HOBBLE, IF TRUE.

A report that a body was buried beneath a sidewalk.

CHICAGO, June 10th.—An afternoon paper prints the following: Last Saturday the funeral of John Buske, who died suddenly, was held at the residence.

Friends remarked the lifeless appearance, but the doctor pronounced the man dead. When the cortege reached the cemetery some one suggested that the coffin be opened, but this was voted down, notwithstanding tapping from the inside of the coffin indicated that there was life.

The coffin was lowered into the grave the tapping became more pronounced, but the burial proceeded. The coffin was removed and an examination was made. Buske's body was twisted, the features distorted, the tongue protruded, and the body distorted, and there was every indication that a horrible struggle had taken place.

THE REPORT DEBATED.

CHICAGO, June 10th.—An evening paper publishes a lengthy and sensational account of the death and alleged interment of a man in a coffin.

The story is told by a man who claims to have been on the inside of the coffin. Miller, however, continued to fill in the grave, and water ran in between the coffin, and the sounds ceased. Stier says Miller subsequently reopened the grave, and found the body of a man.

Superintendent Miller, when questioned by the reporter, said that when burying Cantor he did hear noises, but on taking off the lid of the coffin found that the man was dead. After replacing the coffin lid he saw Stier passing, and thought it would be a good joke to scare him, which he did subsequently, and clinched the story by telling of the alleged examination of the noises in the grave he now thinks were caused by the water running in around the coffin.

At the hospital to-day it was stated that Cantor died of heart disease, and the physicians assert the idea that he subsequently revived.

HYDROPHOBIA.

Terrible Death Resulting From the Bite of a Dog.

New York, June 10th.—For six hours Edmund Corvieux lay in his isolated cell at Bellevue Hospital yesterday, gasping and snarling and going through all the terrible paroxysms of hydrophobia. At noon no operation was to be performed, and at 1 o'clock in the afternoon he died from asphyxiation.

Corvieux was bitten some four weeks ago by a black-and-tan terrier. The dog was instantly killed and the wound cauterized. Simple remedies were also applied, but the shape of washer and lozenges, he was one, not even Corvieux himself, suspected any symptoms of madness in the dog, and he pursued his work as usual.

Last Friday Corvieux noticed a slight pricking at his wrist, the place where he had been bitten. This pricking lasted a day and then passed away. On Friday Corvieux, having been hard at work in the fields, attempted to drink a glass of milk. Although it was a favorite beverage, it filled him with repulsion. He could not try as he would, swallow it. The pricking sensation returned and the difficulty in swallowing increased.

Thoroughly alarmed now, Corvieux summoned Dr. Baucher. Corvieux at this time shuddered if water was poured in his presence, and every symptom of hydrophobia was well developed. At Dr. Baucher's suggestion a trip to New York was undertaken in order to obtain advice of Dr. Paul Gibber, head of the Pasteur Institute here.

Corvieux had grown so much worse that immediately on his arrival he was taken to Bellevue. The disease was marching slowly along, only awaiting the extreme moment to take possession of body and soul. He was unable to swallow a morsel of manna, only to ease his torture by death.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Preparing for a Spirited Election This Fall.

St. Paul (Minn.), June 10th.—To-morrow, at Aberdeen, S. D., the Democrats will hold their State Convention to nominate their first party ticket in what promises to be one of the most exciting and certain elections ever held in any one of the States.

Last October the vote for Governor, South Dakota was Republican, 53,964, Democratic 23,840, and that was a warmly contested campaign. However, the Democrats were unable to obtain a majority, which they have been absent heretofore.

Last week the Farmers' Alliance, in their convention at Haron, organized an independent party and called for a convention to nominate a State and Congressional ticket. It is claimed by the Farmers' Alliance that some members of the party are among whom the leaders expect to carry with them to the new party. It is generally well known that the Farmers' Alliance, who becomes one of the main forces from the Republican party, in which case the present political status of South Dakota may be materially changed.

CHEROKEE COMMISSION.

Final Arrangements for the Census of Indian Lands.

St. Louis, June 10th.—A Republican Sac and Fox agency speaker says: "The Cherokee Commission believes to-morrow will end the work of arranging the final details in connection with the deal made Saturday for the census of Indian lands belonging to the Sac and Fox Indians. The Indians are in high glee over the prospects of securing a big payment for the lands."

The deal, the richest one in the tribe is S. C. Jones, who becomes one of the owners of the land, besides receiving $12,000 in money. The other Indians became rich in proportion.

Several farmers' wagons, loaded with tents and other necessities, were discovered last evening making for the Iowa territory for the opening, which is expected soon.

Crop Prospects.

CHICAGO, June 10th.—The Farmers' Review to-morrow will say: "The condition of the crops in Illinois are possibly improved. Illinois shows a decline of several points. Rain continues in Michigan and Wisconsin. Corn in Michigan will rot. Oats are in fine condition. The crop in Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas crops are suffering for rain. In Nebraska crops are promising. In Missouri crops are favorable. It summarizes as follows: Winter wheat—Illinois, 63 per cent; Michigan, 62; Wisconsin, 50. Spring wheat—Wisconsin, 96 per cent; Nebraska, 77; Iowa, 83; Minnesota, 90; Kansas, 77; Illinois, 83."

MORRIS PARK (N. Y.), June 10th.—A number of prominent horses, each of whom are anxious to secure yearlings from the great Metropolitan stud in Lexington, attended the sales to-day. An average of $1,300 was had, which is the third best ever raised in Lexington. In many of the prices realized were for a bay colt, by Onondaga, to J. A. and A. H. Morris, for $4,000; by or bred to the same sire, to Lorrillard, $1,875; brown colt, by Lorrillard, to Colonel Hall, $2,600; brown filly, by Lorrillard, to J. A. and A. H. Morris, $3,250; and a bay colt, by Onondaga, to J. Lorrillard, $1,800.
