NEWS OF THE DAY.

Town Talk in Albany.

THE DERBY RACES.

A Woman Accused of Arson

CLONMEL RIOTS.

Confederate Cotton Loan.

Bernhardt to be Married.

Limiting Coal Production.

Prospects at Albany. It was conceded in Albany last night that Conkling was entirely out of the senatorial race. Cornell and Dewey were then the talk among the republicans, with some show of harmonious action, but Gov. Cornell declines the honor.

The "Horsey" Commons. In the House of Commons yesterday, a motion by Mr. Richard Power (liberal) in favor of the adjournment of the House for the Derby was carried by a vote of 245 to 119, amid loud cheers. Sir Wilford Lawson (radical) opposed the motion.

The Great Races. There will probably be twenty-five starters in the Derby race to-day. Peregrine is still the favorite; with Geologist, Lord Lard's Iroquois, St. Lois and Keene's Don Fulano following in regular order. Archer will ride Iroquois, and Wood Don Fulano. Webb rides Peregrine, and Cannon Geologist. Keene's Marshal will also run.

Attempt at Arson. Marie Varlan, aged 35, a lager beer saloon keeper, was arrested in New York yesterday for setting fire to the saloon to get $4,500 insurance. Several persons were asleep in the house, among them a sick woman and child, when the house was fired. The police had warning of the affair, and the match had hardly been applied before the woman was arrested.

Riot Near Clonmel. As expected, there was a riot yesterday at a sale of tenant's interests in twenty-one farms, near Clonmel, Ireland. Most of the farms were knocked down to the emergency committee. The mob stoned the police and soldiers. The police charged once and the hussars three times, using the flats of their sabres. One soldier, one policeman and some civilians were injured.

The Confederate Cotton Loan. At the yearly meeting of the stockholders of the Confederate cotton loan of 1860 yesterday, speeches were made to the effect that although there was no legal claim on the United States government, still something might be gained by a friendly appeal. The speakers based their hopes on the fact that the Bank of England still held some of the loan.

Kansas Burglars. At Nortonville, Kansas, Monday night, three masked men, with revolvers drawn, entered the store of McCarthy & Hogson, in which at the time were Mr. McCarthy, a clerk, two ladies and two little girls, and while one robber stood sentinel at the door, the others robbed the safe of $12,000, and made off, first warning the inmates not to look outside for an hour, on penalty of death.

Prof. J. P. Sousa Will perform his great master-piece, "Memories of the War," with drum corps accompaniment to-night at Driver's Garden, 1339-1341 Pennsylvania avenue, which is growing so popular. Admittance free.

Falling from Windows. Frank Logan, aged 55, fell from a second-story window in New York Monday night, and was killed. Mary Planney, aged 3, was killed by a similar accident in Jersey City. At Cincinnati yesterday afternoon, Edwin C. Dunn, a traveling salesman, fell from a fourth-story window of the Emery Hotel and was killed.

Robbers Killed. In Henry county, Ohio, Benjamin and John Siggers were shot dead while in the act of committing a robbery at night.

Struck in Jersey. Two Italian laborers were struck by a White Bridge, N. J., yesterday—one of them (Michael Andruz) fatally.

A Printer's Funeral. The funeral of Mr. William L. Drane, for over forty years superintendent of the printing department of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, who died last Friday morning, took place yesterday afternoon. Mr. A. S. Abel, of Baltimore, was present at the funeral, which was largely attended.

Keep Cool. Buy clothing of light texture at George Spransy's, 507 Seventh street.

Death on the Rail. Near Princeton (N. J.) Junction, Monday night, one freight train ran into another, and Flagman Hill had both legs and a shoulder badly broken. Capt. George W. McPhail, of Richmond, Va., an employee on the Danville Road, was run over and killed by a train, near Salem, N. C., on Sunday.

A Full and Complete stock of fancy goods, ladies' furnishings and millinery goods can be found at the store of E. G. Davis, cor. 8th and Market Space. Swiss and Antisook edging, inserting, laces suitable for trimming wash dresses; millinery in the greatest variety. All these goods are reliable, and are being sold at our usual low prices.

VIEWS OF THE NEW YORK PRESS.

Conkling's Defeat. The Tribune of to-day says in the course of an editorial: Mr. Conkling received 35 votes yesterday, while 70 republican members voted for other candidates. After all his exhausting and humiliating efforts he obtains only one-third of the republican votes. Boasts were made on Monday that "40 iron-clad members would vote for Mr. Conkling forever," but he did not have that number to start with, and "Me Too" received only 29.

Failed to Appreciate. It seems that six of Mr. Conkling's friends failed to appreciate the devotion of the sub-Senator who took the leap with Mr. Conkling, and it is possible that some of Mr. Platt's friends may see fit to support somebody else before long in place of Mr. Conkling. In short, the defeat of the machine is complete, decisive and overwhelming.

Comfort for the Late Machine. The organs of the late machine try to derive some comfort from the fact that there were a large number of distinguished men voted for yesterday by the independent majority of the republicans. They are not judicious in calling special attention to that fact. It simply showed how many capable men this state possesses, and what a difference of opinion as to their comparative merits is at once developed the moment the tyranny of the machine is relaxed and electors begin to judge for themselves.

Conkling and His Party. The World says this morning in a lengthy editorial: The desire shown yesterday at Albany to turn Senator Conkling into the wilderness as the scapegoat for all the sins of the republican party makes it proper to consider whether upon the whole the ex-senator or his opponents more accurately represent at this moment the worst elements of the republican party. The World will hardly be suspected of admiring overmuch Mr. Conkling's political record or Mr. Conkling's political methods.

Time to Protest. But when the defeat of Mr. Conkling is talked about as if it would be a general purging of the republican party from everything which makes it corrupt and unendurable it is time, in the name of common sense and common fairness, for somebody to enter a protest.

His Great Blunder. That Mr. Conkling made a great blunder in personal tactics in resigning his seat nobody now doubts, not even his supporters. But certainly it was not a corrupt blunder. Whether the republicans can fill his seat with anybody who upon the whole will be so useful to them is an open question which republicans must answer.

Account of His Stewardship. When Mr. Conkling is called upon, as indeed he is now, to give an account of his stewardship, since he may be no longer steward, the practical question is not whether he has managed his party upon the highest plane or conducted it to the best results.

Who would Do Better? Of course there is very little to be said for his management, when it is judged according to an ideal standard. The practical question is whether any one of the competitors for the succession would probably have managed the party better, or as well.

Looking to the Future. The Herald to-day says: We look forward, therefore, to the political events of the summer and fall with interest, but also with the conviction that they are sure to yield beneficial results to the country. Parties are ready to break up, party lines are no stronger than ropes of sand, and it is a hopeful sign of coming events that a public man of the courage, power and experience of Mr. Conkling has burst the bonds and stands a free man to lead the people to new and more fertile political fields. It depends upon himself to make a new and greater career than that which he closed by his resignation from the Senate.

Many Delegations at the White House To-day. To-day was a big day for delegations at the White House, with Maryland, as usual, in the lead. A District delegation, composed of ex-soldiers, called to urge the appointment of Major H. A. Hall as commissioner of the District, but they got tired of waiting and left without seeing the President. Then there was a delegation on hand to urge the appointment of Mr. T. F. Lang, of Baltimore, to a position in the Baltimore custom house. It was composed of members of the Grand Army of the Republic.

A colored delegation from Baltimore, composed of Messrs. Briscoe, Bloxom and Jordan also sought an interview in the interest of G. Irving Ditty who wants to be collector of Internal Revenue for the Third Maryland District, which includes the District of Columbia. This committee was at the White House yesterday but failed to see the President. They said to-day they proposed to wait for an interview if it took all summer.

Rev. J. A. Brodie representing the A. M. E. church also called to see the President in the interest of Mr. Ditty. Mr. J. Emery Weatherly who is also an applicant for that position also sent in his card to the President.

John H. Price, Edward M. Allen, Richard B. McCoy, Joshua E. Smith, S. A. Williams comprised a delegation from Hartford county, Md., who called to urge the appointment of Col. Webster as collector of customs at Baltimore. The term of Col. Thomas, the present collector, does not expire till January.

Major Hancock, who wants to be consul at Tangier, Morocco, and ex-Representative Lowlands was also among the Maryland callers to-day.

Major Hancock, who wants to be consul at Tangier, Morocco, and ex-Representative Lowlands was also among the Maryland callers to-day. French cards at Veerhoff's, 910 7th st.
