night had been a particularly bad one for him, and he had been sinking longer, from which he rallied to the astonishment of his physicians.

These, however, left him weaker, and when morning came it was evident that extraordinary vitality had almost left him. He rested easily and comfortably during the night, and his friends were encouraged by the hope that he might live for several days.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, however, a marked change was noticed, and he seemed almost to sink away. This spell was worse than any of the preceding ones, and it was thought that he would not rally. At 10 o'clock he rallied somewhat, but it left him with very little strength, and the doctors became convinced that he could hardly live through the night.

About 4:30 he became sinking still, and afterwards his mind became more clear and bright. The sick man lay on his back, and daylight was just beginning to shed its rays into the sick chamber when he opened his eyes and spoke to his wife once gradually sank away.

Around the death-bed were Mrs. Randall, Mrs. Lancaster, his married daughter, and his son, Samuel Randall, Jr., Dr. Mallan and Postmaster-General Wanamaker. The shock is especially severe to Mrs. Randall, who has been married for many years, and her husband and father through an illness of almost two years' duration.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker and others at length succeeded in inducing them to retire to try and refresh themselves with a little sleep. By order of the doctor, Randall's illness dates back about five years, from which he has not recovered. He thought that he had about a week to live, and he was called to attend him for some time.

July 9th, almost two years ago, Randall was suddenly seized with a violent diarrhoea, which he at first attributed to a cold, but which he later learned was a dysentery. He had been eating a dish of ice-cream and berries during the day. This hemorrhage was so severe that he was unable to get up, and his life was in imminent danger. Dr. Mallan served for a time previous to his death, but he was unable to do anything to relieve him.

The diarrhoea attack caused the disease to assume an acute form, and it was found that he had been suffering from an extensive and a malignant abscess.

Randall rallied and grew stronger and was getting on fairly well until last Friday, when he was taken ill, and he died about 10 o'clock. This illness was accompanied by severe abdominal pain, and he was unable to get up. He was in bed for several days, and he died on Friday morning.

Up to a short time ago Randall had confidence in his ability to pull through, and his Congressional visitors he was confident he would be able to resume Congressional duties.

He joined the Presbyterian Church about a year ago, and he was a member of the church at the time of his death. He was a man of great energy and ability, and he was a great favorite of his constituents.

A large number of persons called at the residence during the day to express their sympathy. The funeral will be held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

The remains have been embalmed and placed in a casket. It is said that the funeral arrangements for the interment will be made at the residence of Mrs. Randall, who has been called to attend to the arrangements for the interment.

Speaker Reed said: "My esteem for him was very great, and I always had expressed the highest admiration for his courage and bravery, and a statesman beyond reproach. He was a man of great energy and ability, and he was a great favorite of his constituents. I always regarded him as an honest man in public life, and he was undoubtedly a man who had courage and courage to stand by them. I think his death is a great loss to his party and to the country, and he deserves to be remembered for a great many important public services."

At 10 o'clock to-night Wanamaker said the funeral services will be held at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, of which he is a member.

JAMES CORBETT ON SULLIVAN. A Michigan Pleasure Steamer Runs Into a Railroad Bridge, with Fatal Results—Etc. (SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

NEW YORK, April 13th.—The Countess Montecarlo has given an interview to a paper here, as she says just as a warning to American girls against foreign noblemen. Montecarlo caught upon the return of her affections the prettiest girl that Pittsburg knew. Miss Virginia Knox had then and still has an abundance of sunny hair, eyes of sapphire blue, peachy complexion and a delicately graceful form. She met the diminutive Count Montecarlo and she married him.

RUSSIA TO HAVE A PARLIAMENT. The Czar Thinks by Making this Concession His Life will be More Secure. (SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

DEFENSE PREPARATIONS. Unusual Activity Displayed Among the Turkish Troops. LONDON, April 13th.—Lately there has been a denial from St. Petersburg of trouble on the Russo-Afghan frontier. Later there were rumors of complications on the Chinese frontier of Siberia. Then came a revival of the reports of the massing of troops on the Afghan-Romanian frontier. Finally there is a sudden announcement of the Turkish Government's necessity of making active and immediate military preparations.

A telegram from Vienna states that the Sultan has issued orders to all commanders of the army corps to examine their magazines, stores, depots and depots to ascertain whether the army could be mobilized at short notice; also to report as to the efficiency of their commands and the condition of their equipment in quantity or quality of stores, ammunition or provisions.

At Constantinople it is proposed to equip with modern appliances such old types of battle ships as are still serviceable, and to build new ships better adapted for defense, for which new dockyards are to be constructed.

STANLEY CENSURED. Herr Reichard Severely Condemns the Explorer's Actions. BERLIN, April 13th.—There is a bitter feeling against Stanley here, which has been growing for some time, and seems to grow more intense every day. This feeling found expression last night in a lecture by Herr Reichard, the African explorer. Reichard asserted that when first starting from Zanzibar on his quest for Livingstone Stanley learned from Arab traders that the explorer had been in the vicinity of the Victoria Nile, whereabout, but he carefully concealed his discovery in order to give his feat an air of mystery.

He learned in Zanzibar that the great explorer was actually at a place called Ujiji, on Lake Tanganyika, where he ultimately discovered the explorer's camp. Livingstone was nothing more than the act of cheating a player of blindman's bluff, and a consideration of the explorer's adopted by Stanley in order to reach Ujiji, and accused him of having been directly instrumental in wrecking the last pillars which still supported the authority of Emin in Equatoria.

Stanley Talks Back. LONDON, April 13th.—In an interview with the Times correspondent at Cannes, Stanley declared the statement that he had been in the vicinity of the Victoria Nile, a depraved man. Stanley's party were half naked and half starved until provided with food.

Referring to Emin Bey, Stanley said the whole of Emin's action was on a par with that of the Brzza, who got King Leopold's money and had the rest of the explorer's exploits of Dr. Peters ought to be watched.

The Czar is Weakening. BERLIN, April 13th.—Court circles from St. Petersburg are of the opinion that the movement in favor of a constitution in the Russian Empire is a step towards the weakening of the Czar's power. The Ministerial section that is urging the Czar to create a Parliament, consisting of representatives of the nobility, clergy, Zemstvos, and a limited number of delegates elected by the towns. The Czar's resistance to Parliament is reported to be a result of a revolution in the Ministry of the Interior, which is urging the Czar to create a Parliament, consisting of representatives of the nobility, clergy, Zemstvos, and a limited number of delegates elected by the towns.
